FPC ruling may triple cost for natural gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission today nearly tripled the amount producers can charge for interstate natural gas, a move predicted to cost consumers up to $1.5 billion in the first year.

Under previous regulations, producers were allowed to charge about 52 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas they sold outside the producing state.

In today's decision, the commission set a new nationwide ceiling price of $1.42 per thousand cubic feet for gas brought into production since Dec. 31, 1974, and said this ceiling price may increase by one cent every three months.

The commission set a lower ceiling price of $1.01 for gas brought into production between Jan. 1, 1973, and Dec. 31, 1974.

There were no figures immediately available on how these increases would affect an average family's gas bill.

Shortly before the commission's decision was announced, a spokesman for a citizens' consumer group called Energy Action said several consumer groups are expected to file legal challenges against the increase.

If maintained, the price hikes would go part way toward the goal of the natural gas industry to remove federal price controls so that gas prices may seek their natural market level.

Prices of gas sold within a producing state, which are not subject to federal regulation, have ranged in the neighborhood of $1.50 per thousand cubic feet, sometimes reaching as high as $2.00.

Hence, the new federal price ceilings bring interstate gas close to parity with the unregulated intrastate gas.

But the price of interstate gas remains subject to federal regulation. So, if producers want another increase, they must return to the commission with another request.

Various studies have predicted increases in prices and then in production, but even the most optimisic estimate is that natural gas suppliers can do no better than return to their peak levels of around 1970 before eventually going into a permanent decline as natural gas resources are used up.

Explaining its decision, the FPC said drilling costs have increased, and changes in the tax code have affected company finances. The commission said both point to a need for higher price ceilings.

The commission said its new ceilings "will encourage the dedication of new reserves to the interstate market." It referred to a past tendency of producers to seek customers in the unregulated, higher-priced intrastate market.

The FPC said the new price ceilings also "will permit increased drilling activity and will place interstate pipelines in a more competitive position in the onshore markets."

Pomona police chief's appointment reaffirmed

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona City Council late Monday night reaffirmed its appointment of James W. Richards as the city's new police chief, ending a brief but intensive review of Richards' record following a challenge to the appointment by members of the Pomona Police Department.

"We have found no information which warrants changing our decision to appoint Jim Richards as police chief," Mayor Ray Lepire told the Progress Bulletin following an executive session of the council Monday.

The vote to reaffirm the appointment was 4-0, said Lepire. Councilman Adrain Wright, the only member not concurring in the original appointment on July 8, was not in attendance due to his participation in a Sister Cities function in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Richards reaccepted the appointment in a telephone call to City Administrator Jerrold Gonce this morning.

Richards, presently police Chief of Arvada, Colo., accepted the post on July 9 only to have the appointment thrown into doubt 10 days later when three Pomona policemen met with the council in executive session and challenged the appointment.

Although none of the officers, Richard Tefank, Larry Kidney and John Miller, publicly made charges against Richards, it is apparent they provided the council with information disparaging the selection of Richards.

After meeting with Richards last Tuesday, the council authorized Lepire to fly to Arvada last week to further investigate the questions raised by the three officers, which apparently revolve around a controversy within the Arvada Police Department last year.

"I interviewed 21 people in the two days I was in Arvada. None stated that Chief Richards is incompetent. This includes the police officers interviewed," said Lepire.

Lepire said that he talked to representatives of the Arvada Policemen's Association, businessmen, residents and city officials, with the result that the greatest criticism of Richards there was lack of communication through the ranks, which was due to an outmoded organizational structure inherited by Richards but now corrected.

"All agree that in the last six months the problems have subsided," said Lepire.

Other policemen's complaints found in Arvada, said Lepire, were low wages, dislike of work schedules and obsolete equipment.

Lepire said that he considered the investigation of Richards to be complete and that council had no reservations about reaffirming the appointment.

"We feel he is highly qualified," said the Mayor.

Richards, 42, has been chief of the Arvada force for about three years. Prior to that he was a member of the Ventura County Sheriff's Department, rising through the ranks to the level of Captain.

Ford compliments Navy

300 Yanks, foreigners evacuted from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. Navy evacuated some 300 Americans and other foreigners from Beirut without a hitch today while President Ford and top Pentagon officials stayed up most of the night in Washington to monitor the operation.

The 16,900-ton amphibious transport ship Coronado anchored off Beirut's seafront before dawn, and by 10 a.m. (3 a.m. EDT) all of the evacuees were aboard. The Coronado was to land them in Athens on Thursday.

Among those leaving was U.S. Ambassador Talcott W. Seelye, whose departure was a closely guarded secret until the last moment. The embassy said he was going to Washington for consultations and would return to Beirut.

An embassy official said 160 Americans and about 390 others signed up for the evacuation, but closer to 400 — "less than half" of them Americans — showed up this morning. However, to persons watching the departure it looked more like 250 to 300 persons, and the White House said there were about 300.

About 1,000 other American citizens remained in Lebanon despite warnings from the White House and the embassy that it was the last evacuation the U.S. government would organize. Most of those remaining are of Lebanese birth and have dual Lebanese and American citizenship.

President Ford kept abreast of the evacuation in a White House situation room, flanked by senior advisers. He was in telephone contact with Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and his chief military and civilian advisers at the Pentagon.

Rumsfeld sent Ford's "thanks for a good job" to the Coronado.

"The President wants to congratulate the officers and men of the Sixth Fleet and the officials of the embassy in Beirut for arranging the safe evacuation of Americans and foreign nationals," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters in Washington.

"The President also wants to express his gratitude and sincere thanks to all others who gave their cooperation to facilitate this departure."

The latter group included heavily armed soldiers of Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization and leftist Moslem Lebanese police who stood guard as the evacuees boarded an unarmed U.S. landing craft at the former military officers' swimming club.

Patricia Hearst offers to testify against Harrises

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst offered today to testify against William and Emily Harris without any grant of immunity, the Harrises' prosecutor announced in court.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Sam Mayerson said Miss Hearst's attorney, Al Johnson, called him at 8:45 a.m. and "said his client is prepared to waive all rights and privileges and to testify in this case."

Mayerson asked Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler to recess the Harris trial immediately and allow him to fly to San Diego to interview Miss Hearst at the federal prison there.

"We don't know what the limits of any testimony she would be willing to give would be in this trial," Mayerson said. "I don't know without talking to her."

The offer came just before the judge was to rule on the admissibility of a crucial tape recording featuring Miss Hearst's voice. She is the only witness who could help the state gain admission of the tape.

Mixed reactions to Reagan naming of running mate

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan's strategists say the selection of Sen. Richard S. Schweiker as vice-presidential running mate has strengthened Reagan's presidential campaign and broadened his political base.

But backers of President Ford called the Reagan announcement a desperate play for delegates by a losing candidate.

Reagan named the Pennsylvania lawmaker — one of the most liberal members of the Senate — in a surprise move Monday.

Just three weeks before opening of the Republican National Convention, Ford is 36 delegates away from the nomination with 1,093, in The Associated Press survey. Reagan trails with 1,025 and 141 delegates were uncommitted, including 28 in Schweiker's home state.

Nearly all Northeast delegates contacted in the first hours after Reagan's announcement Monday adopted either a wait-and-see attitude toward the move or said it would have no effect on their vote for a presidential nominee.

One Pennsylvanian switched from Ford to uncommitted, and the President lost Schweiker's vote. The senator resigned as a convention delegate. He had said previously he would vote for Ford.

Reagan backers were generally mum about the announcement. Spokesmen for the Reagan campaign emphasized points where Schweiker agrees with the former California governor's conservative philosophy.

The concensus was that Reagan stands to gain in the Northeast, where he is weakest. But he may suffer in the South and West, where his support rests in large part with legally uncommitted delegates.

"I think it broadens our base noticeably," Lyn Nofziger, a close political confidant of Reagan, said of the Schweiker announcement.

"This is a guy who has won elections statewide in a tough state for Republicans. He undoubtedly is going to go up there and work hard to win those delegates. Schweiker will work throughout the Northeast into the Ohio Valley.

"I think it's much too early to tell wheher it's going to hurt us in the South or the West. I think by the time many of those delegates in the South have looked the situation over and looked at Schweiker, I'm not sure there will be any hurt there."

Ford's backers initially were cautious in their reaction. But they quickly raised a counter-offensive.

"It appears to be an effort to exchange the second highest office in the land for a handful of delegates," said Ford campaign manager Rogers C.B. Morton.

Reagan said they agreed on basic values preserving "a strong America ... a compassionate America willing to care for those of its people unable to care for themselves ... a moral and decent America ... an America governed by the rule of law, not by men. ..."

Reagan did not permit questions from reporters. Instead, he read a prepared 350-word statement and immediately departed for vacation.

President to fly to Mississippi to seek support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will fly to Mississippi Friday to seek support from the state's 30 GOP delegates, who could play a key role in a first-ballot nomination contest in Kansas City.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen, in announcing the trip to Jackson, said that as far as he knew, it had no relation to Ronald Reagan's announcement that he would pick Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania as his running mate if he gets the GOP presidential nomination.

Nessen said Tuesday that Ford still plans to proceed as previously outlined in choosing his possible running mate. Under those plans, Ford will consult widely with Republicans on possible choices and announce his decision "at the appropriate time," Nessen said.

Ford has given no indication he would depart from the traditional method of announcing a running mate until after the presidential nominee has been picked at the convention.

Nessen said Ford will meet with all 30 Mississippi delegates and 30 alternates in a group. He also plans to talk with individuals and smaller groups of delegates during the Jackson visit. Details of the trip will be announced later, Nessen said.

Unsettled weather expected to clear

Intermittent drizzles dropped on the valley for the second day Monday, but no area had enough to measure.

The weatherman said the heavy clouds probably will move off by tonight. He predicts fair skies Wednesday with slowly rising temperatures.

The thick clouds clamped a lid on the valley, Monday, causing a first stage smog episode, as well as increased humidity that reached 90 per cent at times.

The smog will probably reappear Wednesday afternoon but, according to the National Weather Service, some of the humidity will be gone.

Temperatures are expected to hover in the mid-80s both days.

As for the precipitation, at least one Pomona accident was blamed on slick pavement.

A 16-year-old motorist was injured slightly Monday afternoon when his auto skidded on rain-slick Foothill Boulevard and hit a utility pole west of Towne Avenue in Pomona.

David R. Fleming, of Pomona, told police that his car slid out of control as he was making a left turn. The vehicle broke a cable supporting the pole.

Fleming declined immediate medical attention.

Weather

Variable high cloudiness today, clearing tonight with mostly fair Wednesday. Light smog both days. High today 83, low tonight 65, high Wednesday 86. The high Monday was 82 and the overnight low was 64. Wednesday's sunrise 5:59, sunset 7:55.

Suspect barred by Canadians 4 days after bus hijacking

SAN LEANDRO (AP) — A man sought in the nationwide hunt for the kidnapers of a busload of Chowchilla school children tried to enter Canada four days after the abduction but was turned back by authorities who found a rifle and three handguns in his car.

James Schoenfeld, 24, tried to cross the border from Washington state at Cascade, B.C., according to constable Ken Yaeger of Grand Forks, B.C. Schoenfeld was not a subject of the investigation at the time and was traveling alone.

Yaeger said Monday that Schoenfeld had his own identification cards, plus those belonging to Fred Newhall Woods IV, the other person sought in the kidnaping, and a Ralph Lester Snyder, 22, a new name in the case.

Yaeger said Schoenfeld also carried California and Montana license plates in the beige 1963 Chrysler he was driving.

The automobile matched the description of a car Schoenfeld was known to drive.

Once Canadian authorities were satisfied there were no warrants out for Schoenfeld's arrest and that the guns and auto were not stolen, Yaeger said the young man was escorted back to the U.S. customs office in Laurier, Wash., where he was released.

According to Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins, Schoenfeld told customs officers he was going to the Olympics.

Schoenfeld and Woods were named later in local and federal arrest warrants in the kidnaping. Both are sons of wealthy San Francisco Peninsula families. Schoenfeld's 22-year-old brother, Richard, surrendered Friday.

The school children and their bus driver were abducted at gunpoint July 15 and held captive in a moving van buried in a Livermore rock quarry, 100 miles northwest of Chowchilla, a small farming community in the San Joaquin Valley. They were imprisoned in the van for nearly 17 hours until they escaped by digging their way out after the kidnapers had left.

Houchins said deputies were to serve a search warrant in Marin County, across the Golden Gate from San Francisco, but he refused to say where deputies seached and what they were looking for.

No new arrest warrants have been sought, said Houchins, despite persistent reports that some investigators believe more than three men were involved in the elaborate kidnaping.

"We have no new names of subjects ... We do not have any information on one, 10 or 300 new subjects," the sheriff told newsmen. "But we have never discounted the possibility of additional suspects."

Meanwhile, Madera County Dist. Atty. Charles Hoffman rejected a request from Richard Schoenfeld's attorneys to keep their client from being taken from Oakland to Chowchilla for the formal reading of charges. The attorneys argued that Schoenfeld would not be safe in Chowchilla because "of the emotional climate in Madera County."

Attorney William Gagen said Schoenfeld will plead innocent Thursday, adding that he believes the trial judge eventually will agree to a defense request to move the case out of Madera County.

PATRICIA HEARST

L.A. trial date is set for Patty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst stood in a bulletproof courtroom and waived her right to a speedy trial while her attorney launched a battle to prevent her from being tried at all.

Late Monday, her prosecutor made it clear he would not yield in his plans to bring the convict heiress before a jury on kidnaping, robbery and assault charges. Her trial date was set for Jan. 10, 1977.

The statement by Deputy District Attorney Sam Mayerson came at the trial of Miss Hearst's codefendants, William and Emily Harris.

Asked why he had not called Miss Hearst to testify on a key issue in the Harris trial, Mayerson replied, "that involves immunity which is not to be given in this case as far as I know ... We are not going to call Miss Hearst because of the ramifications involved in that."

As he spoke, the 22-year-old Miss Hearst, now a convicted bank robber, was enroute back to federal prison in San Diego where she is undergoing diagnostic tests.

Earlier in the day, she spent 10 minutes in the courtroom where the Harrises are on trial, but did not see her former fugitive traveling companions who waited in a holding cell.

Superior Court Judge William Ritzi asked if she would waive her right to a speedy trial.

"Yes, your honor," Miss Hearst replied, standing up from her seat at the counsel table.

She was thin, but appeared healthier than at previous court hearings.

Her attorney, Al Johnson, said Miss Hearst weighs only 93 pounds but "her mental attitude has improved. She appears more relaxed and that's why she seems to look a great deal better."

She wore black slacks and a black and white sweater set which clung to her bony form. Her usual stark pallor was gone, and her dyed red hair was back to its normal honey brown, falling below her shoulders.

Johnson, who had flown here from Boston, accepted the 1977 trial date but notified the judge he planned to oppose the trial.

Legalized bingo on the way in Pomona

Urged on by representatives of the city's various fraternal organizations, the Pomona City Council Monday night gave first reading approval to an ordinance allowing non-profit groups to have legal bingo games.

Members of the American Legion, Moose Lodge and Knights of Columbus told the council it was time to legalize the games that have been going on for years — providing "recreation and a little money for worthwhile projects," said one speaker.

The only real question rasied over the bingo ordinance was whether to hold an official public hearing, which would delay adoption of the ordinance an additional two weeks.

Councilman Benjamin Ochoa held out for the official public hearing but was overruled by the balance of the council on a 3-1 vote to go ahead and approve the ordinance.

The measure contains stiff reporting and control procedures for the games as outlined by the state penal code, and prohibits any game run for profit.

The ordinance will become effective in September.

The only voice of dissent came from Ethel Henning, who warned the council that bingo was nothing more than gambling and would invite unsavory persons into the community.

MIA group unhappy with Ford, Kissinger efforts

The National League of Families of POWs and MIAs cannot expect any help from President Gerald Ford or Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in its efforts to learn what has happened to the 1,300 servicemen still unaccounted in Southeast Asia, says an Upland spokesman for the group.

Mrs. Diane Nichols, Southern California coordinator for the league, said Monday that when Ford visited the seventh annual dinner of the league Saturday night in Washington, D.C., he said that he "will not let the missing men be forgotten."

"We had hoped that he would name a negotiator to Hanoi," she said.

She explained that Kissinger has made no attempt to help the group of families.

"Since the signing of the Paris peace agreement, he will not even talk to us, though we had tried several times," Mrs. Nichols said.

"We received a telegram from former Gov. Ronald Reagan that if he were elected President he would name a new secretary of state."

From 500 to 600 members of families of POWs and MIAs attending the seventh annual convention Friday through Sunday attempted to see as many congressmen as possible in a push to keep the Select Committee on Americans Missing in Action alive after Sept. 11.

Mrs. Nichols, back home in Upland Monday, said that Congressman Jim Lloyd who is a member of the committee favors extending the group past its date to disband.

"The committee took three months to set up a staff after its organization in September 1975," she commented. "Now it needs time to work."

Mrs. Nichols said that the Nixon administration had promised $3.2 billion to Hanoi for reconstruction, "but we don't want to pay blackmail for our men."

She said that she feels that Hanoi doesn't want to negotiate with Kissinger or the Ford administration.

She said that Hanoi positively reported that there were 50 POWs left over there when the first POWs were exchanged in the spring of 1973.

Mrs. Nichols' father Roy F. Townley was flying an Air America cargo plane when he was downed in northern Laos in December 1971.

Mrs. Fran Masterson of Upland, who also attended the convention, has not seen her husband, Air Force Maj. Michael "Bat" Masterson, since a plane malfunction forced him to bail out over Laos in October 1968.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bebus of Montclair, are seeking information on their son, Air Force T-Sgt. Charles Bebus, shot down in December 1972 while on a B-52 bombing mission over Hanoi.

Construction takes giant leap in Chino

Building activity in Chino is continuing at a record-shattering pace, with valuations for the first half of 1976 totaling $37,840,103.

The figure through June is more than $17 million higher than the $20,660,406 recorded for the first six months of 1975.

Last month's building total was $5,983,024, compared with the $4,047,672 figure for June 1975.

Single family homes continue to be the major reason for high building totals, with 135 permits taken for homes last month, for a valuation of $4,710,345. Permits for 815 new single dwellings have been recorded for the six-month period.

Other permits in June were for two commercial buildings, $65,160, signs and miscellaneous, $97,682, additions and repairs $272,939, and 20 swimming pools, $108,752.

The commercial permits issued were for a new Seven-11 food store at 12227 Mountain Ave. and for completion of the interior at Green's Sports Depot, 12081 Central Ave. A permit also was given for $213,000 worth of alterations at Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 4321 Philadelphia St.

Poll finds 82% of youths drink

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A survey shows 82 per cent of the high school students in San Diego County drink alcohol, with 33 per cent of those getting drunk once a month or more.

He said 65 per cent of the students polled said they favored lowering the drinking age to 18.

Sulfur fuel control

State panel takes action to curb risk of 'killer smog'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The State Air Resources has adopted an emergency plan to curtail use of sulfur fuels to avoid a possible "killer smog."

Monday's action by the three-member board came despite warnings that the plan could lead to spot shortages of leadfree gas during the summer.

The guidelines adopted will dictate how much various industries must cut consumption of sulfur fuels during various stages of air pollution. The public will also be asked to cut power consumption.

The action came after a hearing at City Hall which drew more than 200 persons, including many representatives of industry and power companies concerned about the guidelines' impact.

A spokesman for Union Oil Co. warned that the board action could hamper refinery production of lead-free gas and create spot shortages.

Tom Quinn, state ARB chairman, maintained the state needed the machinery to cope with problems that may arise because of industry's increasing reliance on fuel oil due to shortages of the clean-burning natural gas.

"We could find ourselves next week in the midst of a horrible episode with increased illness and death," he said.

An ARB spokesman said that, without Monday's action, the state could easily find itself facing a "killer smog" which could cause the premature deaths of hundreds of chronically ill and aged people.

But Quinn said he wanted the guidelines — which will be carried out through detailed plans drawn up by local air pollution control districts — to cause as little disruption for the public and industry as possible.

The guidelines set stages for various actions when certain levels of sulfur-related pollutants in the air are reached.

During the most severe emergency, called the "stage three episode," a 33 per cent sulfur dioxide emission cut would be required for chemical plants, while electrical utilities would have to cut fuel oil use 40 per cent, the spokesman said.

Under such conditions, the public would be asked to cut electrical power use 40 per cent. In addition, the guidelines state that all combustion sources would be asked to switch to natural gas if available or fuel oil with very little sulfur in it.

The spokesman noted that if the ARB finds local authorities are not taking the proper action, the state could step in.

Although Quinn said he thinks industries will be able to meet the guidelines adopted Monday, he said the rules could be softened if absolutely necessary.

"If somebody should clearly demonstrate the impossibility of meeting the requirements, we will consider an amendment to our plan," he said.

City's suit is shaky; earthquake predictions fail to affect values

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two city councilmen thought they were standing on pretty firm ground when they warned that predictions of an imminent major earthquake would depress local property values.

But the latest analysis by the city attorney and real estate experts shows that notion to be a bit shaky.

Councilmen Louis Nowell and Robert Wilkinson, whose San Fernando Valley districts were among the hardest hit areas in the massive February 1971 quake, became irate when Caltech seismologist James H. Whitcomb forecast a similar jolt would occur by next April.

Fearing that the prediction would damage valley property values, Nowell and Wilkinson pushed a resolution through the City Council directing the city attorney to file a damage suit against Whitcomb and others.

But subsequent investigative reports by the city Bureau of Right-of-Way and Land and the city attorney contend the suit would have little chance of success — and indicate that, if anything, property values have risen since the unpleasant prediction was made.

The city attorney's report said a city suit "would have little, if any, chance of success unless it could be demonstrated that the prediction had actually damaged the value of property owned by the city."

And the Bureau of Right-ofWay and Land's analysis, based on reports from a local realty board, showed that property values in the areas most heavily damaged by the 1971 quake rose substantially in the months immediately after Whitcomb's forecast last April.

These areas, the bureau reasoned, "would be most susceptible to property value fluctuations caused by earthquake predictions."

But instead, the average sales price of houses in the area rose from $39,600 on May 30 — a month after Whitcomb's prediction — to $41,000 for the month ending June 30, and to $41,300 for the week ending July 8.

Moreover, residential sales volume rose from $11,619,000 during May to $16,070,000 for the month of June.

Injured Pomona girl improves

Rosemary Razo, 5, Pomona, is listed in satisfactory condition at St. Francis Hospital in Tulsa, Okla.

The little girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Razo of 918 Hawthorne Place, was in critical condition when she was admitted Friday afternoon.

Her two brothers, Randy, 13 and Rusty, 11, in serious condition when admitted, now are in satisfactory condition.

The children were injured Friday afternoon near Vinita, Okla., when a loaded cattle truck overturned on top of the car in which they were riding. Three women in the car, all from Roanoke, Ill., were killed.

L.P. man sent to CYA

Stanley Goldbloom Jr., 20-year-old La Puente man who pleaded guilty recently to murder in the drug death Dec. 5 of his 19-year-old wife, has been committed to the custody of the California Youth Authority.

Goldbloom was committed by Pomona Superior Court Judge Howard D. McClain when the young man appeared Friday for probation hearing and sentencing.

Goldbloom, of 1947 Sierra Leone Ave., was arrested after the death of Bonnie Goldbloom in their apartment early that morning. Sheriff's deputies said she died as the result of a heroin overdose which Goldbloom helped her administer. They said both had "narcotics backgrounds."

Walnut annexation issues

New annexations to an old county lighting district are expected to be approved by the Walnut City Council Wednesday night.

The proposed annexations are 11 tracts which have received final approval from the city government.

Developers are Larwin, La Solana, Chevron, Singer, Umark, Southern Development and Vanguard.

Councilmen also will be asked to rename Lemon Creek Park as Lemon Creek Bicentennial Park.

Oil imports put skids on trade balance

Increased demand could spell higher prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil imports surged about 34 per cent in June to meet growing American demands and pushed the U.S. foreign trade balance back into deficit after a one-month surplus, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said imports exceeded exports by $377.3 million in June, compared with a $395.6-million surplus of exports over imports during May.

For the first half of the year, the trade deficit now stands at $1.05 billion. At this time a year ago, trade accounts were in surplus by $5.05-billion on the way to a record $11-billion surplus for the year.

The general expectation for the year is that as foreign economies generate stronger recoveries, U.S. trade accounts will gradually edge into surplus and wind up with a small surplus for the year.

The trade statistics, when computed on a three-month quarterly period to eliminate confusing month-to-month swings, indicate that the deficits appear to be narrowing. They show deficits of $864 million in the first quarter and $184 million in the second quarter.

But the sudden surge in oil imports could have more ominous implications for Americans.

When the cartel of oil-exporting nations met earlier this year, they responded to slack demand for their products with a decision to keep prices steady, despite pressure from some countries for an increase of 10 per cent or more.

The United States was a typical example of what had happened to oil demand, registering a 3.5 per cent decline in oil imports during 1974 and a 2 per cent drop for 1975.

But so far this year, oil imports are up 17.6 per cent over the first six months of last year, and that increased demand could spell higher prices when the oil exporters meet again to discuss prices.

In June alone, oil imports shot up 34.4 per cent after a 23.9 per cent slip in May. The quantity of oil imported in June was the highest since January.

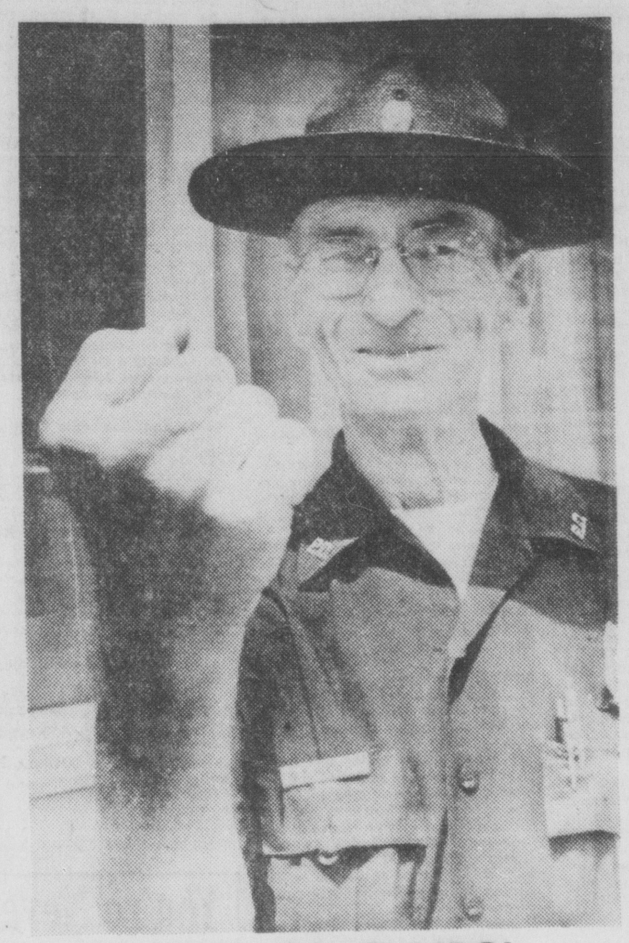
On the export side, the machinery and transportation equipment sectors staged the biggest increase, $207.8 million. Agricultural exports were also up, but by a smaller margin, $23.1 million.

Since the 1975 surplus was registered, the economic recovery has stimulated industry and consumer demands for fuel and for imported automobiles, television sets and other consumer products.

Imports increased by 9.9 per cent in June to a record level of $10.09 billion. Exports, meanwhile, rose 1.4 per cent to $9.7 billion.

The continuing rise in exports — the fourth straight monthly climb to a record in June — has been the factor which prompted most trade analysts to say that the shift into defict in the trade accounts appears to be a healthy thing for the U.S. economy now.

The deficits help our trading partners pull out of their recessions and thus build the foundation for future demand for American products overseas. And the imported products provide competition for American goods and help hold prices down.



'FIVE OF CLUBS'

Osburn Hoover says he may be 73 years old but he's still tough enough to be a cop. Hoover demonstrates his favorite weapon — his fist. He calls it the "five of clubs."

Tough cop at 73 is only law in town

PINEVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — Osburn S. Hoover suffers the shortness of breath caused by 25 years of breathing coal dust in the mines. But at 73 he's still tough enough to provide the only law needed in this tough coal town.

In fact, he usually leaves his .357-magnum revolver in his patrol car and shuns the use of a nightstick. He said he prefers "the five of clubs" — his big fist.

Hoover became Pineville's only policeman five years ago. Then the streets were frequented by drunks and nearly every high school football game ended in a battle — local toughs against the visitors. Now, there are few who stagger down the street and the fighting, if any, is kept outside of town.

Hoover says he took care of the drunks by walking into a bar and announcing that he was the local law. "You run your place inside," he told the owner. "I'll run the streets. Don't let your drunks wander out or I'll put you in the can."

Hoover backed up his threat with 18-hour patrols on which he arrested every drunk he could find. Today, he said, there are few.

Hoover, a wiry six feet, says he settled the after-game fights easily. He proclaimed: "Boys, I do the fighting. All of it. If you don't believe me, try me out."

"If he ever came after me," one tavern worker said, "I'd say, 'Here I am.' Cause one thing's sure — if he comes after you, he'll bring you back one way or another."

The white-haired policeman says most of his work in Pineville, population 1,200, now consists of ticketing illegally parked cars. He said he writes about 60 tickets a day.

But he said he hasn't slowed down much. "If I wasn't shortwinded, I'd be as good a man as I ever was," he says.

He has this advice for young policemen:

"Conduct yourself in a mannerly and respectful way. Know enough law to keep out of trouble. And don't take hearsay for an answer."

He also says policemen should stay out of family arguments.

"They'll get you killed quicker than bank robberies," he said.

Tax tool OK'd to fight bribery, boycotting

WASHINGTON (AP) — American firms that boycott Israel or use bribery as a foreign-sales tool stand to lose millions of dollars in tax benefits under a provision approved by the Senate.

Business executives would be subject to up to a year in jail for failing to report any corporate income derived as a result of a bribe or earnings in any country that requires participation in a boycott.

The provisions, far tougher than the Ford administration has recommended but still subject to House consideration, were added to a multibillion-dollar tax bill.

The antiboycott and antibribe provisions were part of a package, approved 86 to 1, that affects tax treatment of income earned by Americans or U.S. businesses abroad. There was no debate on the sanctions, which were written by the Finance Committee.

The committee acted in the wake of disclosures that some of the nation's biggest corporations cooperated in the Arab boycott of Israel and Jewish businessmen, and that others routinely paid bribes to foreign officials in order to improve sales.

Congressional aides estimate the provisions on boycotts and bribes will cost offending firms $100 million in 1977.

The antiboycott language would affect transactions made 30 days or more after the provisions become law. The anti-bribe section would generally become effective retroactive to Jan. 1.

In approving the package of amendments dealing with foreign income, the Senate handed self-styled "tax reformers" a victory by knocking out one of dozens of provisions that have been attacked as favoring special interests.

In writing the tax bill, the Finance Committee accepted a House-approved section that toughened tax treatment of trusts set up in foreign countries by Americans to benefit their children.

The House language would have applied the stricter rules as of May 21, 1974, the day the provision was written by the Ways and Means Committee. The Finance Committee, at the request of Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., delayed the effective date for eight days on grounds it took tax lawyers that long to find out about the House committee action.

Money supply slowed to dampen inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Arthur F. Burns said today the Federal Reserve Board has approved a slight slowdown in the growth of the nation's money supply to dampen inflation, and he predicted that all parts of the economy will improve in the months ahead.

Burns called the nation's continued underlying inflation rate of 6 to 7 per cent a "disease" and declared that "any such rate of inflation constitutes a serious threat to the economy." He said the board remains "deeply concerned" about unemployment as well.

Burns said slower growth rates for the money supply "are another small and prudent step in moving toward a rate of monetary expansion that may in time accommodate general price stability." In the months ahead, he said, "activity in all major sectors of the private economy thus seems poised for further advances."

The chairman indicated he doesn't believe slowing down money growth will cause any significant future increase in interest rates for consumers, and might cause no increase at all. The board tightened the money supply somewhat in recent weeks, he said, and it did not affect interest rates for either farmers or consumers.

Burns made his statements in testimony for the House Banking Committee. There were these other economic developments:

—The Labor Department said Monday that the productivity of American workers grew at a 3.6 per cent seasonally adjusted annual rate in the second quarter, contrasted to 7.5 per cent during the first three months of the year. Commerce has said total economic growth rose during the same period at half the first-quarter pace.

Burns said the growth rate target for the basic money supply, which includes cash and money in checking accounts, remains unchanged at 4.5 per cent to 7 per cent. But for another measure, which includes money in bank savings accounts, the target was lowered to 7.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent, down from an upper range of 10 per cent.

For a third measure, which includes money in thrift institutions, the new range was set at 9 per cent to 11 per cent, down from 9 per cent to 12 per cent previously.

The three measures of money are known as M-1, M-2 and M-3 respectively. Burns said downward adjustments in money growth rates as the economy recovers from recession help to reassure the business and financial community that the government will not permit a new outburst of inflation.

At the same time, Burns said, the changes in moneygrowth targets will not hurt economic expansion.

He said the recent slowdown in the rate of economic expansion is part of a traditional pattern of recovery from recessions and is not a cause for concern. Consumer buying probably will continue to be the nation's major source of economic strength, he said.

But Burns expressed concern over both continuing high unemployment as well as the rate of inflation.

"We at the Federal Reserve remain deeply concerned about the level of unemployment that still exists in our country," he said. "We recognize the pressing need for the nation to regain more prosperous economic conditions."

But he said the underlying rate of inflation in the economy apparently has not diminished during the past year, remaining at about 6 or 7 per cent.

"Any such rate of inflation constitutes a serious threat to the economy," he said, "and elimination of our disease of inflation must therefore remain a major objective of public policy."

The rate of growth of the money supply is considered important to the economy because it helps determine the interest rates on money loaned for consumer and business needs alike.

Gunman takes funds used for senior citizen trips

A gunman grabbed a cash box containing funds for excursion trips for Pomona senior citizens late Monday morning and then dared the woman collecting the money to follow him.

The incident occurred at the Palomares Community Center at 499 E. Arrow Highway.

City Parks and Recreation Department employe Charlotte E. Roselius, 36, told police later that she noticed the man loitering near the buildings as she was collecting cash and checks for the trips. Suddenly, she said, he entered the building, grabbed the cash box from a table and pointed a small pistol at her. "I dare you to follow me," he said, and ran southbound across Arrow Highway.

The box contained $259 in cash and $750 in checks, Jack Hoxsey, parks and recreation department director, said today. The loss of the funds will not affect the ability of the seniors to make the trips, however, he said.

The thief was white, 25 to 30, 6 feet tall weighing 160 pounds. He had reddish hair, a mustache and wore a light-blue shirt and dark trousers.

Arson suspected

Arson is suspected by Pomona fire officials in a $1,500 fire which destroyed an empty house at 1249 E. Third St. Monday afternoon.

The small house owned by A.L. Bosch of Chino was totally involved when firefighters arrived at 1:51 p.m.

The fire appears to have been started in three locations, two inside the house and one in the attached garage.

Two young women who had been cleaning up the house left the premises about 45 minutes prior to the discovery of the fire, witnesses said.

Security guard jailed

A security guard supposed to be staking out an ONTARIO metal company plagued with a series of thefts was arrested by police Monday after a van he was driving was found to contain numerous metal ingots stolen from the company.

Security guard Ernesto Galindo Martinez, 22, of Corona, according to police, was arrested after telling officers that he had stolen the ingots "so I could show them how easy it was to steal them." Martinez was booked in the West End Jail this morning on a charge of possession of stolen property.

The incident began about 11 a.m. Monday when Ontario police Officer F. Fryer noticed the van blocking an alley at the rear of Blue Line Co., on Bon View Avenue north of Francis Avenue. The officer noticed a number of metal ingots and a security officer's uniform in the van.

When the security guard returned to the van he was questioned by Fryer and Robert L. Gross, operations manager of the Burns Detective Agency — Martinez' employer. Police said Martinez admitted to taking the ingots and was arrested.

Blue Line Co. officials said they had hired security guards in hopes of preventing numerous thefts, first thought to be employes.

Shot fired from car

A Covina man suffered an eye cut early today when an occupant of another car on the San Bernardino Freeway in POMONA fired a shot at him which shattered a window of his car.

The incident occurred east of Dudley Street shortly before 1:30 a.m.

The victim, Jay M. Odom, told police that the other car was driven alongside of his and the passenger fired at him, shattering the window and showering him with glass. The other driver continued westbound while Odom pulled off the freeway and drove to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after treatment.

Odom told police he knows of no reason for the attack. He said the car from which the shot was fired was a 1970 to 1973-model brown Buick Skylark with a white vinyl top occupied by two blacks.

'Porno king' linked to prostitution plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man reportedly known as the "porno king" of New York has allegedly been linked to plans for a massive prostitution ring along the Alaska pipeline, a Los Angeles source said today.

The source said the name of Martin Hodas surfaced in connection with a recent indictment of nine persons in connection with an alleged sex and gambling conspiracy.

Hodas was named in the indictment, but was not indicted. Federal officials said they were continuing their investigation. Hodas is now serving a one-year federal prison term in Florida for tax evasion.

The source said federal documents revealed that one of those indicted, former U.S. Atty. Richard L. McVeigh, was to make payoffs to provide "protection" from Alaskan authorities for the venture.

The indictment said McVeigh planned to help Hodas and two others set up "large-scale prostitution" in Anchorage and along the pipeline.

House to vote on reprimand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House will vote Thursday on whether to reprimand Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., for financial misconduct and make him the first congressman since Adam Clayton Powell to be disciplined by his peers.

The House Ethics Committee recommended two reprimands Monday for what it calls Sikes' violations of congressional "standards of conduct."

Schweiker voting record a liberal one

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, picked by Ronald Reagan as his running mate, is not cast in the traditional Republican mold. His voting record has been rated as the most liberal among Republican members of the Senate.

Schweiker, selected by Reagan Monday, has supported liberal legislation and has criticized leaders of his own party during his 16-year career in national politics.

"My independence is my lifestyle," says the 50-year-old Pennsylvanian. "I'm not a Republican stereotype. And I'm not the kind of guy who can get the word from the party and vote for something that I don't believe in."

"Basically this is a coalition," Schweiker says of his agreeing to join the former California governor. He added that Reagan "made it clear I would have input."

Schweiker's voting record in the Senate has been decidedly liberal. The Committee on Political Education, the political arm of the AFL-CIO, rated Schweiker's voting record at 100 per cent prolabor in 1975, the highest of any Republican senator.

In addition, Americans for Democratic Action gave Schweiker an 89 rating last year, higher than any other Senate Republican except Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., who rated 94.

Schweiker was elected to the House of Represenatives in 1960 and served there until elected to the Senate in 1968. He was elected to a second term in the Senate in 1974.

Schweiker doesn't deny that he thinks this is a good time for him to run for the vice presidency. For a while, he said, he had weighed his chances of getting the second spot on a Ford ticket.

He said that by joining the Reagan ticket, a number of delegates will switch from support of Ford, including some of the 103 Pennsylvania delgates.

Schweiker, previously a Ford delegate, has withdrawn as a delegate. He will begin calling delegates from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and New York to try to swing them to Reagan.

As of this morning, the Pennsylvania delegation was split 69 for Ford, six for Reagan and 28 uncommitted.

Schweiker was one of the few Republicans to support Medicare, federal rent subsidies and a massive cut in defense spending. He was also among the first prominent Republicans to demand President Nixon's resignation during the Watergate scandal. And he criticized Ford's tax and oil policies as favorable to the rich.

In 1964, he refused to support Barry Goldwater as the Republican presidential nominee.

Back home, his appeal has attracted the support of many Democrats, including those he opposed and beat.

Joseph S. Clark, the former Philadelphia mayor whom Schweiker knocked out of the Senate in 1968, said, "I couldn't have lost to a better guy." Clark described Schweiker, the first Republican to get the backing of the state AFL-CIO, as "courageous, liberal, understanding and capable."

CARTER NEPHEW BEHIND BARS — William Spann, 29, a nephew of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, looks out of window at San Francisco County jail. A jail official said Spann is serving 10 years to life for two armed robberies.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE NO. 2784

AN EMERGENCY ORDINANCE OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, PROHIBITING THE ISSUING OF CERTIFICATES OF OCCUPANCY, BUILDING PERMITS AND BUSINESS LICENSES FOR NUDE PHOTOGRAPHY STUDIOS, SCHOOLS WHICH TEACH BODILY CONTACT ACTIVITIES, TALK AND ENCOUNTER CENTERS, ADULT BOOK STORES AND OTHER ADULT ENTERTAINMENT ESTABLISHMENTS UNTIL A STUDY IS COMPLETED.

WHEREAS, there was a proliferation of massage parlors located in the City of Pomona in the late 1960's within a very short time until stopped by appropriate zoning studies instituted by the Planning Commission and the City Council and the regulation of such parlors; and

WHEREAS, there has recently come or threatened to come to the City of Pomona certain uses such as nude photograph studios, sexual encounter parlors, talk centers and "schools" for massage which are actually massage parlors, "adult" book stores and other adult entertainment establishments; and

WHEREAS, it is necessary for the health, safety, morals and general welfare of the people of the City of Pomona that such construction and uses of land be halted pending a thorough study of these uses and the determination where, if anywhere, in the City these uses should be allowed and under what regulations and conditions; and

WHEREAS, the United State Supreme Court in the case of Young v. American Mini-Theatres on June 24, 1976 determined that adult entertainment establishments may be dispersed throughout the community by zoning laws although such dispersement could not reduce the number of adult book stores and theatres in the community.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Pomona, California, as follows:

SECTION 1. There is hereby declared a moratorium on building and the using of land for nude photography studios and schools for nude photography, sexual encounter parlors, talk centers, wrestling and other bodily contact sports parlors, schools involving bodily, contact such as (but not limited to) dance studios, massage schools, physiotherapy studios and schools which teach wrestling and other bodily contact sports, "adult" entertainment establishments and "adult" book stores, for four months, commencing July 20, 1976.

SECTION 2. The Department of Community Development and the Department of Public Works and the City Clerk are hereby directed to reject any applications for building permits, certificates of occupancy and business licenses for such uses and to cancel any such permits, certificates and licenses already issued for such uses during the time period set forth above in Section 1.

SECTION 3. The Planning Division and the Police Department are hereby directed to study with particularity the conduct of such uses in Pomona and in other communities to ascertain the appropriate zoning districts, if any, wherein such uses shall be allowed and under what conditions said uses shall be allowed in such zones.

SECTION 4. Pursuant to Section 510, Charter of the City of Pomona, this ordinance is declared to be an emergency ordinance for the immediate preservation of public peace, health and safety of the City of Pomona because of proliferation of schools of physical contact activities, talk and encounter centers, "adult" book stores and adult entertainment establishments and similar uses of land would not be beneficial unless properly regulated and assigned to certain zoning districts of the City not yet known until the above study is made.

SECTION 5. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this ordinance, causing it to be published as required by law, and it shall thereafter be in full force and effect.

APPROVED, PASSED & ADOPTED this 19th day of July, 1976.

Obituary

J. C. Sholdes

J. C. Sholdes of 950 Alamosa Drive, Claremont, died Sunday evening in a local convalescent hospital.

Mr. Sholdes was born Sept. 27, 1895 in Pennsylvania. He came to California in 1946 from Cleveland, Ohio and lived in Montebello, then Arcadia before moving to Claremont in 1956. He was a member of the Ashlar Masonic Lodge 639 in Bedford, Ohio.

Besides his widow, Viola, he is survived by two sons, Charles E. of Claremont and Raymond J. of Brawley; and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Pitts and Mrs. Marie McGinty, both of Cleveland, Ohio.

Services will be held Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. The Rev. Paul F. Huebner of Claremont will officiate and Compass Masonic Lodge 590 will conduct its ritual. Burial will be made in Rose Hills Memorial Park, Whittier.

Attorney blames rate hikes on insurance company greediness

ATLANTA (AP) — Rising medical malpractice insurance rates are due to insurance company greed and incompetent physicians, the president-elect of a national lawyers group has charged.

Insurance companies are trying to recoup losses in the stock market by raising rates, said Robert G. Begam, who will become president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America on Wednesday.

"An upswing in medical malpractice insurance premiums was inevitable to help recoup losses — losses due to management nearsightedness or, if you will, management malpractice," the Phoenix attorney said Monday.

"The frightening incompetence of too many healthcare providers" is another major cause of the problem," he said.

Both the insurance and medical fields have "tarred and feathered the trial lawyer as the 'heavy' — the bad guy — in the controversy," he said. "They were making the trial bar the scapegoat for their own misdeeds."

He said studies have indicated that about 16,000 of the nation's 320,000 physicians are unfit to practice medicine.

$50,000 earrings stolen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor has reported the theft of a pair of sapphire and diamond earrings valued at $50,000 from her home in the exclusive Bel-Air section of Los Angeles.

Miss Gabor told police she returned home with a friend and found the front door of her home had been opened with a pass key. She said the earrings and some costume jewelry were missing from her bedroom.

She said a safe in the house had been opened but apparently nothing was taken from it.

Grand Union

The first U.S. flag was the Grand Union which Washington carried across the Delaware. The first official flag was the Stars and Stripes in 1777 and the flag design was standardized in 1818.

The political arena

Brutocao forums...Lloyd on 'report cards'

LOUIS BRUTOCAO, Republican nominee in the 35th Congressional District, is holding a series of Thursday breakfast programs in Ontario and West Covina to discuss national and local problems with area residents.

The sessions are conducted at Squire's Restaurant in Ontario on the first and third Thursdays of the month and at Clifton's Restaurant in West Covina on the second and fourth Thursdays. The public is invited.

These conferences serve as forums for people to express their impressions of the course the national government is following and to suggest solutions to problems, explained Brutocao.

"I intend to listen to local ideas and offer the people every opportunity to participate in my campaign which stresses the need to cut big government down to size," he added.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., believes that various legislative "report cards" issued by political groups can make the same legislator appear conservative or liberal, for ecology or against it, or favorable or unfavorable to labor and dozens of other issues.

"It's what I call the ratings game and there are ratings to support any point of view or oppose any."

Lloyd said the fallacy of ratings is they take about 10 votes during a year's period when there were nearly 1,000 votes on every kind of legislation and then label people as liberal, conservative, pro-ecology or anti-senior citizen.

"You can't rate someone on the basis of one per cent of their record, and fortunately voters don't hold the ratings in high regard," he said.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., will participate in the 50-state National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws which meets July 31-Aug. 6 in Atlanta, Ga.

The commission sponsors the enactment of uniform statutes developed by the National Conference of Commissioners on matters in which compatibility with other states is considered desirable.

McVittie was appointed earlier this year to the seven-member California Commission on Uniform State Laws. Only two members are legislators.

MRS. MARIAN W. LaFOLLETTE, who served six years on the Los Angeles Community College District Board of Trustees, has been appointed Los Angeles County chairman for the Hayakawa for U.S. Senate campaign.

Mrs. LaFollette is state chairman for the Reform Education Action Plan which she initiated for the California Federation of Republican Women. The program was designed to reverse several problems in the school system, particularly the inadequate teaching of basic skills, she said.

Pomona district

Comp Ed passes state inspection; critic still sore

State officials have determined that the Compensatory Education program in Pomona's public schools is "conducted in an appropriate manner," Concerned Parents of the Pomona Unified School District have been informed.

Rafael Chavarria, chairman of the parents group, called the finding a "cover-up" and said his group would ask for assistance from the National Compensatory Education Office "to get better response to correct situations affecting the educational needs of Spanish surnamed children in Pomona."

This group requested an investigation of the Pomona program by state officials in May. Its criticisms were that the program, which brings nearly $2 million a year into the Pomona school district, received few suggestions from parents, that it lacked true bilingual programs, misued monies for personnel and equipment not related to Comp Ed and employed personnel who did not have language skills to work with limited and non-English speaking children.

James B. Nelson, manager of elementary field services in California, wrote the parents that the State Department of Education had reviewed Pomona's applications and program as well as project management.

"The review encompassed an analysis of the on-site monitor, a review of the district and five schools, responses from the district to your specific concerns and on-site visits," Nelson said.

In addition, Nelson pointed out, Joe Portillo of the State Department of Education, had spent a day in Pomona.

In his letter to Chavarria, Nelson said that "There is satisfactory evidence to verify that the management of the programs conforms to federal and state regulations and administrative direction."

Nelson said there was evidence the district and school advisory committees (parents) have been effectively involved in planning, development and evaluation of both applications and plans.

He said it was the conclusion of the department that "the needs of bilingual children in Pomona have been addressed, that programs and staff have been provided to serve the limited and non-English speaking child and that the bilingual-bicultural programs funded by the state have been provided in an appropriate manner."

Nelson told the parents that the state would continue to review programs for compliance and quality on an annual basis.

First flag

CHICAGO (AP) — The first flag to fly in North America was the Viking flag of Leif Ericson, according to "World Book Encyclopedia." It featured the black silhouette of a bird, with wings outstretched, mounted on a white rectangular background. It is believed to have flown over American soil in the 11th century.

Cub Scout camps set

Old Baldy Council, Boy Scouts of America, will conduct two one-week Cub Scout day camps for boys 8 through 10 Aug. 2-6 and Aug. 9-13.

They will be held in Larkin Park in Claremont and will be open to all boys, not just Cub Scouts. The cost is $15 per boy. The program, to be conducted daily between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m., will include .22 caliber rifle shooting, archery, hikes and a nature study.

Lunch will be provided.

The highlight of the camp will be one full day at the Holcomb Valley Scout Camp near Big Bear. There will be a picnic and a rocket derby on the last day of each session.

Reservations may be made by calling executive Gordon Brown at 626-3551.

Canada pop idol comes to U.S.

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Name a singer who has been written about in the Wall Street Journal and Time magazine, whose concerts in Japan and France are sellouts, who has outsold The Beatles and Elvis Presley in Canada, and has made three movies and who is a confirmed millionaire.

The answer: Rene Simard.

All that, and the rotten kid won't be 16 until next February.

Maybe you haven't heard of Rene, but you will. He's all set to invade the United States, and he's confident the reception here will be as warm as it's been everyplace else. He's even confident that his recent voice change — all his big hits were done in his boy soprano which is gone forever — won't slow him down.

He's a smallish, ever-smiling boy with the thick French accent common to the French-speaking part of Canada. He is learning English now, since he's moved to Los Angeles, but it is still far from perfect.

I asked him a question containing the word "restrictions," and he seized on it. He didn't know the word and wanted to know all about it — what it meant, how to pronounce it.

Later, he was talking about the type of buildings in his native Quebec, and used the word "architecture." Only he pronounced it "arshitesh-ture."

"Is that right?" he said.

"No, it's architecture."

"Architeshure?"

He couldn't say it. He laughed. He laughs a lot. He's obviously a happy kid, which is only natural. He has the world by the tail.

Rene comes from an island — l'Orleans — in the St. Lawrence River about six miles from Quebec City. His father is a chef at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec's most famous hotel.

Air Force band for Montclair series

One of the nation's leading military musical organizations, The Air Force Band of the Golden West is scheduled to perform in Montclair in the Civic Center's recreation facility — The Starlite Patio Theater. The concert the seventh event of the Patio's Summer Series, will be given next Tuesday at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

The band's program, "Sounds of '76," is designed to display the versatility and showmanship that have become the hallmark of the 45 piece unit.

Under the command and directorship of Air Force Lt. Daniel Schmidt and Assistant Conductor Senior Master Sergeant Donald Epstein, the band features special arrangements by Air Force bandsman and vocal soloists Airman First Class Gary Petete and Airman Lonnie Snyder, and fluglehornist Airman First Class John Daniels.

Festival of music scheduled

The festival of Nations, coming to the Starlight Bowl in Burbank on Aug. 7, is an extravaganza of music and dance and one of the most spectacular Bicentennial productions of the year.

Nothing on this scale has been done at the Bowl since Leo Damiani last conducted his Wonderful World of Youth Orchestra there. There is a cast of 300 — a 100-voice choir, the 60-piece orchestra, 40 dancers in the Panaieff Festival Ballet, consuls and dignitaries representing the nations in the 90-minute production, and more actors and dancers.

Michael Panaieff, choreographer and artistic director, has worked with Damiani for 20 years. He choreographed the last Festival of Nations at the Bowl in 1958.

Panaieff is famous in choreography for his storytelling.

Paintings of two artists on display

Two Claremont Graduate School artists are showing paintings in a free exhibit at Libra Gallery this week.

Ruth Knudson has six paintings under the title "Sky Larks." She uses air brushing of stuffed fabrics in her work, producing a three-dimensional effect.

Vance Lorenzini's section of the show is entitled "Off the Wall," and it is literally that. He uses latex rubber to lift part of the surface material from walls and fences for his paintings.

The artists will greet the public at a reception in the gallery at 8 Wednesday night. Both are master of arts students at CGS. Regular gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Libra Gallery is at 12th Street and Dartmouth Avenue.

Workshop planned for piano teachers

Ralph Pierce Music invited all piano teachers in the area to a free workshop on the technique of teaching beginning music students at 9:30 a.m. Friday. The workshop will meet at the music store at 822 N. Garey Ave., Pomona and will be conducted by a prominent music educator from Colorado, Eloise Ristad.

Ms. Ristad will explain some of her unique teaching techniques and show some of her recent publications in the field of student methods and music for performance for the Pomona class.

Anyone wishing to attend the class or to receive further information can phone Ralph Pierce Music at 623-5525.

Former executive has no regrets about quitting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last May, Robert D. Wood resigned as head of CBS-TV after more than seven successful years. He also quit New York to return to his favorite locale for living — sunny Southern California.

It was a surprising move, leaving the power, big salary and pin-striped perquisites of CBS in Fun City. But Wood, born in Idaho, raised in Beverly Hills, says he has no regrets about his decision.

"To be back here, with my friends, my family, back where I was raised — geez, there's no way I can describe my exhilaration," said Wood, his voice as cheery as the day he was interviewed.

The man who gave the nod to a bold new show called "All in the Family" in 1971 and began a revolution in situation comedy isn't a member of the shuffleboard set yet. He's only 51, still active in TV.

He now heads Nephi Productions, Nephi being the name of the small Idaho town where he spent his boyhood summers. The company will develop TV shows exclusively for CBS — which Wood joined in 1949 — for at least four years. He already has four projects on the drawing boards.

Joyce Brothers

Love, honor or sell?

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband is furious because I sold an ugly lamp his aunt gave us for a wedding gift and bought an antique brooch with the money. He admits he didn't like the lamp but says it was extravagant to buy the pin. He can't understand how much I wanted the pin for my jewelry collection. — M.J.

Dear M.J.: Too often, time and energy are wasted in arguing about issues that are only decoys for the real point of conflict. The question of your extravagence is superficial, as is your husband's inability to understand your appreciation of jewelry. What is more important is the underlying motivations.

One factor seems to be your insensitivity to the meaning a gift has for both the giver and the recipient. Even if the recipient doesn't like the gift, the giver's generosity and intent should not be discounted. In your husband's eyes, selling a gift from his aunt abused her gesture of generosity.

Also important is the fact that the lamp was a mutual possession and you failed to discuss the matter with him. Insult was compounded by your using the money to buy something for yourself alone.

The person who feels compelled to collect valuable or symbolically valuable possessions may be expressing a desire to create security rather than intrinsic appreciation of the things he buys. The phrase "diamonds are a girl's best friend" has more than humorous meaning for some. Not trusting in others, constantly anxious about the possibility of abandonment, jewelry becomes one source of permanent gratification.

The person who lavishes expensive gifts on himself is also reaffirming his worth as a person in his own eyes.

While your jewelry collecting may not be such an important feature of your life, it is possible that you sold the lamp and bought the brooch to reaffirm your own value and criticize your husband. After all, the "ugly" lamp from your husband's relative was replaced by something you considered "beautiful."

Try to recall the day you decided to sell the lamp. Were you depressed? Were you angry with your husband or any of your in-laws?

You might offer to return the brooch and buy back the lamp, if possible, although your husband may feel this is not necessary. His criticism of you as "extravagant" may have been meant as an accusation of thoughtlessness. This may be a good time for you to talk over your misunderstandings or grievances about family finances.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: There doesn't seem to be much question about Freddie and me being in love. Every moment apart is torture. But when we're not making love, we're fighting. I don't like his politics, his life style, his family or his opinion about most things. He feels the same about me. Sexually we have an ideal thing going and we are considering marriage. But, I don't think I could take the fighting. I know opposites are supposed to attract, but this seems a bit much. What's the matter with us? — O.S.

Dear O.S.: Maybe you don't like each other. It's quite possible to be sexually attracted to someone whom you wouldn't even have for a friend if it weren't for the immediate attraction. I can't imagine a woman being happily married to someone she couldn't be friendly with. You can't be "in love" all the time. You're going to have to spend a lot of time just talking to each other. Right now, marriage to each other would seem to be the worst thing you can do. I strongly recommend you carefully consider before you step into marriage.

Corona-Lovett vows repeated

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bert Corona have established a home in Pomona following their marriage at Mt. Baldy Village Church.

MRS. DANIEL CORONA

The former Miss Lynn Lovett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Eugene Lovett of Chino. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.N. Corona of Chino.

Honor attendent was Miss Sandy Cambis of Pomona. Best man was Glenn Corona of Santa Monica, brother of the groom.

Other attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Butch Giggy of Bakersfield, sister and brother-in-law of the couple.

The couple honeymooned at Las Vegas, Nev.

Film charted in Claremont

Preparing Expectant Parents, Inc., will show a film, "Becoming," at Claremont Library meeting room at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday. The group sponsors eight-week class sessions in the Lamaze techniques.

Information may be obtained by calling 621-2668 or 985-9985.

Referral service available

Troubled families and marriages experiencing crisis are finding assistance by calling S.A.F. (pronounced "safe"). Save-A-Family, (623-9769) is a hot line telephone referral service in the Pomona Valley.

The telephones are answered 24 hours each day and provide easy access to a qualified individual who knows how to listen, when to talk and where to refer for more help. Under the direction of the Staff of Pomona Counseling Service, the telephones are answered by licensed counselors who are members of American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors or of California Association of Marriage and Family Counselors and trained paraprofessionals. A caller will not be referred to Pomona Counseling Service.

The function of S.A.F. is to help people who are experiencing distress with marriage and family problems. If a person just needs to have someone listen, then S.A.F. is there for that.

Panel to review plans for 97-unit Claremont tract

Review of the architectural and site plans for a 97-unit residential development by John D. Lusk and Son south of Mirmar Avenue between Forbes and Bonnie Brae avenues will come before the Claremont Architectural Commission Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Baseline Recreation Center.

The applicant has submitted a detailed exterior elevation finish schedule with material and color schemes keyed to models, elevations and lot numbers.

The city staff indicated that the variety and nature of the elevations and floor plans is appropriate for that particular area.

The commission also will discuss:

— A proposed change in a permanent sign for Howard Johnson's. The applicant is proposing a double-faced sign directly below the existing feeway sign, partially hidden by eucalyptus trees for westbound traffic. The staff has recommended approval.

— A landscaping plan on the types of ground cover and shurbs for the large plaza area directly in front of the three-story office building for Griswold's east of Colby Circle and north of Foothill Boulevard.

— A back-up wall treatment along Mills Avenue and Base Line Road. The city in its subdivision review has been requiring a backup wall along the west side of Mills Avenue north of Base Line Road. Since five or six developers are involved, the staff is concerned that there be some uniformity without monotony.

— Subdivision standards and development of a rural ordinance for most of the 2.3 square miles in Annexation 52-A north of Base Line Road.

— Remodeling of a commercial structure at 102-108 Harvard Ave. by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davidson.

On campus

An intensive three-day course on government contracting and small business will be conducted at Kellogg West, CAL POLY POMONA on Aug. 4, 5 and 6.

The course will be presented by the community relations committee for the business management department at the School of Business at Cal Poly, the American Graduate University and Procurement Associates, Inc.

Serving as faculty for the seminars are Paul F. Weisend, professor of business management at Cal Poly; Paul R. McDonald Jr., vice president of Procurement Associates; Milton I. Drucker, president of the Drucker Group, consultants to management; and Allen A. Kaufman,, consultant and owner of RK Industries.

Additional information and registration may be obtained by contacting American Graduate University, 733 N. Dodsworth Ave., Covina.

CITRUS COLLEGE will conduct its second summer session from Aug. 2 to 27. Registrations will be held in the Admissions Office from 9 a.m. to noon on July 31.

Subjects offered cover a wide range of interests and include consumer education, business law, bicycling, intermediate tennis, introduction to theater arts and Latin American history.

A complete list of courses and additional information may be obtained from the Evening Division Office, located in the Administration Building, or by calling 599-5773.

LA VERNE COLLEGE Alumni Family Club is open to all alumni and their families for $40 annually.

Membership includes Student Center workouts after work with individual lockers for members; first night preference at Dailey Theater productions; 14 per cent discount to members for yoga classes of children's gymnastic classes; free movies on Friday nights; membership in the La Verne College Tennis Club; special alumni tournaments in various sports; and free attendance at any LVC sports event.

Fred Warner Neal of CLAREMONT GRADUATE SCHOOL will discuss his recent interviews in Moscow with Soviet leaders during a public lecture at the Claremont Colleges Tuesday night.

There is no charge for the talk, "Detente, the Politburo and the Presidential Election," at 7:45 p.m. in Galileo Hall, Claremont.

Neal is chairman of the American Committee on U.S.-Soviet Relations, a group of distinguished Americans dedicated to improving relations between the two powers. He was in Moscow from June 6 to 15 on behalf of the committee.

CAL POLY POMONA will start two summer extension courses this week.

"Art in the Dark," a three-unit course designed for teachers, will explore the uses of the slide, overhead and opaque projectors in teaching drawing and painting. The class will be from Thursday through Aug. 19 on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. in Building 9.

"Sport and Agression" will start Tuesday and continue to Aug. 26. The class meets Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Cal Poly Gymnasium.

Registration will be accepted at the first class sessions and further information may be obtained by calling 598-4391.

Two representatives from the CITRUS COLLEGE District have been selected as delegates to the 50th annual conference of the California School Employes Association from Aug. 2 to 6 in Sacramento.

Clarence Frost and Jim Pierce will represent Citrus CSEA Chapter 101.

CHAFFEY COLLEGE has announced the dates of tests for admission to the fall quarter court reporting classes at its Ontario-Montclair Center.

The tests may be taken during the preregistration for the program from 8 a.m. to noon on Aug. 23 and 24 (day classes) and 6 to 9 p.m. (night classes.) Tests will also be given from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Sept. 13 and 6 to 9 p.m. Sept. 14 at the center, 4650 Howard St., Montclair.

Successful completion of typing skill, English language and finger dexterity are prerequisite for enrollment in the two-year program which is accredited by the California Shorthand Reporters board.

More information and class schedules may be obtained by calling 628-7613.

SCRIPPS COLLEGE will offer a five-year dual B.A.-B.S. program in engineering with Stanford University beginning with the 1976-77 academic year.

In the program, qualified Scripps students would transfer to Stanford after their junior year. After completion of courses at both institutions, the student will obtain degrees from both. Scripps currently offered five bachelor of arts — master of arts degree options. Four are joint programs with Claremont Graduate School and the fifth, in business administration, is with the University of Chicago.

Chino board gives school chief high marks on work

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino Schools Supt. Royce Lapp, often the center of controversy in the past, received a good grade from the school board Monday night on his accomplishments during 1975-76.

The board reviewed his report on attempts to meet goals he had set for himself over the past year, and commented favorably. They also seemed pleased with Lapp's future goals for the 1976-77 school year.

"I personally found the goals and objectives as helpful to me," said board President Al McCombs. "It revealed progress by the administration."

Trustee Pete Vander Poel, who agreed with McCombs, noted however, that some material was "superficial. People want to know what is being used to arrive at this and what is to be accomplished."

Vander Poel suggested that each goal be looked at closely at various board meetings. "And bring each person involved in this into the discussion."

The board made it clear that it was difficult to review all of Lapp's goals and accomplishments at one meeting, and do an adequate job.

Accomplishments over 1975-76 listed by Lapp included development of a management team concept, changes to meet the growing student population, decentralized management, involving the public in decisions, affirmative action policy improvements. Also, student achievement, in testing and other areas, and staff development were listed as accomplishments.

Trustee Augustine Tapia said that while progress was evident among the Spanish-surnamed in the affirmative action program, "we ought to get other minorities in the district involved. Women, Vietnamese, veternas, and the handicapped should also be in the program," he said.

Lapp said there has actually been "no progress" on the status of women in the district, although the goal was listed.

As to student testing, Tapia said, "We have tests without knowing what goals they are measuring."

Students involvement at board meetings was discussed briefly, with the conclusion reached that pupils cannot be expected to participate in dialogue with the board at every meeting. It is desirable to have them attend the meetings, the board agreed.

Lapp's goals for 1976-77 include continuing many of the same programs, and increasing parent and staff involvement.

In other action, board members finally reached a decision on what to do with Buena Vista Continuation High School. They approved the proposed purchase of a new 5-acre site for the school on Ramona Avenue between Schaeffer and Chino avenues. It would be moved from its present location on the Magnolia School site.

School secret out in open in Walnut: flat pay increases

By PEGGY GONZALES
PB Staff Writer

Guarded as if they were gold, two Walnut board responses to salary and benefit proposals containing flat dollar pay increases of $375 annually for teachers and $21 monthly for non-teaching employes were made public Monday night.

The documents were distributed simultaneously to employes and the press.

The flat dollar pay increase proposals contrasted with traditional percentage raises.

Each response contained a flat dollar pay increase proposal rather than the traditional percentage raise.

For teachers the annual increase offered was $375. Classified employes were offered a $21 monthly increase.

The document for teachers didn't contain an ounce of glitter for Charles Sismondo, president of the Walnut Valley Educators Association.

"It's totally unacceptable to the teachers," he said, adding that it benefits people at the bottom of the scale.

His comments were made after the meeting, before he and other teachers went into a huddle to try to determine the total significance of the board's proposal.

Thirty-six pages long, it contained such headings as employe freedom, association rights and employe hours, days and duty obligations.

Teachers previously had submitted a salary schedule proposal constituting approximately a 12 per cent pay raise. Classified (nonteaching) employes had asked for a 12.2 per cent increase.

Both will have a chance to respond to the board's response at the next board meeting.

If classified employes were present they were silent.

Asked by the press for a translation of the trustees' salary schedule in percentage terms, Ray W. McMullen, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel and staff development, said doing so would take a lot of explanation and more time than was available before press deadline.

Examination of the salary schedule proposed by teachers showed that a teacher entering his third year with a bachelor's degree plus 45 semester units or his master's degree would receive a raise of $1,409.

Board members opened their brief public meeting by approving a policy statement on their role in the employer-employe relations process under the state Rodda Act.

David L. Brown, superintendent, called particular attention to a statement within the policy that the public school program would give "first and most concern to the interests of the students and their efforts to gain the best education possible to fit them for a productive life in our society."

Richard Vind, board member, complained that two-thirds of the 44-page document presented to the board by the teachers dealt with identification of teacher responsibilities.

"What about educating the kids?" he asked.

Donn C. Morris, Walnut High School teacher, countered, "I resent your implication that we are not interested in teaching. It's something we chose to do and love to do."

Vind said Morris had read something not meant into the board's statement. After the meeting the two got together and agreed their only differences in the matter were in terminology.

Legislators hear female inmate pleas for education, training

California Institution for Women inmates Monday suggested to a state Assembly committee that qualified teachers from the inmate ranks be hired as regular instructors for academic and vocational classes.

During the special hearing of the Assembly Select Committee on Corrections at the Chino women's institution, the inmates also suggested that legislation be passed which would permit more courses in vocations.

These would help inmates reentering society earn "enough to support their families," and community correctional centers should be established to provide the necessary training, inmates said.

Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, chairman of the Select Committee, said the purpose of the hearing "was to continue receiving testimony from individuals relative to the educational program with California state prisoners.

"I would like to make special mention of the fact that far too long this institution (CIW) has been a stepchild in the CDC (California Department of Corrections) system. This fact has led to a policy of neglect and general apathy toward CIW. I, for one, believe the problems of women who are imprisoned are equal to those of men, and in some respects, even more critical."

The committee members at CIW, including Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., Alatorre, and Floyd Mori, said they would take the suggestions of the inmates under advisement.

The inmates told the committee that most of the women would prefer more vocational training than is currently being offered, saying at least 20 updated vocations should be available.

Montclair girl dies in traffic crash

Funeral services are pending for a 14-year-old Montclair girl who was fatally injured in an auto accident near Kingman, Ariz., late Sunday.

Linda S. Mattock of 9580 Poulsen Ave., riding in an eastbound car driven by her mother Ruth, was killed when the auto collided with a westbound vehicle on U.S. 66 Sunday at 10:30 p.m., the highway patrol said.

Mrs. Mattock was reported in satisfactory condition today at Mojave General Hospital in Kingman after suffering chest and arm injuries. Her daughter was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

Driver of the other car, Stanley R. Clarno, 43, of Kenwick, Wash., was not injured, Patrolmen said. His passenger, Peter Martel, 25, of Silver City, N.M., also escaped injury.

Undercover agent on job at fairgrounds—Hollywood style

Actor James Franciscus was an undercover man on the trail of villain gamblers as movie cameras ground away Monday at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

Franciscus, hero in many television series, is the star of a $1.2 million G-rated comedy "The Amazing Dobermans" being made by producer David Chudnow and his director son Byron Chudnow.

It is the third movie by the pair involving Dobermans. The first in the series, "The Doberman Gang," cost under $200,000, and grossed $4 million.

The second movie, "The Return of the Dobermans," was sequel, and did as well.

The latest production has no tie-in with the other two.

The film being made by Rosamond Productions deals with Franciscus as "Lucky," and undercover man seeking to nail some bigtime gamblers, played by Jim Almanzar and Charles Brill.

Franciscus goes to work in the circus and his cover is that of a trainer of a Doberman act.

Fred Astaire plays the part of a wise, old con man who becomes Franciscus' partner by lending him his Dobermans.

Barbara Eden adds the romantic thrust to the movie by playing a bareback rider and falling in love with "Lucky."

The movie is being produced on the lines of a Walt Disney film. The fact that violence is only implied will help its G-rating.

A scene was shot in the grandstand Monday morning, with another scene filmed in the stable area in the afternoon when "Lucky" phones the bad guys for a loan so he can have closer contact with them.

Several members of the Mt. San Antonio College drama club gained some valuable experience as extras during the shooting.

Other scenes will be shot in Simi Valley.

The movie is scheduled for release in November.

Stabbed youth still critical

James Harzman, the 17-year-old Azusa youth found beaten and stabbed 33 times July 13 in San Gabriel Canyon, remains in critical condition in County-USC Medical Center.

Harzman, who went unidentified for several days after being found, has been conscious but unable to speak. Sheriff's deputies lack a motive for the attack and report no new developments in the case.

Capitol pig sty

Although the reconstruction work on the State Capitol, which went into full swing following the summer recessing of the Legislature, will not substantially affect the modern East Wing Annex, the Governor's Office within it is in shambles.

Built as a showcase for the State's Chief Executive, it has become, under Governor Jerry Brown, a focal point for demonstrators.

So far the intruders have only succeeded in making a mess of the reception room and the conference room immediately adjacent. The governor's formal and private offices as well as those of his staff are behind locked doors which have not been penetrated as yet.

Visitors to the office with business to conduct have been appalled at the degredation of the office. For most of the month of July the rooms have been pre-empted by a lie-in of mental patients protesting treatment at the state hospitals. They have converted the office into a pig sty as unwashed, they eat and sleep in the quarters. Some apparently lack control of their body functions as the smell of urine permeates. Their hand lettered signs of complaints adorn the walls where once hung picturesque oil scenes of California's glories.

The mental patients are but just one of numerous groups which have been tolerated by the governor's permissive policies towards various sit-ins and other types of demonstrations.

It all started soon after Brown took office. He ordered the two huge entrance doors swung wide presumably as symbolic of an "openness in government". Thereafter he permitted the offices to be turned into exhibition halls as different ethnic groups displayed purported evidences of their cultures.

Soon the exhibitions turned into demonstrations and escalated into lie-ins. Not only has no action been taken to stop this usurpation of the state's principal business office, it has been encouraged as top state visit and jolly with the demonstrators.

The attitude towards it all is a far cry from the day when the Legislature enacted a measure aimed at one picketer, the 95 year old ex-minister Robert Simpson, who plagued the halls with his Anglo-Saxon definitions of the governor and other state officials. Despite the law Simpson persisted in marching through the halls and was arrested more than 100 times. The courts refused to jail him and eventually the law was repealed.

The "Simpson" law was obviously not the right answer. People do have the right to petition their government and it should not be abridged. But that right does not include a license to disrupt the normal operations of government.

Many others, besides the demonstrators, have legitimate business to conduct in the State Capitol and the governor's offices. It would seem the governor and the Legislature have a duty to see to it that they are not interfered with by activists.

The current situation suggests the need for restricting the demonstrators to the Capitol steps. If people feel so strongly on an issue that they want to stage sit-ins, there is adequate space in the Capitol Park for them to camp.

As liberal as the legislators may be, they have acted to curtail what they deemed a conversion of the state Motor Vehicle Department into a cultural and welfare operation by eliminating funds for murals and child care centers. The solons should take an equally tough stand with respect to the Capitol. Certainly they should explain to the governor that his offices are not public campgrounds.

'Watch' our comeback

Striking proof (no pun intended) that the United States still sets the pace in advanced product technology is found in the phenomenal growth of the digital watch industry.

Digital watches are those little electronic jobs using light-emitting diodes (LEDs), which at the touch of a button show the time in hours and minutes and in some cases seconds, as well as the month and day.

For decades the American watch industry saw its share of the market declining in the face of competition from other nations, especially the Swiss. But now the Swiss and Japanese and other foreign watchmakers have found themselves left high and dry by the surge of American companies, backed by modern electronics technology, in the new field of digital watches. The result, as Business Week recently reported, has been to bring watchmaking leadership back to the United States.

"We sold over 300,000 digital watches last year and we expect to do even better this year," says Eugene Gluck, president of E. Gluck Corp., the nation's No. 3 watch company in terms of unit sales.

As additional proof of the continuing vitality of the American free enterprise system, it is interesting to note that Gluck came to the United States in the 1940s as a wartime refugee from Europe and started his company from scratch. It now sells nearly three million watches of all types a year.

Parking is big business

Dear Editor:

As a graduating senior at Cal Poly University, I can sympathize with the letter (July 21) that criticized the Cal Poly parking system.

Each quarter (10 weeks) every student and instructor is required to pay a $10 parking fee. That means that a total of approximately 12,500 people pay a total of $125,000 each quarter or $500,000 a year. WHERE DOES ALL THIS MONEY GO? Probably to perpetuate the problem of paying the salaries of the petulant parking patrol!

I am not suggesting that Cal Poly should have no parking patrol. But why not charge a nominal fee ($1) and reduce the number of officers, leaving only enough to ticket those who illegally park? Mt. Sac does not charge a parking fee and Mt. Sac's enrollment is larger than Cal Poly's.

It would simply be good public relations for Cal Poly to provide a free parking lot for the community to use during evening hours and weekends.

It's time for Cal Poly to change its parking system. People are more important than unnecessary bureaucratic rules.

Financial disclosure

Dear Editor,

Most of us have assumed that after Watergate the necessary legislative measures were taken to avoid similar problems throughout government. This is not totally true. Congress has failed to clean up its own house. Although the Senate has acted responsibly on both Lobby Disclosure, S 2477 (passed 6/15) and Financial Disclosure, S 495 (expected to pass soon) the House of Representatives has allowed both of their reform bills to stall for 17 months in the Judiciary Committee chaired by Peter Rodino! Both of the House bills have substantial co-sponsorship: 165 for Lobby Disclosure and 168 for Financial Disclosure. These bills cope effectively with the major sources of corruption among politicians.

The House has had 2 years to act on these bills but is stalling with less than 50 working days remaining of the 94th Congress.

Although Representative Lloyd co-sponsored the Financial Disclosure bill it is now critical that he take a leadership role in urging Chairman Rodino to act to bring both bills to the floor.

Furthermore, voters who want to avoid political corruption should take time out to write a strong word to their Representatives to see that the House acts on these bills. Chairman Rodino should also hear from us. He did such a superb job during the Watergate hearings that one finds it hard to understand his delay in bringing these bills to the floor. The Senate has acted 3 times in the past 4 years with good financial disclosure legislation, only to have it die for the House's failure to take similar action. Let's let the House of Representatives know we haven't forgotten Watergate!

The real Pat Moynihan

WASHINGTON — The quixotic Daniel Patrick Moynihan, despite his cherubic cheeks and angelic blue eyes, still has the roguish look of an oversized Irish leprechaun.

There is mischief behind the blissful eyes, pugnaciousness behind the professional manner. He came out of the sweltering New York City slum known as Hell's Kitchen, graduated cum laude from Tufts and taught at Harvard. There is a vestiage of both environments in Moynihan today.

He made a national name for himself in the White House as Richard Nixon's resident Democrat. Now Moynihan is in full pursuit of a seat in the Senate.

He was in constant hot water while he served Nixon. Moynihan's statement that blacks should be treated with "benign neglect," for example, raised a howl from Harlem to Watts. But if his lack of tact aggravated the grim Nixon crowd, he shrugged off their criticisms with a fast quip and a bit o'blarney.

President Ford appointed Moynihan to be his United Nations ambassador. The irrepressible Irishman lasted only eight months. His trigger-tongue remarks, accusing just about the entire Third World of anti-Semitism, created an uproar around the world.

Moynihan's plunge into elective politics hasn't softened his abrasive nature nor silenced his blunt tongue. We intercepted him at the Democratic convention to ask whether he expected Jimmy Carter to campaign for him. "Presidents do not campaign for senators," Moynihan said, "senators campaign for Presidents."

He was even more testy with a young interviewer from the New York Public Interest Research Group. We have a tape of the unpublished interview, which reveals Moynihan in full flamboyance.

He looked over the prepared questions with an imperious eye and characterized them as "something you would get in a freshman course in comparative government in a not very good community college."

Asked what U.S. foreign policy should be toward the white regimes of Rhodesia and South Africa, he grumped: "that's not a good question . . . It's just not a good question." Then he added crisply: "What do you mean, 'What should be our foreign policy?' . . . You're talking to a man who has been an ambassador three times. Do you want a five-word answer?"

Which energy source, he was asked later, should be given first priority. "Don't be ridiculous. Don't be ridiculous," he snapped. "You're talking about the nature of the 20th-century economy."

Then he turned on the interviewer, Chris Aidun, a college senior. "What are you studying?" demanded Moynihan.

"Economics," said Aidun.

"Economics," mimicked the Irishman. "You are not yet an economist. Please don't ask ridiculous questions."

Moments later, he recommended that the interviewer read a book entitled "On Equality of Educational Opportunity," which Moynihan happened to coauthor. "It's the definitive work on the subject," he said immodestly.

Which programs would he support, asked Aidun, to improve the conditions of the elderly?

"Of the elderly? To improve their condition?" echoed Moynihan. "In what respect, make them younger?"

He added impatiently: "I don't understand how we can improve the condition of the elderly. That's a meaningless sentence. If you can't ask a meaningful question, don't ask at all."

There was another question about his "greatest weakness," as he saw it. Probably, he said, "an indisposition to answer such questions."

Footnote: In fairness to the feisty Moynihan, he is not really cavalier about the issues. He has taken staunch stands in favor of human rights, full employment, national health insurance and family assistance to the impoverished.

Moynihan explained to us that he had been abrupt with the interviewer because he seemed to want simple answers to complex questions.

Paul Harvey

So you're an 'only child'...

Because young Paul is an "only child" the Harveys are more than casually interested in the problems and prospects for "onlies." After all, we have all our eggs in one basket, so to speak. And from generations past the only-child stereotype was expected to be spoiled, maladjusted.

The Encyclopedia of Child Care and Guidance published in 1954 referred to "the lonely onlies." The Newton Kugelmass book on Child Care published in 1959 referred to the only child as "self-centered, overprotected, immature." And then, as recently as 1976, researchers thought to leaf through "Who's Who" and, among those persons who have most distinguished themselves — guess what? For an only child to use that as an excuse for anything is a cop-out. Each human, born under whatever cirumstances, ultimately has problems, shortcomings, and each must try to place the blame elsewhere.

The child of a black family, or a big family or a broken family or a rich family or a poor family — at some time will try to excuse his own inadequacy by blaming that blackness, that bigness, that brokenness, that richness or that poorness.

And the only child, also. But starting today he's going to have to find some other excuse for his own inadequacy. Because Franklin Delano Roosevelt was an only child. So was author Robert Louis Stevenson and Supreme Court Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

Other onlies who became giants include India's president, Indira Gandhi, and symphony conductor Antonia Brico and many of our astronauts. And Lena Horne and Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr.

Studies of the student body at Wake Forest show onlies well within the normal range of American college students on two scales of personality adjustment, extraversion, introversion and neuroticism.

"Onlies are no more neurotic nor lonely than anyone else." In leadership effectiveness and verbal IQ, the onlies scored higher than average. The new research — and I am drawing from three separate sources — is not designed to make onlies feel less sorry for themselves but it should have that effect.

What are the odds for the only child to find happiness in marriage? For a woman-only the chances of a lasting marriage are good. For a man, there is a higher rate of separation and divorce — and this is especially true where two onlies marry. The only male child tends to marry later than other men.

About one in 20 Americans is an only child. They are not disadvantaged. And parents contemplating a family, based on the best present knowledge, can now forget the old wives' tales and can evaluate the options in accordance with their own desire.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

In the eternal battle of the sexes there is such a thing as damning a woman with faint praise. It takes a really courageous male chauvinist to do it but some forthright individuals, given the proper opportunity, are equal to the task. Like that doctor, for instance, who at a recent conference of the American Medical Association told his audience: "The female's greater proportion of body fat provides greater endurance."

Ray Cromley

Lobby groups offer wares

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — National political conventions are giant trade fairs.

John Gardner was at the recent Democratic national meeting from Common Cause. Not to boost Jimmy Carter — Gardner is a Republican. But, with a bevy of assistants numbering between 15 and 25, he was there to buttonhole the estimated 400 to 500 Common Cause members at the Convention from all over the nation, whip them into a concerted 50-state campaign to get through two measures Gardner is pushing now — bills that would require detailed reports by lobbying organizations and thorough financial disclosures by congressmen.

The Gardner campaign was as organized as Carter's. Each Common Cause member was to make it personally clear to his congressman that he was expected to work to get these bills out of committee unscathed and vote for them on the floor. Each senator was to be pressured on the financial disclosure bill, the lobbying measure having passed that chamber.

Congressmen up for election were to be told that if they did not cooperate, their lack of effort, or their negative vote would be used against them publicly in the campaigns this fall.

Gardner and his group have a powerful lever in that several hundred of the delegates and alternates, many politically prominent at home, and numbers of the candidates and their wives, are Common Cause members, including Mrs. Jimmy Carter and her husband.

Whether or not the Gardner-Common Cause effort will succeed is another matter. Members of Congress have been notoriously coy about revealing their financial holdings, their business connections, their stock and commodity trading, their legal clients and incomes in detail — and it is likely in the minds of most observers I've talked to that the financial disclosure bills will remain stalled in committee or emasculated before they reach the House and Senate floors.

The same fate may be in store for the publicity-for-lobbyists bill in the House, though there's a little more hope here in that the measure did get through the Senate.

But Common Cause was not the only group offering wares at the convention. Also pressing their special interests were the Labor Coalition, National Amnesty Council, Black Leaders Democratic Caucus, Italian American Committee, Right to Life, Gay Rights Caucus, New Democratic Coalition, National Organization for Women, Americans for Democratic Action, the Ralph Nader organizations, National Abortion Rights Action League, Energy Action Caucus, United Farm Workers, Machinists, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, Longshoremen, Electrical Workers, National Education Association and the Friends of Animals, Inc. (advocating a boycott of tuna).

A hookers group was on the fringe.

Though the Democratic presidential nomination had been sewn up well before the convention, a bevy of men and women were there establishing a base of future years.

Jerry Brown of California was campaigning for Brown, building contacts and setting alliances virtually until the last delegates headed for home — more than a day after Carter had received the formal votes, the nomination and the Brown oath of allegiance.

Mo Udall's withdrawal, his releasing of delegates pledged to him and his personal pledge to become a Carter worker were as much a plea for Udall votes at the convention as a concession of defeat.

But Brown and Udall were not alone. The lobbies of the convention hotels were filled with candidates for almost every conceivable office, future candidates and those desiring to move up in the party structure, each seeking to make his name known to those in power and to others who might be useful in the future.

In short, it was a typical convention.

Parents tried their best

Dear Ann Landers: What wisom, consulation or advice can you give parents in their 50s who have worked hard to achieve the American dream, loved their kids and tried to give them the best world ever? We are also the unhappiest.

Many of our children are on drugs, unemployed drop-outs, migrants, drifters, angry with the world, hostile toward us and out-of-joint with society.

How much and for how long should parents pay, in terms of self-recrimination, worry, disappointment and financial support? How can we enjoy the years that are left to us now that we have more money, fewer business pressures and are still in fairly good health?

It's heart-breaking to see our kids maladjusted, disoriented and unable to cope. We can't help but feel we are to blame. After all, they are our sons and daughters. We raised them. Where is the cutoff line? Do you have any answers? — Meant Well Parents

Dear Meant Well: To you and the thousands of other parents who are miserable because of "what you have done" to your children, I say this: Stop beating yourselves. You did the best you could with the tools at hand — inexperience, clay feet, the works. No one knows why some children turn out to be champions in spite of parents who provided precious little emotional nourishment, while other kids — loved, wanted, tenderly nurtured, with all the so-called advantages — turn out perverse, estranged, and unable to cope.

I have come to believe in the genetic factor which has been ignored by many behavioral "experts." We all inherit our nervous systems and if the nervous system is fragile, it places severe limitations on what a person can tolerate. Certain individuals are born survivors. They can withstand life's harshest blows and emerge the stronger for it. Others crumble in the face of minor adversity. The same fire that melts butter can make steel strong.

And let us not overlook personal responsibility. I am sick of hearing children blame their parents for their messed-up lives. People with all sorts of handicaps can and DO make it in this demanding and competitive world.

For those who are hooked on dope, there are drug abuse centers with trained personnel, eager and waiting to help. For individuals who need professional counseling, there are mental health clinics. The self-help groups do a remarkable job — and they are free. Alcoholics Anonymous, Gamblers Anonymous, Recovery, Inc. The list is endless.

Enough of this "You damaged me, now take care of me" nonsense. It's a cop-out. Parental guilt laid on by our kids is so thick you can cut it with a knife. It serves no purpose except to perpetuate financial and emotional dependence and create a climate of hostility, punishment and ultimate failure.

CONFIDENTIAL to The Best Is Yet To Come?: Well, maybe it came and you were out. Success is that point in life at which opportunity and preparation meet. The reason some people don't recognize opportunity is because it often comes disguised as hard work.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Lab tests reveal data on kissing

Nineteen out of every 20 kisses are harmless, transmitting only germs of an innocuous sort. But that one in every 20 is really a pip. In its 278 colonies of bacteria, it can send along colds, flu, pneumonia, even mono, tuberculosis, strep throat. The longer the kiss, the germier, sure enough. Young men and women at City College in Baltimore proved the foregoing in extensive laboratory experiments wherein they sat around for many days unimaginatively kissing glass slides.

Q. "How long does the average $1 bill last? How many does the government burn every year?"

A. About 13 months is a fair longevity average. And $1.2 Million's worth tossed into the incinerator annually.

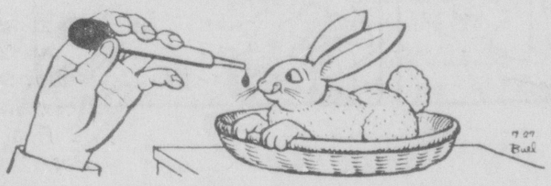
Feeding rabbit with eyedropper



DEAR DR. MILLER: Bottle-feeding very young puppies is a cinch. Very young kittens are a lot harder. With them, I do better with an eyedropper. Baby rabbits are harder still. Is there any secret to getting food down them with an eyedropper? — S.N.

DEAR S.N.: The formula (it must be high in fat and protein for rabbits) is best fed if you squeeze out one drop so it hangs from the tip of the dropper, and then let the baby lick it off. Repeat with another drop dangling from the dropper and allow the baby to lick again. Baby rabbits may seek and swallow food offered this way when they would fight and refuse the dropper if inserted in the mouth.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Big Red's a boneheaded Irish setter who never gets enough exercise. I'm getting a 15-speed bike that I think's going to solve that problem. I realize there are some hazards. How can I avoid them? — T.K.

DEAR T.K.: Even if Big Red weren't a bonehead, he'd have trouble handling that bike. Shifting the gears, for example, could be a bit complicated for him. Should you decide to take over the bike, his hazards aren't markedly decreased. Even if he's trained to run behind the bike, there are insurmountable traffic problems in most places. Bikeways away from automobile traffic, aren't all that safe, either, for he could still be battered by other bicycles, or vice versa. Should you somehow find an ideal remote spot to exercise him safely, be sure it's done in the cool of the morning or evening. A canine's air-conditioning system is progressively less efficient as the temperature and humidity rise, and the need for body cooling rises proportionately with the amount of exercise. Consequently, hard exercise which undoubtedly is beneficial to Big Red in cool weather becomes dangerous or downright deadly when it's hot.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We had a cat, an incurable clawer, who kept tearing up our furniture no matter what we tried. We ended up putting it to sleep rather than declawing it. Our daughter has been pleading for another cat, and we finally agreed. Would it be better to just go ahead and have it declawed when we get one, rather than doing something later? — D.F.

DEAR D.F.: On the basis of recent history, "doing something later" sounds ominous. Declawing can qualify as cruel and unusual punishment, particularly during the post-operative and prolonged convalescent period. Still, cats themselves, given the choice between surgery and survival versus immediate extinction, would invariably opt for surgery. Even so, I'd discourage such surgery on the young cat. At least allow its body (feet in particular) to develop completely first. There's also the vital consideration that most cats don't require declawing. Cats can be trained to a varying degree — using positive reinforcement — and when provided suitable options and encouragement, very rarely resort to destructive clawing.

Something about tennis

So many people have been asking me if I am playing better tennis this year.

Mainly, they have been the people who played me last year.

I am happy to report that, although my form is much the same, I have picked up a few tricks of the court that I have seen professionals use, which is bound to improve my game.

I have finally mastered what to do with the second tennis ball. Having small hands, I was becoming terribly self-conscious about keeping it in a can in the car, while I served the first one. I noted some women tucked the second ball just inside the elastic leg of their tennis panties. I tried, but found the space already occupied by a leg. Now I simply drop the second ball down my cleavage, giving me a chest that often stuns my opponent throughout ane ntire set.

Next, I have learned how to stall, thus throwing my entire opponent's game off. It's called the old tie-the-shoe-trick. When your opponent is ready to serve, simply drop to your knees, untie your shoes, rearrange its tongue, and tie it again. Baseball players use the old stall all the time. (Cincinnati Reds pitcher Pat Zachry recently swallowed his chewing tobacco and threw up against a dugout wall. I haven't mastered at what hour I can throw up. Sometimes, it is during a return.)

Another play is the rearrange-the-strings number. Never take the rap for a bad return or no return. Whenever you hit a ball into the net or miss it entirely, bring the game to a grinding halt by checking the strings of your racket, spending sometimes as much as five minutes separating them and testing their strength. This absolves you of any of the responsiblity for a bad shot.

Forget all you have been told about concentration. It is overrated. Often, when there is time during one of my lobs, I yell across the net, "Your zipper is open," and have not only been ignored, but soundly punished for my good deed.

Probably my greatest accomplishment this year has been my skill at learning to play the game called, "Run Around the Backhand."

Early in my tennis career, I used to think when a ball landed to the left of me I had to use my backhand to return it. I have since learned that anything is better, including straddling a 15-foot cyclone fence.

No doubt about it — every day in every way, my game grows stronger. I saw one enthusiast the other day playing with his racket out of the press. I'll have to try that.

Two kinds of hepatitis

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter has infectious hepatitis. Her doctor says there is no cure for it and she probably got the virus from food served at a restaurant. Will you comment on the disease? If you have a Health Letter telling more about it I would appreciate getting it.

DEAR READER — There are two kinds of viral hepatitis, one comes from food and the other from needles or blood and plasma transfusions. The type one gets from food usually strikes within six weeks after exposure and the other type between six weeks and six months after exposure.

The food type results from contamination of food or water sources with the virus, usually from sewage or fecal contamination. Contaminated oyster reefs are one source but certainly not the only one or even the main one.

I am sending you The Health Letter you asked for, number 7-8, Living with Your Liver. Others who want this issue on how the liver functions and its main diseases can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

Viral hepatitis from food or water contamination is more common than many realize. It is almost epidemic in some parts of the world. In its severe form it can cause jaundice and severe liver disfunction. In milder forms it may not cause any jaundice at all and may appear as a mild case of gastroenteritis. In most cases the person recovers without any significant residual damage at all.

It is obvious from what I have said that the many mild cases require no treatment. Most people don't even know they have had it. Even people with jaundice with infectious hepatitis usually recover without residual liver damage. In some cases a smoldering case of hepatitis persists.

You can prevent infectious hepatitis from food and water contamination for about six months by taking one shot of pooled gamma globulin. You may even prevent it if you have already been exposed. For example, if several people ate at a restaurant and some of the people then developed hepatitis it is presumed the others have been exposed too. These people can all be given pooled gamma globulin and the attack prevented or its severity greatly diminished. Anyone getting to an area of the world where food and water sanitation are poor is wise to have a shot of pooled gamma globulin in advance to protect them from infectious hepatitis.

DEAR DR. LAMB — On reading the book, "Lou Gehrig" I find the Mayo Clinic diagnosed his disease as amytrophic lateral sclerosis. This illness involves the motor pathway and cells of the central nervous system. Mr. Gehrig died in 1941. Since that time what has been the medical progress on treatment and-or cure of this disease if any?

DEAR READER — Essentially none. The ability to cure many of the diseases of the central nervous system continues to elude medical science. In many instances the basic cause of many of the illnesses remains obscure or unknown.

There has been some improvement in providing symptomatic support but that is certainly not a cure. And I would remind you that there are wide differences in cases. The disease is a bad one, but there are atypical cases that appear to have periods of arrest of symptoms that may last for years before the disease progresses. Only the doctor in charge of an individual case, familiar with all the findings and the speed of changes, can really say what to expect in an individual case.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Long shots are not likely to pay off today, but hard work will. Bank on the muscles in your arm, not the spots on the dice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be tempted today to embellish the facts a bit rather than to tell it like it is. No one will believe your tall tales.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll wind up disappointed today if you expect too much from friends. Don't put them on the spot by being overly demanding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your impulsive generosity could cause you remorse later on. Keep within limits you can afford, not what you think is expected.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you're aware of details. Today, you'll see only the big picture. Re-check all facts and figures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today is not as gainful as it could have been, because you'll use faulty business judgment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be watchful today that you're not careless or wasteful with things that belong to others. It could cost you a friendship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually you're a fairly lucky person, but today you'd better rely more on your abilities. Dame Fortune's a fickle lady!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In an attempt to impress others today, you may take on projects beyond your capabilities. You have nothing to gain but embarrassment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you take a flyer today, do it on your own rather than on the advice of casual acquaintances. A wrong move could cost you some bucks.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be fair with others today, but don't short yourself for individuals who don't really deserve it. They wouldn't do it for you.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand is typical of the hands shown in the auction bridge columns and books of 50 or 60 years ago. South bid one notrump and everyone would pass since in auction you got credit for all over tricks below the line.

West would open the three of spades and the defense would gather in four spade tricks. East would signal with the 10 of diamonds on the fourth spade and West would lead a diamond.

South would take his ace of diamonds and cash four club tricks. West would discard three diamonds.

Now South would cash his ace and queen of hearts and finesse for West's jack in order to score nine tricks and win the rubber.

The author would explain that the finesse was a sure thing. If West had held a five-card diamond suit he would have opened it. In auction you led your longest suit against notrump. Woe betide any iconoclast who violated that rule. Hence, when West shoed out on the second club lead he was marked with 4-4-4-1 distribution.

A contract declarer would probably make the same play, but it would not be a sure thing. Contract players don't always lead their longest suit.

Ask the Jacobys

We continue to get questions about whether honors only count if held by declarer.

The answer is that if a defender holds honors his side gets credit. If dummy or declarer holds honors his side gets credit.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHERE DOES BLACK PEPPER COME FROM?"

SAMANTHA SHAKE
HAMILTON, OH

A. BLACK PEPPER IS A SPICE THAT COMES FROM THE CRUSHED, DRIED BERRIES OF THE PEPPER PLANT WHICH GROWS IN INDONESIA AND OTHER HOT COUNTRIES.

The familiar black pepper we season our food with comes from the crushed, dried berries of the pepper plant which grows in such faraway places as Indonesia and other hot countries.

The pepper plant bears clusters of small green berries about the size of peas, which turn red as they ripen.

For black pepper the berries are gathered when they begin to turn red and are still unripe. This is the period when they have the most peppery flavor.

The berries are then spread out in the sun to dry. As they dry, the berries shrivel and harden into black peppercorns. It is a simple matter to grind them to obtain the black pepper we sprinkle on our food.

White pepper is made from the ripe berries of the same pepper plant. To make white pepper the outer coat, or skin, is removed from the white seed of the peppercorn before grinding.

White pepper has a finer flavor, but is not so strong as black pepper.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, Ca 95061.

U.S. cagers go for gold medal tonight

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States, which now appears to have very little chance of leading the Olympics in either gold or total medals, looks to its basketball team for the restoration of misplaced prestige tonight.

"We came here to play for the gold medal, and that's what we're doing," said All-American Scott May of Indiana. "It doesn't matter who we're playing. We didn't come here to play Russia. We came to win the gold."

The Russians, controversial winners over the United States in the 1972 Olympic final— which Americans regarded as an enormous blow to prestige— will be missing this time. They lost to tough Yugoslavia 89-84 last night shortly before the Americans advanced with a convincing 95-77 decision over Canada in the other semifinal.

"The psychological edge is with Yugoslavia," said American Coach Dean Smith, who observed that several of their players "belong in the NBA."

"They're up high off two emotional victories," a one-point decision over Italy and the biggest upset of the Games over Russia. "I think if we were playing Russia, the advantage would be with us. But we're not.

"I think our players were looking forward to playing Russia, but I told them not to talk about that. I just hope we can play as well against Yugoslavia as we did tonight."

It may have been the Americans' best game. They blew out to a early 22-8 lead and cruised in. They never trailed and led by 17 or more most of the time. May led the balanced American attack with 22 points.

The American women, meanwhile, gained the silver medal with a 83-67 victory over Czechoslovakia while gold-medal winner Russia beat Japan 98-75 in the final games of the round-robin tournament.

The Americans were shut out of victories yesterday, at least partly on Dave Roberts' raindrenched, unsuccessful gamble in the pole valt that turned gold to bronze. The Yanks now appear destined for a placing behind Russia and possibly East Germany in both gold and total medals.

With the Games more than half over, the United States now holds 21 gold, 23 silver and 17 bronze. Russia has a 27-26-20 count and East Germany has solidified its position as a world athletic power with a 27-17-14 total.

The Americans could make up a little ground—maybe just a little—in today's light schedule.

In addition to their favored basketball team, the Americans have a gold medal possibility in Greg Louganis, a 16-year-old phenom from El Cajon, Calif., who qualified first in men's platform diving.

The United States could gain a medal from its equestrian team in Grand Prix jumping but seemed unlikely to finish higher than second in any of the five yachting classes that are due to end today. The Russians are well-placed in a couple of those events. Russia also figures to gain ground in team saber fencing, superheavyweight weightlifting and lightheavyweight judo. Americans are not expected to score in any of those events.

Track and field athletes have an idle day.

It is in that sport, along with its boxers, that America's slim hopes rest. The boxers have nine men alive with the competition moving into the quarter-finals, but Cuba and Russia also are strong. The prospects in track and field aren't overwhelming.

With 11 men's events completed, the Americans have won only two.

They had a shot at gold in the seven-hour pole vault competition Monday, but Roberts' strategy backfired and the world record-holder at 18 feet, 8¼ inches had to settle for the bronze medal.

"I have no complaints," said Roberts, a medical student from Gainsville, Fla. "I don't think it was a tactical mistake. I vaulted just the way I wanted to."

The results, however, weren't all that he might have wished for.

Roberts trailed two men on misses when he chose to pass at 18-2½, figuring he could clear the next height, 18-4½, easily. The five men who vaulted at 18-2½ missed all three tries. As they finished, the drizzing rain became a steady shower. And Roberts missed all three times at 18-4½.

So it went back to the last height cleared, 18-0½. Tadeusz Slusarski of Poland won on fewer misses at that height, with Antti Kalliomaki of Finland second and Roberts third.

The only other American medals gained in track and field were a silver by 20-year-old Millard Hampton, San Jose, Calif., and a bronze by Phoenix, Ariz., schoolboy sprinter Dwayne Evans, who finished 1-2 behind Jamaica's Don Quarrie, the 200 meter winner in 20.23.

Miklos Nemeth of Hungary set a world record at 310-4 in winning the javelin and Russia's Tatiana Kazankina set another standard with a 1:55.0 time in the women's 800 meters.

Lasse Viren of Finland, winner of the 5,000 and 10,000 meter runs in 1972, made a rare repeat in the 10,000 and now has a chance to become the first man ever to win both the distance races in consecutive Olympics.

Siegrun Siegl led a East German sweep in the women's pentathlon. She and teammate Christine Laser each finished the two-day competition with 4,745 points, and Miss Siegl was declared the winner on the basis of better performances in head-to-head competition.

Al Coage, a bouncer in a bar at Plainfield, N.J., provided the United States with a suprise bronze in the heavyweight judo competition. Sergei Novikov of Russia won the gold.

In the only other medal events, Bernt Johansson of Sweden won cycling's individual road race and Valentin Khristov of Bulgaria took the heavyweight weightlifting with a total hoist of 880 pounds.

Sutton fans 2,000th batter

ATLANTA (AP) — Don Sutton cooled the heat, ended the pressure and beat the Atlanta Braves, despite a slow start Monday night.

He recorded his 2,000th career strikeout in the Los Angeles' 6-2 victory.

"It's a big thrill. I don't really know exactly how big," he said. "I'll have to kind of look back and decide later. But to know only 27 other guys have done it, well, it's kind of a shot in the arm."

Sutton scattered five hits and struck out nine, as he got his 11th victory of the season. He admitted thoughts of that 2,000th strikeout had been with him some time.

"I've been thinking about it since last year. Now I'm relaxed and that hasn't been the case all year," he said.

Dodger Manager Walt Alson said his pitcher "was fighting control early in the game. He was running the count full in the first inning or two and it was a hot night to be doing that."

"But he straightened out and pitched a heck of a game," Alston said.

During Sutton's shaky start, the Braves got to him for their runs, on a walk to Rod Gilbreath, Jim Wynn's triple and Willie Montanez' single, all in the first. But Carl Morton couldn't hold the lead as he allowed 10 hits in four innings and took his eighth loss in nine outings.

Steve Garvey led the Dodgers' 13-hit attack with four hits and a pair of runs batted in.

Garvey singled in the second, moved up on a walk, then scored on Sutton's bad-hop single over short.

The Dodgers took the lead in the third. Reggie Smith was safe on a fielder's choice. Ron Cey, Garvey and Bill Russell all singled to score a pair of runs.

Braves shortstop Jerry Royster, a former Dodger, went hitless against Sutton.

"When I was with the Dodgers, I hardly saw him any way except good," he said. "But tonight he didn't have a good fast ball, so he made you try to go for a high fast ball and get you out with that breaking ball. Tonight he was mostly curves, and when his breaking ball is good, it makes no difference. He's going to win."

Phil Niekro, 10-6, goes against the Dodgers' Rick Rhoden, 9-0, tonight.

Sherry suffers first defeat

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — Just when it looked like the relaxed Angels would win all of their games under new skipper Norm Sherry, the first-place Kansas City Royals came to town to send the Halos back to reality.

Righthander Al Fitzmorris (12-6) struggled all the way but he managed to blank the Halos, 4-0, on six singles Monday night to keep the Royals eight games ahead of the Oakland A's in the American League West standings.

The Angels had runners on base on seven of the nine innings but couldn't manage a timely hit against Fitzmorris. The six singles were scattered throughout different innings.

Nolan Ryan (7-13) pitched a strong game for the Angels in allowing only four hits with seven strikeouts.

But walks wrecked Ryan's chances of snapping a personal four-game losing streak. Ryan walked six Royals and three of them scored.

Obviously, Ryan got no support from the Angel hitters and poor defense also hurt his cause.

After Ryan walked George Brett and John Mayberry in the first inning, Amos Otis brought both of them in with a double which centerfielder Dave Collins couldn't handle. Mayberry's broken-bat single scored Brett in the third and K.C. added the fourth run in the eighth , thanks to a walk, stolen base and catcher Terry Humphrey's throwing error.

"Nolan threw all right, but things didn't go right for him," Sherry said after suffering first loss as the Angels' manager after three victories since taking over for Dick Williams Saturday. "The hits that beat him were playable."

Sherry wasn't concerned about his first defeat.

"I don't think it will slow us down," he said. "Fitzmorris just pitched a good game against us. We won't have our heads changing. Heck, you're not going to win every game."

Kansas City needed the win to maintain its advantage over the defending West champion Oakland A's.

"We're out in front but we're certainly no shoo-ins," said Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog. "Oakland is playing well and we're not too stable right now as a result of injuries."

ANGEL ANGLES — Frank Tanana (11-7) will pitch against Paul Splittorff (11-6) tonight with Don Kirkwood (4-7) slated to face Marty Pattin (3-9) Wednesday night.

The Anaheim Stadium message board was inoperative Monday night and there is some question whether it will be in use at all during the rest of the season.

Because of a rock concert and a circus, the outfield grass is in terrible shape and there are more concerts scheduled before the end of the season.

Pomona's Doug Bird will be checking with Dr. Robert Kerlan today about his ailing right shoulder. The righthander from Pomona High was forced out of Sunday's game in Oakland in the first inning. Bird is 9-4 with the Royals with a 3.36 ERA.

Kansas City has already lost Steve Busby for the season. Busby is considered the ace of the Royals' staff but he required surgery for his right shoulder.

L.A. keeps Vin Scully

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vin Scully, for 27 years a member of the Los Angeles Dodgers broadcast team, said Monday he will continue his association with the club.

The announcement ended speculation that he might give up his play-by-play broadcasts of Los Angeles games to concentrate on network television sports.

Dodgers President Peter O'Malley said, "Our new arrangement with Vin will enable him to continue his association with CBS sports. He will broadcast all Dodger home games and telecasts, except when he is fulfilling his network sports commitments.

Another announcer will be added to the Dodgers broadcast team to work with Scully and Jerry Doggett, O'Malley said.

U.S. tracksters still frustrated

MONTREAL (AP) — Don Quarrie became the first track and field double medal winner at the 1976 Olympics, Lasse Viren earned his third gold medal in two Olympics and a 24-year-old Soviet lass smashed a world record to frustrate U.S. athletes once again.

There were only a couple of true disappointments for Americans Monday, but when the exhausting 10-hour session finally ended at 8 p.m. EDT, a fifth world record had fallen, a 10th Olympic mark had been set and it was obvious that America's former dominance in track and field had been placed in limbo.

Jamaican Quarrie, second in the 100-meter dash Sunday, returned to win the 200 in 20.23 seconds as expected. Consolation for U.S. fans came when young Millard Hampton of San Jose, Calif., captured the silver medal and even younger Dwayne Evans of Phoenix, Ariz., took the bronze.

Viren, the bearded cop from Myrskyla, Finland, was as heavily favored in the 10,000 meters as was Quarrie in the 200. The 130-pound Viren didn't disappoint his followers. His winning time for the 6¼-mile run was 27:40.30, just off his own Olympic mark of 27:38.4.

Viren won the 5,000 and 10,000 in the 1972 Olympics. Monday he handily beat pacesetting Carlos Lopes, Portugal's world cross country champion. Third was Great Britain's Brendan Foster, who was unable to maintain contact with Lopes' fast pace. America's Garry Bjorklund finished 13th in the 16-man field.

Tatiana Kazankina of the Soviet Union blazed to a world record of 1:54.9 in a women's 800 which resembled the Eastern European championships. Second was Bulgaria's Nikolina Chtereva in 1:55.4 and third was East Germany's Elfi Zinn, whose time equalled the former world mark set by Russian Valentina Gerasimova.

In the final event of the day, which finished in a downpour, Tadeusz Sluslarski of Poland won the pole vault at 18 feet, one-half inch. Antti Kalliomaki of Finland was second and favored Dave Roberts third after a tactical move was foiled by the downpour.

Earlier in the day, Miklos Nemeth of Hungary came out of the shadows to astonish his foes by setting a world mark in winning the javelin.

The 29-year-old Nemeth, never higher than third in a major competiton in the past four years, threw the spear 310-4 to better the world mark of 308-8 set by Klaus Wolfermann of West Germany in 1973.

Nemeth's father, Imre, won the Olympic hammer title when his son was only one, so Nemeth's stunning victory over Hannu Siitonen of Finland and Gheorghe Megelea of Romania produced Olympic track's first father-son winners.

Roberts, world vault record holder at 18-8¼, trailed when he chose to pass 18-2½, figuring he could clear the next height, 18-4½, anyway.

Green Bay signs Shaw

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers added reserve quarterback Dennis Shaw, a seven-year National Football League veteran, to their roster Monday and dropped five players.

Shaw, 29, replaces rookie Steve Lainhart, who injured his left knee in an intrasquad game Thursday.

Shaw, whose parents reside in Claremont, is a product of Pomona Catholic High (now Damien) and Mt. San Antonio College.

The 6-foot-2, 210-pound Shaw, from San Diego State, was the 1970 Rookie of the Year when he completed 178 passes in 321 attempts for 2,507 yards and 10 touchdowns with Buffalo.

He was traded to St. Louis by the Bills in 1974 and was released by the Cards this summer. His career record is 489 completions in 924 attempts for 6,347 yards and 35 touchdowns.

Released by the Packers were third-year defensive back Hurles Scales; defensive back Brad Bowman, a 13th-round draft choice from Southern Mississippi; offensive tackle Phil Brazeau, a free agent from Washington State; wide receiver Steve Haggerty, a second-year player from the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, and tight end Dan Brunner from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater.

Hollypark has exciting finish

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Matters settled down to an offseason calm at Hollywood Park today following a closing afternoon that included a stickup of a $10 window cashier, a chase for the alleged robber and semi-panic when someone shouted "bomb."

Not incidentally, Caucasus won the finale feature of the meeting, the $137,600 Sunset Handicap, and Panamanian jockey Laffitt Pincay Jr. captured the 1976 riding championship.

Just before the seventh race, observers saw a mad scramble at about the eighth pole. Hundreds of fans scurried in all directions, even onto and across the track to the infield. It seemed to be rollicking confusion as people yelled, laughed and even cheered. But 60-odd spectators were treated for minor injuries including broken bones incurred in the hectic rushing around.

It developed that an unarmed robber had stuck up the cashier for $4,700. He was caught after a chase by security guards. There was no bomb. Then came the featured eighth, the Sunset.

Jockey Fernando Toro, scoring his 40th win on the lakeside turf course this summer, guided Caucasus under the wire a nose in front, as the formidable Charles Whittingham-trained entry finished one-two-three as the season concluded Monday.

The team of Caucasus, King Pellinore and Riot in Paris finished one-two-three, and a fourth member of the entry, Dahlia, trailed seventh after making a bid for top honors.

The dramatic riding duel between Pincay and Sandy Hawley ended with Pincay the winner with 125 victories, Hawley 122.

The score was 129-119 entering the final day. Hawley narrowed it in winning the first race. Pincay got it back in the second race. Pincay clinched the title when he won the fourth race on Nickel the Pickle. That put him five ahead and each rider had only four mounts remaining.

After three weeks of the meeting that opened in April, Hawley had built up a lead of 27. Pincay evened the count momentarily on July 5, only to lose it as the little Canadian champion registered a triple later that day.

The 4-year-old Caucasus, whose only stakes win at the meeting was in May in the South Bay Handicap, was held off the pace until Toro gunned him through the stretch.

Track stewards disallowed a claim of foul by Pincay against Toro for interference in the run for the wire.

"I thought the other horse (Caucasus) was leaning all the way through the last sixteenth of a mile. My horse ran his race for sure," Pincay said later.

Trainer Whittingham was philosophical. "After looking at the rerun, it looked like a 50-50 deal. King Pellinore came out first and then Caucasus came in. I guess," said Whittingham, "I'm the only one it didn't matter to either way."

Caucasus, earning $81,350, is owned by Fred Sahadi's Cardiff Stock Farm of Solvang, Calif.

The Rokeby Stable's Eastern challenger, One on the Aisle, at one stage a threat, was taken off the track in a van after finishing last. "He seemed to be nodding, like he was a little sore," said rider Hawley, "so I decided not to jog him back."

Total betting handle for the 79-day meeting was $302,772,669. Daily average was $3,832,564, up 4.1 per cent from last year. Total attendance was 2,295,746, an average of 29,960, down 3.8 per cent from 1975.

Bullfights move to sea

TIJUANA — The Tijuana bullfights move to the beach next Sunday and bring with them a show new to the area.

While a regular corrida is scheduled, the afternoon also will feature two exhibitions by a group of Portuguese stuntmen known as Los Forcados, wrestling a bull to a standstill.

U.S. women bounce back

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States, embarrassed by Russia's "punitive expedition" three nights earlier, captured the silver medal in the first women's Olympic basketball tournament ever held.

Sue Rojcewicz, a 5-foot-7 speedster with an uncanny knack for sparking rallies, was the heroine again Monday, triggering a 15-0 American outburst midway through the second half that carried the United States to an 83-67 triumph over Czechoslovakia.

"I was scared," said Miss Rojcewicz, who missed Sunday's final American practice because of illness. "Coming over here on the bus this morning everyone was quiet."

"I guess that was the team's way of getting ready. I know everyone was embarrassed by the belting we took from Russia."

Russia, which clinched the gold medal with that 112-77 crushing of the Americans, completed its five-game round robin schedule with a perfect record Monday night, beating Japan 98-75 behind 7-foot Iuliyaka Semonova's 20 points, all in the first half.

That left the third-place bronze for Bulgaria, which matched the United States record of 3-2 by closing with a victory over Canada Sunday. America claimed the higher award by virtue of its victory over Bulgaria.

"Realistically, although we hoped for the gold, we knew that Russia's program was years ahead of ours" said Billie Jean Moore of California State-Fullerton, the U.S. coach. "There's no question we are very elated. We would have been very disappointed if we had not won a medal.

"Twenty years from now, nobody can take this away from us. We are the first U.S. women's basketball team to win an Olympic medal."

Miss Moore again predicted the Americans would be the team to beat in the 1980 Olympics.

Asked what the gap was between the USA and the USSR, Miss Moore quickly replied, "About 10 inches."

That was a reference to Semenova, the huge Soviet center who destroyed the Americans with a 32-point performance in their showdown.

Coach Ivan Galabov of Bulgaria had predicted before last Friday's game that the Russians "will conduct a punitive expedition" against the Americans because they had insisted frequently they could handle the awesome Soviets.

In the silver medal victory, the Czechs were leading 53-52 with 10:40 left, but 6-foot-3 Marta Pechova had fouled out with a team-leading 14 points.

Miss Rojcewicz then pushed in a rebound that put the Americans in front to stay, added two free throws, a couple of rebounds and two assists.

Lucy Harris, an All-American from Delta State, led the scoring with 17 points, Nancy Dunkle added 14 and Miss Rojcewicz, Julie Simpson and Pat Roberts all contributed 10.

Dunkle said the victory was like a dream. "It was like we were on a cloud. It was floating higher...and higher...and higher."

District 23 loses in 7th

District 23 Big League All-Stars lost their first post-season playoff game Monday night to District 43 despite six innings of perfect pitching by District 23 hurler Mark White.

White retired the first 18 men he faced, but District 23 was unable to score. In the top of the seventh, District 43 scored three times on two bases on balls, an error and two RBI singles.

Ray Ortiz hit a double for District 23.

Citrus grid clinic set to go Friday

The ninth annual Citrus College All-Star Football Coaching Clinic will be held Friday beginning at 8 a.m. in the Student Center.

A number of top high school, junior college and college coaches will discuss various aspects of football. Heading the list of speakers will be former UC Riverside head coach and now USC assistant Bob Toledo and Stanford assistant coach Dave Currey.

Also scheduled for the clinic, which is held in conjunction with the San Gabriel Valley High School All-Star Football Game that evening in the Citrus Stadium, are Cal State LA head coach Ron Hull, Golden West JC coach Ray Shackleford and the three head coaches for the All-Star Game, Burch Drake of Azusa High, Gary Rawls of Rowland High and Jim Rawls of Chino High.

The clinic will give one unit of college upper division credit through Cal Lutheran College for those who register for it.

While the clinic is designed primarily for high school and college coaches, it is open to the public with college students or youth league coaches welcome to attend.

The cost for the clinic, two tickets to the All-Star Game and one unit of credit is $30. Without the college credit, the cost is $10.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. at the Student Center with no pre-registration necessary.

For more information on the clinic, contact Director John Strycula at (213) 335-0521.

Sports briefs

SEATTLE (AP) — Lucian Moore, one of the nation's top prep high jumpers from Tacoma's Franklin Pierce High, is one of four track athletes who announced this week they will attend the University of Washington in the fall.

The other three athletes include Peter Favell of Point Grey High in Vancouver, Canada; Kurt Spangler of Sammamish High; and Bill Tolbert of Grossmont College in El Cajon, Calif.

Tolbert, a long and triple jumper, will enter the UW as a junior. He has best marks of 24-7 in the long jump and 48-8 12 in the triple jump.

BUENA PARK (AP) — Teenager Chuck White of Los Alamitos parred the fifth extra hole of a playoff Monday at Los Coyotes Country Club to win the seventh tournament in the Western Amateur Golf Association summer tour.

White and Bill Viele of Hemet tied during the regulation 18 holes with scores of one under par 71 on the 6,806-yard course.

At even par 72 were Jim Williams, Los Angeles; Claye Atcheson, Claremont; Bill Wendt, Torrance; and Bradd Friel, La Habra. Friel shot 70 but was assessed a two-stroke penalty for arriving late.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Left-hander Doug Rau of the Los Angeles Dodgers was named the National League's Player of the Week Monday, becoming only the third pitcher to win the baseball award this season.

Rau had three starts during the past week, won all three and allowed only 16 hits and three earned runs.

KANSAS CITY — Owners of the defunct Kansas City Scouts voted to sell their National Hockey League franchise to a group of Denver investors headed by sportscaster Bud Palmer.

WASHINGTON — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors won the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Tournament with a 6-2, 6-4 triumph over No. 5 seed Raul Ramirez of Mexico.

LOUISVILLE — Unseeded Ricardo Cano of Argentina scored an upset 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over No. 2 seed Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach in the first round of the $125,000 Louisville International Classic tennis tournament.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — George Souders, winner of the 1927 Indianapolis 500 auto race, died of natural causes at the age of 75.

Upland linkster just misses title

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Golf Writer

Riviera's Tony Sills shot a one under par 288 to win the 77th Southern California Amateur Sunday at California CC, but 19-year-old Gerry Simoni just missed winning the championship.

The former Upland High star finished third, two strokes off the pace, but appeared to be headed for the title as late as the 63rd hole.

Tied with Sills at 215 at the beginning of Sunday's play, Simoni took a 3-stroke lead on the field when he birdied the 517-yard first and the 463-yard fourth hole. In the meantime, Sills, 20, missed a 5 footer on the third hole, settling for a bogey.

Sills caught Simoni at nine with a birdie putt, but Gerry completd the nine in 34, two under par as did Sills.

Hitting the ball long and accurate throughout the tournament, Simoni ran into driver trouble on the 457-yard 13th after he had missed a two-foot par putt on 12.

Simoni took a double bogey 6 on the 13th, and his driver again left him far to the right and behind a row of trees on the 340-yard 14th.

Electing to go through the trees, Simoni found himself in deeper and deeper trouble, and wound up with a triple bogey 7. The San Diego State freshman rallied, finishing the round with two pars and a birdie, but Sills held firm, shooting with a 72, while Simoni carded at 74.

Simoni of Canyon Crest CC reached the final day after fashioning some of the finest golf of his career. He started the tourney with a 74, followed with a 72, then shot a spectacular 69, three under par on the challenging 6,843-yard course.

Lynn Stone of Chino was in at 307.

Billy Smith of San Dimas fired an 83-87 to win the Secretary's flight of the 77th Amateur.

Emblem Club wins opener

Emblem Club opened the City Little League Majors playoffs with a 2-0 win over Westmont Al's Monday at the Pomona American Little League field.

Duane Price fired a three-hitter for Emblem Club, striking out 11 while walking only three.

Price began his team's only rally in the bottom of the fourth when he reached on a fielder's choice. Anthony Dynes followed with a single and, when Eddie Valazon singled to centerfield, Price scored from second and Dynes came all the way around to score from first base.

Antonio's will meet Clark Brothers today at 5:30 p.m., with the winner of that game facing Emblem Club on Thursday, August 5.

Pomona American's field is located at San Antonio and grand Ave.

Exhibition fight set

LONG BEACH — A Fiesta Brava Bullfight Exhibition has been set for Sept. 24, 25 and 26 at the Long Beach Arena according to Five Star Mexico International Enterprises, producers of the event.

Famous matadors from Mexico will be featured, including the very popular 22-year-old Curro Rivera, Jose Ramon Tirado, Mauro Liceaga, Cesar Faraco, and Ernesto San Roman known as El Queretano. Completing the list of outstanding matadors will be the up and coming El Charro (Jose Garcia).

Tickets for the event will go on sale August 1 at the Long Beach Arena Box Office and all ticket agencies.

Jaworski plans to start

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Talk is somewhat scarce around the Rams' camp about the James Harris-Ron Jaworski battle for the starting quarterback job. Los Angeles Coach Chuck Knox says only that Harris is still No. 1. Harris says nothing.

Jaworski, on the other hand, says plenty.

"I want to lead this team," remarked the supremely confident 25-year-old, "and I will."

Jaworski, a suprise second-round draft choice by the Rams out of Youngstown State in 1973, is somewhat shorter on experience than he is on confidence, however.

Nicknamed "The Polish Rifle," he spent his first season with Los Angeles on the taxi squad. In 1974, he played little, completing 10 of 24 passes for 144 yards.

Last season, though, the 6-foot-2, 185-pounder got his chance when Harris was sidelined by a shoulder injury.

Jaworski took over and led the Rams to victories over Green Bay and Pittsburgh, then completed 12 of 23 for 203 yards — and a 66-yard touchdown — plus running for a touchdown in Los Angeles' 35-23 playoff-opening triumph over St. Louis.

That obviously bolstered the confidence of the young man from Lackwanna, N.Y.

Jaworski, in fact, does not even consider his rivalry with Harris suspenseful, saying he already knows who the Ram quarterback will be.

"It's going to be me," he said with authority.

"I can just feel it. I know this is going to be my year. I have the talent. I have the arm. I have the experience now. And I know I have enough confidence."

Jaworski said he and Harris, in contrast a quiet and introspective type, have roomed together and are good friends. But he said that has nothing to do with who'll be the Rams' quarterback this season.

"We've talked this whole thing over several times," Jaworski commented. "I know he wants the job as badly as I do. But I'm not going to go behind his back and say this or that."

Harris comes into the quarterback battle with impressive statistics — a 17-4 regular season record as Rams' starter and a 52.7 career completion percentage — but Jaworski is undaunted.

"If I'm given a legitimate chance to win the job I'll win it," he said. "I was disappointed that I didn't get a better chance to play last season. I felt I was being had.

"It's a shame I only got a chance after James got hurt. I didn't want it to come that way," he continued.

"But I still showed what I could do."

Pomona American opens Section play

Pomona American will open its quest for the Section 7 Senior Division title tonight at Highlander Park in Hacienda Heights.

American, the District 20 champions, will be meeting a Senior squad from the Keenan Little League in Industry. The Keenan All-Stars won the District 60 crown last week.

Gametime is set for 5:30 p.m. at the Highlander L.L. Senior field. To get to Highlander Park, take the Pomona Freeway to Azusa Ave. Go south on Azusa to Colima and west on Colima to Stitzel. Go north on Stitzel and the field is located on that street in Hacienda Heights.

The double-elimination sectional tourney will run through Saturday. If American wins tonight, they will play the winner of the District 23 (Ontario North)-District 19 game on Wednesday, again at 5:30 p.m. If American drops tonight's opener, it would play the District 23-District 19 loser Thursday night at 5:30 p.m.

Finals will go at 10 a.m. Saturday morning, with a second game, if necessary, to follow at 2 p.m.

American manager Jim O'Toole will go with Fred Marcias on the hill vs. Keenan. Macias won America's final two games in the District playoffs.

"We have been playing good defense, our pitching has been sharp and we've gotten the timely hits," noted O'Toole in explaining his team's success so far. "We haven't been hitting the long ball, but we have made our hits count.

"It's been a total team effort so far, my only regret is that I can't play all 15 of our guys all the time."

O'Toole indicated that he would stay with the same starting lineup as he used in the District playoffs. He also said that Ray Andrzejewski would start on the mound in American's second game Wednesday or Thursday.

The District title was the second for Pomona American in three years. The La Verne Little League seniors won the title last year.

Nutrition program for kids, too

Yoga classes underway in Upland

The Upland Recreation Department is conducting yoga classes every Wednesday and Thursday under the direction of Mrs. Belle Tuckerman.

The class will be held every Wednesday morning from 9 to 10 at the Magnolia Recreation Center, 651 W. 15th St. Upland, and on Thursdays from 8 to 9 p.m. at the Cellar, 123 E. D St., Upland.

Cost of the program is $8 per month and is payable at the Recreation Department, 404 N. Second Ave.

The Recreation Department is cooperating with the San Bernardino County 4-H organization to operate a nutrition day camp for youths from 9 through 19.

The two-week camping session will be from Aug. 2 through Aug. 13 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Upland Memorial Park. The camp will be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

Camping activities include cookouts, crafts, singing, games and trips. There is no charge. Registrations are due by Wednesday at the Recreation Department office.

John Santiago is instructor of the department's karate classes which meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Four students were recently awarded karate's highest belt rank. Black belts were awarded to Benjimen Lara Jr., Joanne Mahoney, Jean Irwin and Linda Morrison.

Additional information on all programs may be obtained by calling 985-0994.

Roller skating highlights R.H. recreation events

The Rowland Recreation Department will sponsor a roller skating party for teenagers at Skateland in Whittier Wednesday. Cost will be $1.50.

Registrations for swim lessons at Nogales High School pool will be accepted at 9 a.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday. Lessons will begin Aug. 2 and end Aug. 13.

Boys and girls 6 through 11 are invited to go to Lion Country Safari Aug. 3 on a department - sponsored trip. Cost is $3.50 per child. Those who wish to go should contact the recreation office and sign up.

A day of games and contests for elementary school children will be held Aug. 5, starting at 2 p.m. at Northam School. Children may sign up at their local playgrounds.

The Rowland recreation office is at 1830 S. Nogales St., Rowland Heights.

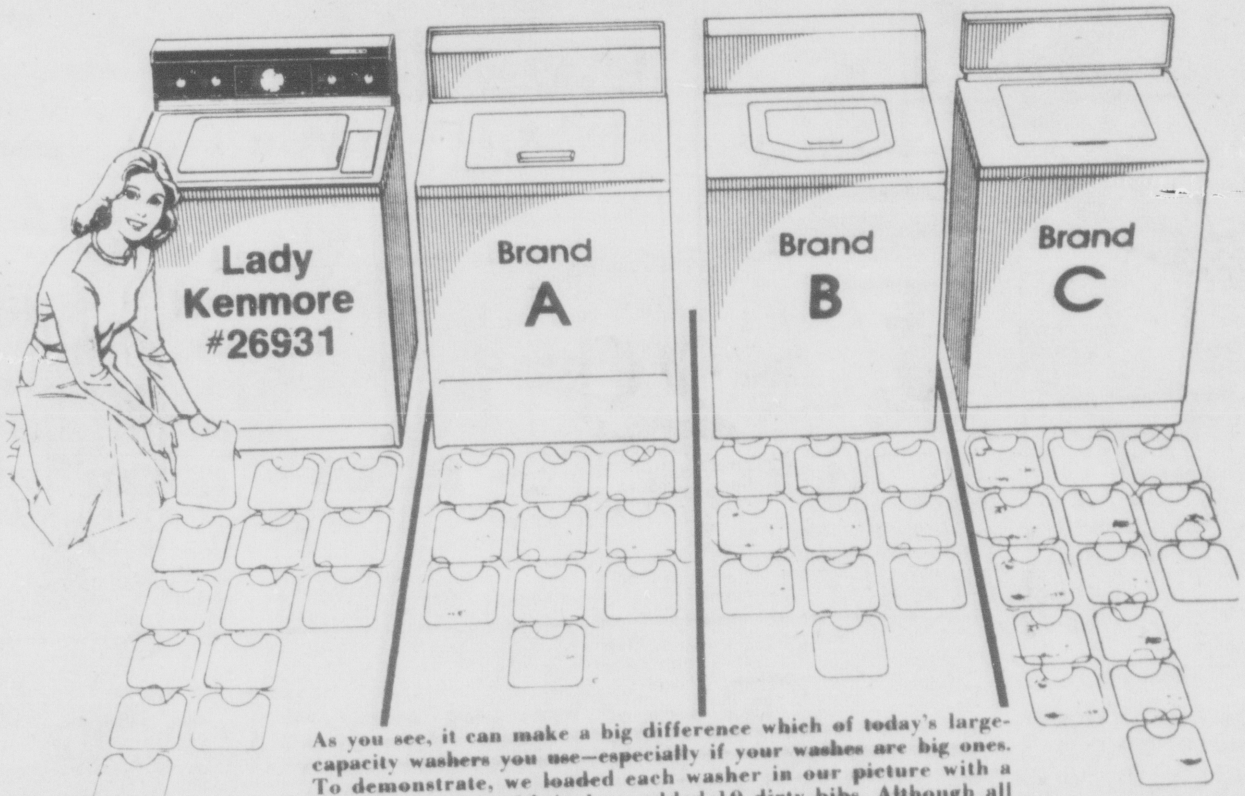
This Lady Kenmore® washer gets big loads cleaner than the next best-selling brands.

This Ad Effective thru Sat., July 31

And we mean cleaner.



As you see, it can make a big difference which of today's large-capacity washers you use—especially if your washes are big ones. To demonstrate, we loaded each washer in our picture with a big, 15-pound load.* And we added 10 dirty bibs. Although all of the washers got some of the bibs clean, only the Lady Kenmore washer got them all clean. Why? Because only the Lady Kenmore washer has the Dual Action™ agitator!

FPC ruling may triple cost for natural gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission today nearly tripled the amount producers can charge for interstate natural gas, a move predicted to cost consumers up to $1.5 billion in the first year.

Under previous regulations, producers were allowed to charge about 52 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas they sold outside the producing state.

In today's decision, the commission set a new nationwide ceiling price of $1.42 per thousand cubic feet for gas brought into production since Dec. 31, 1974, and said this ceiling price may increase by one cent every three months.

The commission set a lower ceiling price of $1.01 for gas brought into production between Jan. 1, 1973, and Dec. 31, 1974.

There were no figures immediately available on how these increases would affect an average family's gas bill.

Shortly before the commission's decision was announced, a spokesman for a citizens' consumer group called Energy Action said several consumer groups are expected to file legal challenges against the increase.

If maintained, the price hikes would go part way toward the goal of the natural gas industry to remove federal price controls so that gas prices may seek their natural market level.

Prices of gas sold within a producing state, which are not subject to federal regulation, have ranged in the neighborhood of $1.50 per thousand cubic feet, sometimes reaching as high as $2.00.

Hence, the new federal price ceilings bring interstate gas close to parity with the unregulated intrastate gas.

But the price of interstate gas remains subject to federal regulation. So, if producers want another increase, they must return to the commission with another request.

Various studies have predicted increases in prices and then in production, but even the most optimisic estimate is that natural gas suppliers can do no better than return to their peak levels of around 1970 before eventually going into a permanent decline as natural gas resources are used up.

Explaining its decision, the FPC said drilling costs have increased, and changes in the tax code have affected company finances. The commission said both point to a need for higher price ceilings.

The commission said its new ceilings "will encourage the dedication of new reserves to the interstate market." It referred to a past tendency of producers to seek customers in the unregulated, higher-priced intrastate market.

The FPC said the new price ceilings also "will permit increased drilling activity and will place interstate pipelines in a more competitive position in the onshore markets."

Pomona police chief's appointment reaffirmed

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona City Council late Monday night reaffirmed its appointment of James W. Richards as the city's new police chief, ending a brief but intensive review of Richards' record following a challenge to the appointment by members of the Pomona Police Department.

"We have found no information which warrants changing our decision to appoint Jim Richards as police chief," Mayor Ray Lepire told the Progress Bulletin following an executive session of the council Monday.

The vote to reaffirm the appointment was 4-0, said Lepire. Councilman Adrain Wright, the only member not concurring in the original appointment on July 8, was not in attendance due to his participation in a Sister Cities function in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Richards reaccepted the appointment in a telephone call to City Administrator Jerrold Gonce this morning.

Richards, presently police Chief of Arvada, Colo., accepted the post on July 9 only to have the appointment thrown into doubt 10 days later when three Pomona policemen met with the council in executive session and challenged the appointment.

Although none of the officers, Richard Tefank, Larry Kidney and John Miller, publicly made charges against Richards, it is apparent they provided the council with information disparaging the selection of Richards.

After meeting with Richards last Tuesday, the council authorized Lepire to fly to Arvada last week to further investigate the questions raised by the three officers, which apparently revolve around a controversy within the Arvada Police Department last year.

"I interviewed 21 people in the two days I was in Arvada. None stated that Chief Richards is incompetent. This includes the police officers interviewed," said Lepire.

Lepire said that he talked to representatives of the Arvada Policemen's Association, businessmen, residents and city officials, with the result that the greatest criticism of Richards there was lack of communication through the ranks, which was due to an outmoded organizational structure inherited by Richards but now corrected.

"All agree that in the last six months the problems have subsided," said Lepire.

Other policemen's complaints found in Arvada, said Lepire, were low wages, dislike of work schedules and obsolete equipment.

Lepire said that he considered the investigation of Richards to be complete and that council had no reservations about reaffirming the appointment.

"We feel he is highly qualified," said the Mayor.

Richards, 42, has been chief of the Arvada force for about three years. Prior to that he was a member of the Ventura County Sheriff's Department, rising through the ranks to the level of Captain.

Ford compliments Navy

300 Yanks, foreigners evacuted from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. Navy evacuated some 300 Americans and other foreigners from Beirut without a hitch today while President Ford and top Pentagon officials stayed up most of the night in Washington to monitor the operation.

The 16,900-ton amphibious transport ship Coronado anchored off Beirut's seafront before dawn, and by 10 a.m. (3 a.m. EDT) all of the evacuees were aboard. The Coronado was to land them in Athens on Thursday.

Among those leaving was U.S. Ambassador Talcott W. Seelye, whose departure was a closely guarded secret until the last moment. The embassy said he was going to Washington for consultations and would return to Beirut.

An embassy official said 160 Americans and about 390 others signed up for the evacuation, but closer to 400 — "less than half" of them Americans — showed up this morning. However, to persons watching the departure it looked more like 250 to 300 persons, and the White House said there were about 300.

About 1,000 other American citizens remained in Lebanon despite warnings from the White House and the embassy that it was the last evacuation the U.S. government would organize. Most of those remaining are of Lebanese birth and have dual Lebanese and American citizenship.

President Ford kept abreast of the evacuation in a White House situation room, flanked by senior advisers. He was in telephone contact with Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and his chief military and civilian advisers at the Pentagon.

Rumsfeld sent Ford's "thanks for a good job" to the Coronado.

"The President wants to congratulate the officers and men of the Sixth Fleet and the officials of the embassy in Beirut for arranging the safe evacuation of Americans and foreign nationals," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters in Washington.

"The President also wants to express his gratitude and sincere thanks to all others who gave their cooperation to facilitate this departure."

The latter group included heavily armed soldiers of Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization and leftist Moslem Lebanese police who stood guard as the evacuees boarded an unarmed U.S. landing craft at the former military officers' swimming club.

Patricia Hearst offers to testify against Harrises

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst offered today to testify against William and Emily Harris without any grant of immunity, the Harrises' prosecutor announced in court.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Sam Mayerson said Miss Hearst's attorney, Al Johnson, called him at 8:45 a.m. and "said his client is prepared to waive all rights and privileges and to testify in this case."

Mayerson asked Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler to recess the Harris trial immediately and allow him to fly to San Diego to interview Miss Hearst at the federal prison there.

"We don't know what the limits of any testimony she would be willing to give would be in this trial," Mayerson said. "I don't know without talking to her."

The offer came just before the judge was to rule on the admissibility of a crucial tape recording featuring Miss Hearst's voice. She is the only witness who could help the state gain admission of the tape.

Mixed reactions to Reagan naming of running mate

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan's strategists say the selection of Sen. Richard S. Schweiker as vice-presidential running mate has strengthened Reagan's presidential campaign and broadened his political base.

But backers of President Ford called the Reagan announcement a desperate play for delegates by a losing candidate.

Reagan named the Pennsylvania lawmaker — one of the most liberal members of the Senate — in a surprise move Monday.

Just three weeks before opening of the Republican National Convention, Ford is 36 delegates away from the nomination with 1,093, in The Associated Press survey. Reagan trails with 1,025 and 141 delegates were uncommitted, including 28 in Schweiker's home state.

Nearly all Northeast delegates contacted in the first hours after Reagan's announcement Monday adopted either a wait-and-see attitude toward the move or said it would have no effect on their vote for a presidential nominee.

One Pennsylvanian switched from Ford to uncommitted, and the President lost Schweiker's vote. The senator resigned as a convention delegate. He had said previously he would vote for Ford.

Reagan backers were generally mum about the announcement. Spokesmen for the Reagan campaign emphasized points where Schweiker agrees with the former California governor's conservative philosophy.

The concensus was that Reagan stands to gain in the Northeast, where he is weakest. But he may suffer in the South and West, where his support rests in large part with legally uncommitted delegates.

"I think it broadens our base noticeably," Lyn Nofziger, a close political confidant of Reagan, said of the Schweiker announcement.

"This is a guy who has won elections statewide in a tough state for Republicans. He undoubtedly is going to go up there and work hard to win those delegates. Schweiker will work throughout the Northeast into the Ohio Valley.

"I think it's much too early to tell wheher it's going to hurt us in the South or the West. I think by the time many of those delegates in the South have looked the situation over and looked at Schweiker, I'm not sure there will be any hurt there."

Ford's backers initially were cautious in their reaction. But they quickly raised a counter-offensive.

"It appears to be an effort to exchange the second highest office in the land for a handful of delegates," said Ford campaign manager Rogers C.B. Morton.

Reagan said they agreed on basic values preserving "a strong America ... a compassionate America willing to care for those of its people unable to care for themselves ... a moral and decent America ... an America governed by the rule of law, not by men. ..."

Reagan did not permit questions from reporters. Instead, he read a prepared 350-word statement and immediately departed for vacation.

President to fly to Mississippi to seek support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will fly to Mississippi Friday to seek support from the state's 30 GOP delegates, who could play a key role in a first-ballot nomination contest in Kansas City.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen, in announcing the trip to Jackson, said that as far as he knew, it had no relation to Ronald Reagan's announcement that he would pick Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania as his running mate if he gets the GOP presidential nomination.

Nessen said Tuesday that Ford still plans to proceed as previously outlined in choosing his possible running mate. Under those plans, Ford will consult widely with Republicans on possible choices and announce his decision "at the appropriate time," Nessen said.

Ford has given no indication he would depart from the traditional method of announcing a running mate until after the presidential nominee has been picked at the convention.

Nessen said Ford will meet with all 30 Mississippi delegates and 30 alternates in a group. He also plans to talk with individuals and smaller groups of delegates during the Jackson visit. Details of the trip will be announced later, Nessen said.

Unsettled weather expected to clear

Intermittent drizzles dropped on the valley for the second day Monday, but no area had enough to measure.

The weatherman said the heavy clouds probably will move off by tonight. He predicts fair skies Wednesday with slowly rising temperatures.

The thick clouds clamped a lid on the valley, Monday, causing a first stage smog episode, as well as increased humidity that reached 90 percent at times.

The smog will probably reappear Wednesday afternoon but, according to the National Weather Service, some of the humidity will be gone.

Temperatures are expected to hover in the mid-80s both days.

As for the precipitation, at least one Pomona accident was blamed on slick pavement.

A 16-year-old motorist was injured slightly Monday afternoon when his auto skidded on rain-slick Foothill Boulevard and hit a utility pole west of Towne Avenue in Pomona.

David R. Fleming, of Pomona, told police that his car slid out of control as he was making a left turn. The vehicle broke a cable supporting the pole.

Fleming declined immediate medical attention.

Weather

Variable high cloudiness today, clearing tonight with mostly fair Wednesday. Light smog both days. High today 83, low tonight 65, high Wednesday 86. The high Monday was 82 and the overnight low was 64. Wednesday's sunrise 5:59, sunset 7:55.

Suspect barred by Canadians 4 days after bus hijacking

SAN LEANDRO (AP) — A man sought in the nationwide hunt for the kidnapers of a busload of Chowchilla school children tried to enter Canada four days after the abduction but was turned back by authorities who found a rifle and three handguns in his car.

James Schoenfeld, 24, tried to cross the border from Washington state at Cascade, B.C., according to constable Ken Yaeger of Grand Forks, B.C. Schoenfeld was not a subject of the investigation at the time and was traveling alone.

Yaeger said Monday that Schoenfeld had his own identification cards, plus those belonging to Fred Newhall Woods IV, the other person sought in the kidnaping, and a Ralph Lester Snyder, 22, a new name in the case.

Yaeger said Schoenfeld also carried California and Montana license plates in the beige 1963 Chrysler he was driving.

The automobile matched the description of a car Schoenfeld was known to drive.

Once Canadian authorities were satisfied there were no warrants out for Schoenfeld's arrest and that the guns and auto were not stolen, Yaeger said the young man was escorted back to the U.S. customs office in Laurier, Wash., where he was released.

According to Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins, Schoenfeld told customs officers he was going to the Olympics.

Schoenfeld and Woods were named later in local and federal arrest warrants in the kidnaping. Both are sons of wealthy San Francisco Peninsula families. Schoenfeld's 22-year-old brother, Richard, surrendered Friday.

The school children and their bus driver were abducted at gunpoint July 15 and held captive in a moving van buried in a Livermore rock quarry, 100 miles northwest of Chowchilla, a small farming community in the San Joaquin Valley. They were imprisoned in the van for nearly 17 hours until they escaped by digging their way out after the kidnapers had left.

Houchins said deputies were to serve a search warrant in Marin County, across the Golden Gate from San Francisco, but he refused to say where deputies seached and what they were looking for.

No new arrest warrants have been sought, said Houchins, despite persistent reports that some investigators believe more than three men were involved in the elaborate kidnaping.

"We have no new names of subjects ... We do not have any information on one, 10 or 300 new subjects," the sheriff told newsmen. "But we have never discounted the possibility of additional suspects."

Meanwhile, Madera County Dist. Atty. Charles Hoffman rejected a request from Richard Schoenfeld's attorneys to keep their client from being taken from Oakland to Chowchilla for the formal reading of charges. The attorneys argued that Schoenfeld would not be safe in Chowchilla because "of the emotional climate in Madera County."

Attorney William Gagen said Schoenfeld will plead innocent Thursday, adding that he believes the trial judge eventually will agree to a defense request to move the case out of Madera County.

PATRICIA HEARST

L.A. trial date is set for Patty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst stood in a bulletproof courtroom and waived her right to a speedy trial while her attorney launched a battle to prevent her from being tried at all.

Late Monday, her prosecutor made it clear he would not yield in his plans to bring the convict heiress before a jury on kidnaping, robbery and assault charges. Her trial date was set for Jan. 10, 1977.

The statement by Deputy District Attorney Sam Mayerson came at the trial of Miss Hearst's codefendants, William and Emily Harris.

Asked why he had not called Miss Hearst to testify on a key issue in the Harris trial, Mayerson replied, "that involves immunity which is not to be given in this case as far as I know ... We are not going to call Miss Hearst because of the ramifications involved in that."

As he spoke, the 22-year-old Miss Hearst, now a convicted bank robber, was enroute back to federal prison in San Diego where she is undergoing diagnostic tests.

Earlier in the day, she spent 10 minutes in the courtroom where the Harrises are on trial, but did not see her former fugitive traveling companions who waited in a holding cell.

Superior Court Judge William Ritzi asked if she would waive her right to a speedy trial.

"Yes, your honor," Miss Hearst replied, standing up from her seat at the counsel table.

She was thin, but appeared healthier than at previous court hearings.

Her attorney, Al Johnson, said Miss Hearst weighs only 93 pounds but "her mental attitude has improved. She appears more relaxed and that's why she seems to look a great deal better."

She wore black slacks and a black and white sweater set which clung to her bony form. Her usual stark pallor was gone, and her dyed red hair was back to its normal honey brown, falling below her shoulders.

Johnson, who had flown here from Boston, accepted the 1977 trial date but notified the judge he planned to oppose the trial.

Legalized bingo on the way in Pomona

Urged on by representatives of the city's various fraternal organizations, the Pomona City Council Monday night gave first reading approval to an ordinance allowing non-profit groups to have legal bingo games.

Members of the American Legion, Moose Lodge and Knights of Columbus told the council it was time to legalize the games that have been going on for years — providing "recreation and a little money for worthwhile projects," said one speaker.

The only real question rasied over the bingo ordinance was whether to hold an official public hearing, which would delay adoption of the ordinance an additional two weeks.

Councilman Benjamin Ochoa held out for the official public hearing but was overruled by the balance of the council on a 3-1 vote to go ahead and approve the ordinance.

The measure contains stiff reporting and control procedures for the games as outlined by the state penal code, and prohibits any game run for profit.

The ordinance will become effective in September.

The only voice of dissent came from Ethel Henning, who warned the council that bingo was nothing more than gambling and would invite unsavory persons into the community.

MIA group unhappy with Ford, Kissinger efforts

The National League of Families of POWs and MIAs cannot expect any help from President Gerald Ford or Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in its efforts to learn what has happened to the 1,300 servicemen still unaccounted in Southeast Asia, says an Upland spokesman for the group.

Mrs. Diane Nichols, Southern California coordinator for the league, said Monday that when Ford visited the seventh annual dinner of the league Saturday night in Washington, D.C., he said that he "will not let the missing men be forgotten."

"We had hoped that he would name a negotiator to Hanoi," she said.

She explained that Kissinger has made no attempt to help the group of families.

"Since the signing of the Paris peace agreement, he will not even talk to us, though we had tried several times," Mrs. Nichols said.

"We received a telegram from former Gov. Ronald Reagan that if he were elected President he would name a new secretary of state."

From 500 to 600 members of families of POWs and MIAs attending the seventh annual convention Friday through Sunday attempted to see as many congressmen as possible in a push to keep the Select Committee on Americans Missing in Action alive after Sept. 11.

Mrs. Nichols, back home in Upland Monday, said that Congressman Jim Lloyd who is a member of the committee favors extending the group past its date to disband.

"The committee took three months to set up a staff after its organization in September 1975," she commented. "Now it needs time to work."

Mrs. Nichols said that the Nixon administration had promised $3.2 billion to Hanoi for reconstruction, "but we don't want to pay blackmail for our men."

She said that she feels that Hanoi doesn't want to negotiate with Kissinger or the Ford administration.

She said that Hanoi positively reported that there were 50 POWs left over there when the first POWs were exchanged in the spring of 1973.

Mrs. Nichols' father Roy F. Townley was flying an Air America cargo plane when he was downed in northern Laos in December 1971.

Mrs. Fran Masterson of Upland, who also attended the convention, has not seen her husband, Air Force Maj. Michael "Bat" Masterson, since a plane malfunction forced him to bail out over Laos in October 1968.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bebus of Montclair, are seeking information on their son, Air Force T-Sgt. Charles Bebus, shot down in December 1972 while on a B-52 bombing mission over Hanoi.

Construction takes giant leap in Chino

Building activity in Chino is continuing at a record-shattering pace, with valuations for the first half of 1976 totaling $37,840,103.

The figure through June is more than $17 million higher than the $20,660,406 recorded for the first six months of 1975.

Last month's building total was $5,983,024, compared with the $4,047,672 figure for June 1975.

Single family homes continue to be the major reason for high building totals, with 135 permits taken for homes last month, for a valuation of $4,710,345. Permits for 815 new single dwellings have been recorded for the six-month period.

Other permits in June were for two commercial buildings,1$65,160, signs and miscellaneous, $97,682, additions and repairs $272,939, and 20 swimming pools, $108,752.

The commercial permits issued were for a new Seven-11 food store at 12227 Mountain Ave. and for completion of the interior at Green's Sports Depot, 12081 Central Ave. A permit also was given for $213,000 worth of alterations at Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 4321 Philadelphia St.

Poll finds 82% of youths drink

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A survey shows 82 per cent of the high school students in San Diego County drink alcohol, with 33 per cent of those getting drunk once a month or more.

He said 65 per cent of the students polled said they favored lowering the drinking age to 18.

Sulfur fuel control

State panel takes action to curb risk of 'killer smog'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The State Air Resources has adopted an emergency plan to curtail use of sulfur fuels to avoid a possible "killer smog."

Monday's action by the three-member board came despite warnings that the plan could lead to spot shortages of leadfree gas during the summer.

The guidelines adopted will dictate how much various industries must cut consumption of sulfur fuels during various stages of air pollution. The public will also be asked to cut power consumption.

The action came after a hearing at City Hall which drew more than 200 persons, including many representatives of industry and power companies concerned about the guidelines' impact.

A spokesman for Union Oil Co. warned that the board action could hamper refinery production of lead-free gas and create spot shortages.

Tom Quinn, state ARB chairman, maintained the state needed the machinery to cope with problems that may arise because of industry's increasing reliance on fuel oil due to shortages of the clean-burning natural gas.

"We could find ourselves next week in the midst of a horrible episode with increased illness and death," he said.

An ARB spokesman said that, without Monday's action, the state could easily find itself facing a "killer smog" which could cause the premature deaths of hundreds of chronically ill and aged people.

But Quinn said he wanted the guidelines — which will be carried out through detailed plans drawn up by local air pollution control districts — to cause as little disruption for the public and industry as possible.

The guidelines set stages for various actions when certain levels of sulfur-related pollutants in the air are reached.

During the most severe emergency, called the "stage three episode," a 33 per cent sulfur dioxide emission cut would be required for chemical plants, while electrical utilities would have to cut fuel oil use 40 per cent, the spokesman said.

Under such conditions, the public would be asked to cut electrical power use 40 per cent. In addition, the guidelines state that all combustion sources would be asked to switch to natural gas if available or fuel oil with very little sulfur in it.

The spokesman noted that if the ARB finds local authorities are not taking the proper action, the state could step in.

Although Quinn said he thinks industries will be able to meet the guidelines adopted Monday, he said the rules could be softened if absolutely necessary.

"If somebody should clearly demonstrate the impossibility of meeting the requirements, we will consider an amendment to our plan," he said.

City's suit is shaky; earthquake predictions fail to affect values

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two city councilmen thought they were standing on pretty firm ground when they warned that predictions of an imminent major earthquake would depress local property values.

But the latest analysis by the city attorney and real estate experts shows that notion to be a bit shaky.

Councilmen Louis Nowell and Robert Wilkinson, whose San Fernando Valley districts were among the hardest hit areas in the massive February 1971 quake, became irate when Caltech seismologist James H. Whitcomb forecast a similar jolt would occur by next April.

Fearing that the prediction would damage valley property values, Nowell and Wilkinson pushed a resolution through the City Council directing the city attorney to file a damage suit against Whitcomb and others.

But subsequent investigative reports by the city Bureau of Right-of-Way and Land and the city attorney contend the suit would have little chance of success — and indicate that, if anything, property values have risen since the unpleasant prediction was made.

The city attorney's report said a city suit "would have little, if any, chance of success unless it could be demonstrated that the prediction had actually damaged the value of property owned by the city."

And the Bureau of Right-ofWay and Land's analysis, based on reports from a local realty board, showed that property values in the areas most heavily damaged by the 1971 quake rose substantially in the months immediately after Whitcomb's forecast last April.

These areas, the bureau reasoned, "would be most susceptible to property value fluctuations caused by earthquake predictions."

But instead, the average sales price of houses in the area rose from $39,600 on May 30 — a month after Whitcomb's prediction — to $41,000 for the month ending June 30, and to $41,300 for the week ending July 8.

Moreover, residential sales volume rose from $11,619,000 during May to $16,070,000 for the month of June.

Injured Pomona girl improves

Rosemary Razo, 5, Pomona, is listed in satisfactory condition at St. Francis Hospital in Tulsa, Okla.

The little girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Razo of 918 Hawthorne Place, was in critical condition when she was admitted Friday afternoon.

Her two brothers, Randy, 13 and Rusty, 11, in serious condition when admitted, now are in satisfactory condition.

The children were injured Friday afternoon near Vinita, Okla., when a loaded cattle truck overturned on top of the car in which they were riding. Three women in the car, all from Roanoke, Ill., were killed.

L.P. man sent to CYA

Stanley Goldbloom Jr., 20-year-old La Puente man who pleaded guilty recently to murder in the drug death Dec. 5 of his 19-year-old wife, has been committed to the custody of the California Youth Authority.

Goldbloom was committed by Pomona Superior Court Judge Howard D. McClain when the young man appeared Friday for probation hearing and sentencing.

Goldbloom, of 1947 Sierra Leone Ave., was arrested after the death of Bonnie Goldbloom in their apartment early that morning. Sheriff's deputies said she died as the result of a heroin overdose which Goldbloom helped her administer. They said both had "narcotics backgrounds."

Walnut annexation issues

New annexations to an old county lighting district are expected to be approved by the Walnut City Council Wednesday night.

The proposed annexations are 11 tracts which have received final approval from the city government.

Developers are Larwin, La Solana, Chevron, Singer, Umark, Southern Development and Vanguard.

Councilmen also will be asked to rename Lemon Creek Park as Lemon Creek Bicentennial Park.

Oil imports put skids on trade balance

Increased demand could spell higher prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil imports surged about 34 per cent in June to meet growing American demands and pushed the U.S. foreign trade balance back into deficit after a one-month surplus, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said imports exceeded exports by $377.3 million in June, compared with a $395.6-million surplus of exports over imports during May.

For the first half of the year, the trade deficit now stands at $1.05 billion. At this time a year ago, trade accounts were in surplus by $5.05-billion on the way to a record $11-billion surplus for the year.

The general expectation for the year is that as foreign economies generate stronger recoveries, U.S. trade accounts will gradually edge into surplus and wind up with a small surplus for the year.

The trade statistics, when computed on a three-month quarterly period to eliminate confusing month-to-month swings, indicate that the deficits appear to be narrowing. They show deficits of $864 million in the first quarter and $184 million in the second quarter.

But the sudden surge in oil imports could have more ominous implications for Americans.

When the cartel of oil-exporting nations met earlier this year, they responded to slack demand for their products with a decision to keep prices steady, despite pressure from some countries for an increase of 10 per cent or more.

The United States was a typical example of what had happened to oil demand, registering a 3.5 per cent decline in oil imports during 1974 and a 2 per cent drop for 1975.

But so far this year, oil imports are up 17.6 per cent over the first six months of last year, and that increased demand could spell higher prices when the oil exporters meet again to discuss prices.

In June alone, oil imports shot up 34.4 per cent after a 23.9 per cent slip in May. The quantity of oil imported in June was the highest since January.

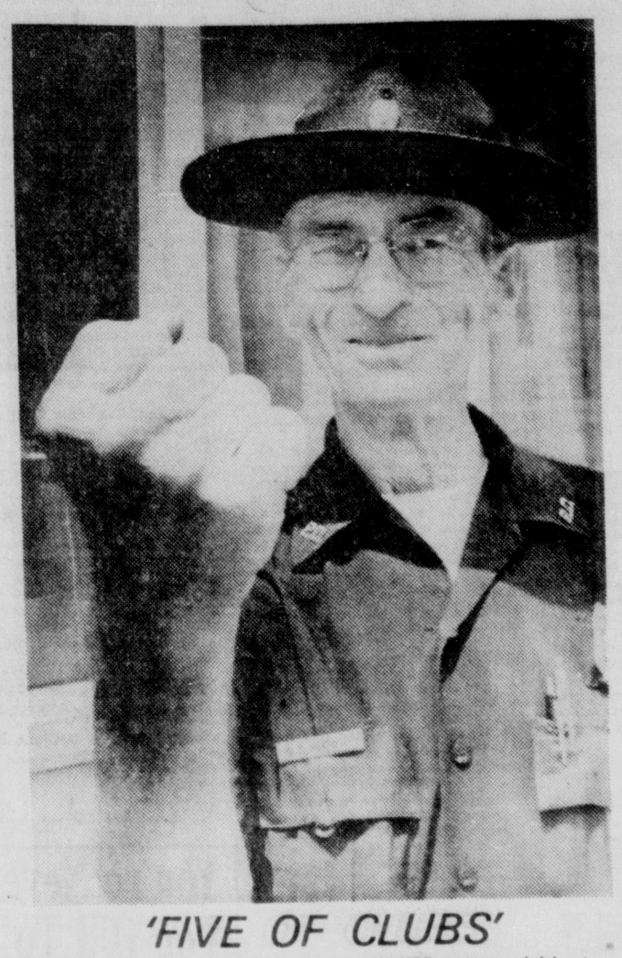
On the export side, the machinery and transportation equipment sectors staged the biggest increase, $207.8 million. Agricultural exports were also up, but by a smaller margin, $23.1 million.

Since the 1975 surplus was registered, the economic recovery has stimulated industry and consumer demands for fuel and for imported automobiles, television sets and other consumer products.

Imports increased by 9.9 per cent in June to a record level of $10.09 billion. Exports, meanwhile, rose 1.4 per cent to $9.7 billion.

The continuing rise in exports — the fourth straight monthly climb to a record in June — has been the factor which prompted most trade analysts to say that the shift into defict in the trade accounts appears to be a healthy thing for the U.S. economy now.

The deficits help our trading partners pull out of their recessions and thus build the foundation for future demand for American products overseas. And the imported products provide competition for American goods and help hold prices down.



'FIVE OF CLUBS'

Osburn Hoover says he may be 73 years old but he's still tough enough to be a cop. Hoover demonstrates his favorite weapon — his fist. He calls it the "five of clubs."

Tough cop at 73 is only law in town

PINEVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — Osburn S. Hoover suffers the shortness of breath caused by 25 years of breathing coal dust in the mines. But at 73 he's still tough enough to provide the only law needed in this tough coal town.

In fact, he usually leaves his .357-magnum revolver in his patrol car and shuns the use of a nightstick. He said he prefers "the five of clubs" — his big fist.

Hoover became Pineville's only policeman five years ago. Then the streets were frequented by drunks and nearly every high school football game ended in a battle — local toughs against the visitors. Now, there are few who stagger down the street and the fighting, if any, is kept outside of town.

Hoover says he took care of the drunks by walking into a bar and announcing that he was the local law. "You run your place inside," he told the owner. "I'll run the streets. Don't let your drunks wander out or I'll put you in the can."

Hoover backed up his threat with 18-hour patrols on which he arrested every drunk he could find. Today, he said, there are few.

Hoover, a wiry six feet, says he settled the after-game fights easily. He proclaimed: "Boys, I do the fighting. All of it. If you don't believe me, try me out."

"If he ever came after me," one tavern worker said, "I'd say, 'Here I am.' Cause one thing's sure — if he comes after you, he'll bring you back one way or another."

The white-haired policeman says most of his work in Pineville, population 1,200, now consists of ticketing illegally parked cars. He said he writes about 60 tickets a day.

But he said he hasn't slowed down much. "If I wasn't shortwinded, I'd be as good a man as I ever was," he says.

He has this advice for young policemen:

"Conduct yourself in a mannerly and respectful way. Know enough law to keep out of trouble. And don't take hearsay for an answer."

He also says policemen should stay out of family arguments.

"They'll get you killed quicker than bank robberies," he said.

Tax tool OK'd to fight bribery, boycotting

WASHINGTON (AP) — American firms that boycott Israel or use bribery as a foreign-sales tool stand to lose millions of dollars in tax benefits under a provision approved by the Senate.

Business executives would be subject to up to a year in jail for failing to report any corporate income derived as a result of a bribe or earnings in any country that requires participation in a boycott.

The provisions, far tougher than the Ford administration has recommended but still subject to House consideration, were added to a multibillion-dollar tax bill.

The antiboycott and antibribe provisions were part of a package, approved 86 to 1, that affects tax treatment of income earned by Americans or U.S. businesses abroad. There was no debate on the sanctions, which were written by the Finance Committee.

The committee acted in the wake of disclosures that some of the nation's biggest corporations cooperated in the Arab boycott of Israel and Jewish businessmen, and that others routinely paid bribes to foreign officials in order to improve sales.

Congressional aides estimate the provisions on boycotts and bribes will cost offending firms $100 million in 1977.

The antiboycott language would affect transactions made 30 days or more after the provisions become law. The anti-bribe section would generally become effective retroactive to Jan. 1.

In approving the package of amendments dealing with foreign income, the Senate handed self-styled "tax reformers" a victory by knocking out one of dozens of provisions that have been attacked as favoring special interests.

In writing the tax bill, the Finance Committee accepted a House-approved section that toughened tax treatment of trusts set up in foreign countries by Americans to benefit their children.

The House language would have applied the stricter rules as of May 21, 1974, the day the provision was written by the Ways and Means Committee. The Finance Committee, at the request of Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., delayed the effective date for eight days on grounds it took tax lawyers that long to find out about the House committee action.

Money supply slowed to dampen inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Arthur F. Burns said today the Federal Reserve Board has approved a slight slowdown in the growth of the nation's money supply to dampen inflation, and he predicted that all parts of the economy will improve in the months ahead.

Burns called the nation's continued underlying inflation rate of 6 to 7 per cent a "disease" and declared that "any such rate of inflation constitutes a serious threat to the economy." He said the board remains "deeply concerned" about unemployment as well.

Burns said slower growth rates for the money supply "are another small and prudent step in moving toward a rate of monetary expansion that may in time accommodate general price stability." In the months ahead, he said, "activity in all major sectors of the private economy thus seems poised for further advances."

The chairman indicated he doesn't believe slowing down money growth will cause any significant future increase in interest rates for consumers, and might cause no increase at all. The board tightened the money supply somewhat in recent weeks, he said, and it did not affect interest rates for either farmers or consumers.

Burns made his statements in testimony for the House Banking Committee. There were these other economic developments:

—The Labor Department said Monday that the productivity of American workers grew at a 3.6 per cent seasonally adjusted annual rate in the second quarter, contrasted to 7.5 per cent during the first three months of the year. Commerce has said total economic growth rose during the same period at half the first-quarter pace.

Burns said the growth rate target for the basic money supply, which includes cash and money in checking accounts, remains unchanged at 4.5 per cent to 7 per cent. But for another measure, which includes money in bank savings accounts, the target was lowered to 7.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent, down from an upper range of 10 per cent.

For a third measure, which includes money in thrift institutions, the new range was set at 9 per cent to 11 per cent, down from 9 per cent to 12 per cent previously.

The three measures of money are known as M-1, M-2 and M-3 respectively. Burns said downward adjustments in money growth rates as the economy recovers from recession help to reassure the business and financial community that the government will not permit a new outburst of inflation.

At the same time, Burns said, the changes in moneygrowth targets will not hurt economic expansion.

He said the recent slowdown in the rate of economic expansion is part of a traditional pattern of recovery from recessions and is not a cause for concern. Consumer buying probably will continue to be the nation's major source of economic strength, he said.

But Burns expressed concern over both continuing high unemployment as well as the rate of inflation.

"We at the Federal Reserve remain deeply concerned about the level of unemployment that still exists in our country," he said. "We recognize the pressing need for the nation to regain more prosperous economic conditions."

But he said the underlying rate of inflation in the economy apparently has not diminished during the past year, remaining at about 6 or 7 per cent.

"Any such rate of inflation constitutes a serious threat to the economy," he said, "and elimination of our disease of inflation must therefore remain a major objective of public policy."

The rate of growth of the money supply is considered important to the economy because it helps determine the interest rates on money loaned for consumer and business needs alike.

Gunman takes funds used for senior citizen trips

A gunman grabbed a cash box containing funds for excursion trips for Pomona senior citizens late Monday morning and then dared the woman collecting the money to follow him.

The incident occurred at the Palomares Community Center at 499 E. Arrow Highway.

City Parks and Recreation Department employe Charlotte E. Roselius, 36, told police later that she noticed the man loitering near the buildings as she was collecting cash and checks for the trips. Suddenly, she said, he entered the building, grabbed the cash box from a table and pointed a small pistol at her. "I dare you to follow me," he said, and ran southbound across Arrow Highway.

The box contained $259 in cash and $750 in checks, Jack Hoxsey, parks and recreation department director, said today. The loss of the funds will not affect the ability of the seniors to make the trips, however, he said.

The thief was white, 25 to 30, 6 feet tall weighing 160 pounds. He had reddish hair, a mustache and wore a light-blue shirt and dark trousers.

Arson suspected

Arson is suspected by Pomona fire officials in a $1,500 fire which destroyed an empty house at 1249 E. Third St. Monday afternoon.

The small house owned by A.L. Bosch of Chino was totally involved when firefighters arrived at 1:51 p.m.

The fire appears to have been started in three locations, two inside the house and one in the attached garage.

Two young women who had been cleaning up the house left the premises about 45 minutes prior to the discovery of the fire, witnesses said.

Security guard jailed

A security guard supposed to be staking out an ONTARIO metal company plagued with a series of thefts was arrested by police Monday after a van he was driving was found to contain numerous metal ingots stolen from the company.

Security guard Ernesto Galindo Martinez, 22, of Corona, according to police, was arrested after telling officers that he had stolen the ingots "so I could show them how easy it was to steal them." Martinez was booked in the West End Jail this morning on a charge of possession of stolen property.

The incident began about 11 a.m. Monday when Ontario police Officer F. Fryer noticed the van blocking an alley at the rear of Blue Line Co., on Bon View Avenue north of Francis Avenue. The officer noticed a number of metal ingots and a security officer's uniform in the van.

When the security guard returned to the van he was questioned by Fryer and Robert L. Gross, operations manager of the Burns Detective Agency — Martinez' employer. Police said Martinez admitted to taking the ingots and was arrested.

Blue Line Co. officials said they had hired security guards in hopes of preventing numerous thefts, first thought to be employes.

Shot fired from car

A Covina man suffered an eye cut early today when an occupant of another car on the San Bernardino Freeway in POMONA fired a shot at him which shattered a window of his car.

The incident occurred east of Dudley Street shortly before 1:30 a.m.

The victim, Jay M. Odom, told police that the other car was driven alongside of his and the passenger fired at him, shattering the window and showering him with glass. The other driver continued westbound while Odom pulled off the freeway and drove to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after treatment.

Odom told police he knows of no reason for the attack. He said the car from which the shot was fired was a 1970 to 1973-model brown Buick Skylark with a white vinyl top occupied by two blacks.

'Porno king' linked to prostitution plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man reportedly known as the "porno king" of New York has allegedly been linked to plans for a massive prostitution ring along the Alaska pipeline, a Los Angeles source said today.

The source said the name of Martin Hodas surfaced in connection with a recent indictment of nine persons in connection with an alleged sex and gambling conspiracy.

Hodas was named in the indictment, but was not indicted. Federal officials said they were continuing their investigation. Hodas is now serving a one-year federal prison term in Florida for tax evasion.

The source said federal documents revealed that one of those indicted, former U.S. Atty. Richard L. McVeigh, was to make payoffs to provide "protection" from Alaskan authorities for the venture.

The indictment said McVeigh planned to help Hodas and two others set up "large-scale prostitution" in Anchorage and along the pipeline.

House to vote on reprimand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House will vote Thursday on whether to reprimand Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., for financial misconduct and make him the first congressman since Adam Clayton Powell to be disciplined by his peers.

The House Ethics Committee recommended two reprimands Monday for what it calls Sikes' violations of congressional "standards of conduct."

Schweiker voting record a liberal one

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, picked by Ronald Reagan as his running mate, is not cast in the traditional Republican mold. His voting record has been rated as the most liberal among Republican members of the Senate.

Schweiker, selected by Reagan Monday, has supported liberal legislation and has criticized leaders of his own party during his 16-year career in national politics.

"My independence is my lifestyle," says the 50-year-old Pennsylvanian. "I'm not a Republican stereotype. And I'm not the kind of guy who can get the word from the party and vote for something that I don't believe in."

"Basically this is a coalition," Schweiker says of his agreeing to join the former California governor. He added that Reagan "made it clear I would have input."

Schweiker's voting record in the Senate has been decidedly liberal. The Committee on Political Education, the political arm of the AFL-CIO, rated Schweiker's voting record at 100 per cent prolabor in 1975, the highest of any Republican senator.

In addition, Americans for Democratic Action gave Schweiker an 89 rating last year, higher than any other Senate Republican except Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., who rated 94.

Schweiker was elected to the House of Represenatives in 1960 and served there until elected to the Senate in 1968. He was elected to a second term in the Senate in 1974.

Schweiker doesn't deny that he thinks this is a good time for him to run for the vice presidency. For a while, he said, he had weighed his chances of getting the second spot on a Ford ticket.

He said that by joining the Reagan ticket, a number of delegates will switch from support of Ford, including some of the 103 Pennsylvania delgates.

Schweiker, previously a Ford delegate, has withdrawn as a delegate. He will begin calling delegates from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and New York to try to swing them to Reagan.

As of this morning, the Pennsylvania delegation was split 69 for Ford, six for Reagan and 28 uncommitted.

Schweiker was one of the few Republicans to support Medicare, federal rent subsidies and a massive cut in defense spending. He was also among the first prominent Republicans to demand President Nixon's resignation during the Watergate scandal. And he criticized Ford's tax and oil policies as favorable to the rich.

In 1964, he refused to support Barry Goldwater as the Republican presidential nominee.

Back home, his appeal has attracted the support of many Democrats, including those he opposed and beat.

Joseph S. Clark, the former Philadelphia mayor whom Schweiker knocked out of the Senate in 1968, said, "I couldn't have lost to a better guy." Clark described Schweiker, the first Republican to get the backing of the state AFL-CIO, as "courageous, liberal, understanding and capable."

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE NO. 2784

AN EMERGENCY ORDINANCE OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, PROHIBITING THE ISSUING OF CERTIFICATES OF OCCUPANCY, BUILDING PERMITS AND BUSINESS LICENSES FOR NUDE PHOTOGRAPHY STUDIOS, SCHOOLS WHICH TEACH BODILY CONTACT ACTIVITIES, TALK AND ENCOUNTER CENTERS, ADULT BOOK STORES AND OTHER ADULT ENTERTAINMENT ESTABLISHMENTS UNTIL A STUDY IS COMPLETED.

WHEREAS, there was a proliferation of massage parlors located in the City of Pomona in the late 1960's within a very short time until stopped by appropriate zoning studies instituted by the Planning Commission and the City Council and the regulation of such parlors; and

WHEREAS, there has recently come or threatened to come to the City of Pomona certain uses such as nude photograph studios, sexual encounter parlors, talk centers and "schools" for massage which are actually massage parlors, "adult" book stores and other adult entertainment establishments; and

WHEREAS, it is necessary for the health, safety, morals and general welfare of the people of the City of Pomona that such construction and uses of land be halted pending a thorough study of these uses and the determination where, if anywhere, in the City these uses should be allowed and under what regulations and conditions; and

WHEREAS, the United State Supreme Court in the case of Young v. American Mini-Theatres on June 24, 1976 determined that adult entertainment establishments may be dispersed throughout the community by zoning laws although such dispersement could not reduce the number of adult book stores and theatres in the community.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Pomona, California, as follows:

SECTION 1. There is hereby declared a moratorium on building and the using of land for nude photography studios and schools for nude photography, sexual encounter parlors, talk centers, wrestling and other bodily contact sports parlors, schools involving bodily, contact such as (but not limited to) dance studios, massage schools, physiotherapy studios and schools which teach wrestling and other bodily contact sports, "adult" entertainment establishments and "adult" book stores, for four months, commencing July 20, 1976.

SECTION 2. The Department of Community Development and the Department of Public Works and the City Clerk are hereby directed to reject any applications for building permits, certificates of occupancy and business licenses for such uses and to cancel any such permits, certificates and licenses already issued for such uses during the time period set forth above in Section 1.

SECTION 3. The Planning Division and the Police Department are hereby directed to study with particularity the conduct of such uses in Pomona and in other communities to ascertain the appropriate zoning districts, if any, wherein such uses shall be allowed and under what conditions said uses shall be allowed in such zones.

SECTION 4. Pursuant to Section 510, Charter of the City of Pomona, this ordinance is declared to be an emergency ordinance for the immediate preservation of public peace, health and safety of the City of Pomona because of proliferation of schools of physical contact activities, talk and encounter centers, "adult" book stores and adult entertainment establishments and similar uses of land would not be beneficial unless properly regulated and assigned to certain zoning districts of the City not yet known until the above study is made.

SECTION 5. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this ordinance, causing it to be published as required by law, and it shall thereafter be in full force and effect.

APPROVED, PASSED & ADOPTED this 19th day of July, 1976.

You're Never Too Old To Hear Better

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Send for this non-operating model to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so write for yours now. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 2796, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Illinois 60646.

Garter snakes do not lay eggs as other snakes do. The mother snake carries her eggs in her body until they have developed into little snakes. When born, the baby snakes can crawl immediately.

IN MEMORIUM

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Charlie Cox. God granted him 69 years on earth. He had sunshine but also tears.

Then a year ago God called him home. We miss him so. The Lord helps us our grief to bear. Heaven seems nearer now that he's there. We too can go to heaven God's eternal day and with our loved ones forever stay.

Obituary

J. C. Sholdes

J. C. Sholdes of 950 Alamosa Drive, Claremont, died Sunday evening in a local convalescent hospital.

Mr. Sholdes was born Sept. 27, 1895 in Pennsylvania. He came to California in 1946 from Cleveland, Ohio and lived in Montebello, then Arcadia before moving to Claremont in 1956. He was a member of the Ashlar Masonic Lodge 639 in Bedford, Ohio.

Besides his widow, Viola, he is survived by two sons, Charles E. of Claremont and Raymond J. of Brawley; and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Pitts and Mrs. Marie McGinty, both of Cleveland, Ohio.

Services will be held Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. The Rev. Paul F. Huebner of Claremont will officiate and Compass Masonic Lodge 590 will conduct its ritual. Burial will be made in Rose Hills Memorial Park, Whittier.

Attorney blames rate hikes on insurance company greediness

ATLANTA (AP) — Rising medical malpractice insurance rates are due to insurance company greed and incompetent physicians, the president-elect of a national lawyers group has charged.

Insurance companies are trying to recoup losses in the stock market by raising rates, said Robert G. Begam, who will become president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America on Wednesday.

"An upswing in medical malpractice insurance premiums was inevitable to help recoup losses — losses due to management nearsightedness or, if you will, management malpractice," the Phoenix attorney said Monday.

"The frightening incompetence of too many healthcare providers" is another major cause of the problem," he said.

Both the insurance and medical fields have "tarred and feathered the trial lawyer as the 'heavy' — the bad guy — in the controversy," he said. "They were making the trial bar the scapegoat for their own misdeeds."

He said studies have indicated that about 16,000 of the nation's 320,000 physicians are unfit to practice medicine.

$50,000 earrings stolen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor has reported the theft of a pair of sapphire and diamond earrings valued at $50,000 from her home in the exclusive Bel-Air section of Los Angeles.

Miss Gabor told police she returned home with a friend and found the front door of her home had been opened with a pass key. She said the earrings and some costume jewelry were missing from her bedroom.

She said a safe in the house had been opened but apparently nothing was taken from it.

The political arena

Brutocao forums...Lloyd on 'report cards'

LOUIS BRUTOCAO, Republican nominee in the 35th Congressional District, is holding a series of Thursday breakfast programs in Ontario and West Covina to discuss national and local problems with area residents.

The sessions are conducted at Squire's Restaurant in Ontario on the first and third Thursdays of the month and at Clifton's Restaurant in West Covina on the second and fourth Thursdays. The public is invited.

These conferences serve as forums for people to express their impressions of the course the national government is following and to suggest solutions to problems, explained Brutocao.

"I intend to listen to local ideas and offer the people every opportunity to participate in my campaign which stresses the need to cut big government down to size," he added.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., believes that various legislative "report cards" issued by political groups can make the same legislator appear conservative or liberal, for ecology or against it, or favorable or unfavorable to labor and dozens of other issues.

"It's what I call the ratings game and there are ratings to support any point of view or oppose any."

Lloyd said the fallacy of ratings is they take about 10 votes during a year's period when there were nearly 1,000 votes on every kind of legislation and then label people as liberal, conservative, pro-ecology or anti-senior citizen.

"You can't rate someone on the basis of one per cent of their record, and fortunately voters don't hold the ratings in high regard," he said.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., will participate in the 50-state National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws which meets July 31-Aug. 6 in Atlanta, Ga.

The commission sponsors the enactment of uniform statutes developed by the National Conference of Commissioners on matters in which compatibility with other states is considered desirable.

McVittie was appointed earlier this year to the seven-member California Commission on Uniform State Laws. Only two members are legislators.

MRS. MARIAN W. LaFOLLETTE, who served six years on the Los Angeles Community College District Board of Trustees, has been appointed Los Angeles County chairman for the Hayakawa for U.S. Senate campaign.

Mrs. LaFollette is state chairman for the Reform Education Action Plan which she initiated for the California Federation of Republican Women. The program was designed to reverse several problems in the school system, particularly the inadequate teaching of basic skills, she said.

Pomona district

Comp Ed passes state inspection; critic still sore

State officials have determined that the Compensatory Education program in Pomona's public schools is "conducted in an appropriate manner," Concerned Parents of the Pomona Unified School District have been informed.

Rafael Chavarria, chairman of the parents group, called the finding a "cover-up" and said his group would ask for assistance from the National Compensatory Education Office "to get better response to correct situations affecting the educational needs of Spanish surnamed children in Pomona."

This group requested an investigation of the Pomona program by state officials in May. Its criticisms were that the program, which brings nearly $2 million a year into the Pomona school district, received few suggestions from parents, that it lacked true bilingual programs, misued monies for personnel and equipment not related to Comp Ed and employed personnel who did not have language skills to work with limited and non-English speaking children.

James B. Nelson, manager of elementary field services in California, wrote the parents that the State Department of Education had reviewed Pomona's applications and program as well as project management.

"The review encompassed an analysis of the on-site monitor, a review of the district and five schools, responses from the district to your specific concerns and on-site visits," Nelson said.

In addition, Nelson pointed out, Joe Portillo of the State Department of Education, had spent a day in Pomona.

In his letter to Chavarria, Nelson said that "There is satisfactory evidence to verify that the management of the programs conforms to federal and state regulations and administrative direction."

Nelson said there was evidence the district and school advisory committees (parents) have been effectively involved in planning, development and evaluation of both applications and plans.

He said it was the conclusion of the department that "the needs of bilingual children in Pomona have been addressed, that programs and staff have been provided to serve the limited and non-English speaking child and that the bilingual-bicultural programs funded by the state have been provided in an appropriate manner."

Nelson told the parents that the state would continue to review programs for compliance and quality on an annual basis.

Cub Scout camps set

Old Baldy Council, Boy Scouts of America, will conduct two one-week Cub Scout day camps for boys 8 through 10 Aug. 2-6 and Aug. 9-13.

They will be held in Larkin Park in Claremont and will be open to all boys, not just Cub Scouts. The cost is $15 per boy. The program, to be conducted daily between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m., will include .22 caliber rifle shooting, archery, hikes and a nature study.

Lunch will be provided.

The highlight of the camp will be one full day at the Holcomb Valley Scout Camp near Big Bear. There will be a picnic and a rocket derby on the last day of each session.

Reservations may be made by calling executive Gordon Brown at 626-3551.

First flag

CHICAGO (AP) — The first flag to fly in North America was the Viking flag of Leif Ericson, according to "World Book Encyclopedia." It featured the black silhouette of a bird, with wings outstretched, mounted on a white rectangular background. It is believed to have flown over American soil in the 11th century.

Canada pop idol comes to U.S.

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Name a singer who has been written about in the Wall Street Journal and Time magazine, whose concerts in Japan and France are sellouts, who has outsold The Beatles and Elvis Presley in Canada, and has made three movies and who is a confirmed millionaire.

The answer: Rene Simard.

All that, and the rotten kid won't be 16 until next February.

Maybe you haven't heard of Rene, but you will. He's all set to invade the United States, and he's confident the reception here will be as warm as it's been everyplace else. He's even confident that his recent voice change — all his big hits were done in his boy soprano which is gone forever — won't slow him down.

He's a smallish, ever-smiling boy with the thick French accent common to the French-speaking part of Canada. He is learning English now, since he's moved to Los Angeles, but it is still far from perfect.

I asked him a question containing the word "restrictions," and he seized on it. He didn't know the word and wanted to know all about it — what it meant, how to pronounce it.

Later, he was talking about the type of buildings in his native Quebec, and used the word "architecture." Only he pronounced it "arshiteshture."

"Is that right?" he said.

"No, it's architecture."

"Architeshure?"

He couldn't say it. He laughed. He laughs a lot. He's obviously a happy kid, which is only natural. He has the world by the tail.

Rene comes from an island — l'Orleans — in the St. Lawrence River about six miles from Quebec City. His father is a chef at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec's most famous hotel.

Air Force band for Montclair series

One of the nation's leading military musical organizations, The Air Force Band of the Golden West is scheduled to perform in Montclair in the Civic Center's recreation facility — The Starlite Patio Theater. The concert the seventh event of the Patio's Summer Series, will be given next Tuesday at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

The band's program, "Sounds of '76," is designed to display the versatility and showmanship that have become the hallmark of the 45 piece unit.

Under the command and directorship of Air Force Lt. Daniel Schmidt and Assistant Conductor Senior Master Sergeant Donald Epstein, the band features special arrangements by Air Force bandsman and vocal soloists Airman First Class Gary Petete and Airman Lonnie Snyder, and fluglehornist Airman First Class John Daniels.

Festival of music scheduled

The festival of Nations, coming to the Starlight Bowl in Burbank on Aug. 7, is an extravaganza of music and dance and one of the most spectacular Bicentennial productions of the year.

Nothing on this scale has been done at the Bowl since Leo Damiani last conducted his Wonderful World of Youth Orchestra there. There is a cast of 300 — a 100-voice choir, the 60-piece orchestra, 40 dancers in the Panaieff Festival Ballet, consuls and dignitaries representing the nations in the 90-minute production, and more actors and dancers.

Michael Panaieff, choreographer and artistic director, has worked with Damiani for 20 years. He choreographed the last Festival of Nations at the Bowl in 1958.

Panaieff is famous in choreography for his storytelling.

Paintings of two artists on display

Two Claremont Graduate School artists are showing paintings in a free exhibit at Libra Gallery this week.

Ruth Knudson has six paintings under the title "Sky Larks." She uses air brushing of stuffed fabrics in her work, producing a three-dimensional effect.

Vance Lorenzini's section of the show is entitled "Off the Wall," and it is literally that. He uses latex rubber to lift part of the surface material from walls and fences for his paintings.

The artists will greet the public at a reception in the gallery at 8 Wednesday night. Both are master of arts students at CGS. Regular gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Libra Gallery is at 12th Street and Dartmouth Avenue.

Workshop planned for piano teachers

Ralph Pierce Music invited all piano teachers in the area to a free workshop on the technique of teaching beginning music students at 9:30 a.m. Friday. The workshop will meet at the music store at 822 N. Garey Ave., Pomona and will be conducted by a prominent music educator from Colorado, Eloise Ristad.

Ms. Ristad will explain some of her unique teaching techniques and show some of her recent publications in the field of student methods and music for performance for the Pomona class.

Anyone wishing to attend the class or to receive further information can phone Ralph Pierce Music at 623-5525.

Former executive has no regrets about quitting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last May, Robert D. Wood resigned as head of CBS-TV after more than seven successful years. He also quit New York to return to his favorite locale for living — sunny Southern California.

It was a surprising move, leaving the power, big salary and pin-striped perquisites of CBS in Fun City. But Wood, born in Idaho, raised in Beverly Hills, says he has no regrets about his decision.

"To be back here, with my friends, my family, back where I was raised — geez, there's no way I can describe my exhilaration," said Wood, his voice as cheery as the day he was interviewed.

The man who gave the nod to a bold new show called "All in the Family" in 1971 and began a revolution in situation comedy isn't a member of the shuffleboard set yet. He's only 51, still active in TV.

He now heads Nephi Productions, Nephi being the name of the small Idaho town where he spent his boyhood summers. The company will develop TV shows exclusively for CBS — which Wood joined in 1949 — for at least four years. He already has four projects on the drawing boards.

Joyce Brothers

Love, honor or sell?

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband is furious because I sold an ugly lamp his aunt gave us for a wedding gift and bought an antique brooch with the money. He admits he didn't like the lamp but says it was extravagant to buy the pin. He can't understand how much I wanted the pin for my jewelry collection. — M.J.

Dear M.J.: Too often, time and energy are wasted in arguing about issues that are only decoys for the real point of conflict. The question of your extravagence is superficial, as is your husband's inability to understand your appreciation of jewelry. What is more important is the underlying motivations.

One factor seems to be your insensitivity to the meaning a gift has for both the giver and the recipient. Even if the recipient doesn't like the gift, the giver's generosity and intent should not be discounted. In your husband's eyes, selling a gift from his aunt abused her gesture of generosity.

Also important is the fact that the lamp was a mutual possession and you failed to discuss the matter with him. Insult was compounded by your using the money to buy something for yourself alone.

The person who feels compelled to collect valuable or symbolically valuable possessions may be expressing a desire to create security rather than intrinsic appreciation of the things he buys. The phrase "diamonds are a girl's best friend" has more than humorous meaning for some. Not trusting in others, constantly anxious about the possibility of abandonment, jewelry becomes one source of permanent gratification.

The person who lavishes expensive gifts on himself is also reaffirming his worth as a person in his own eyes.

While your jewelry collecting may not be such an important feature of your life, it is possible that you sold the lamp and bought the brooch to reaffirm your own value and criticize your husband. After all, the "ugly" lamp from your husband's relative was replaced by something you considered "beautiful."

Try to recall the day you decided to sell the lamp. Were you depressed? Were you angry with your husband or any of your in-laws?

You might offer to return the brooch and buy back the lamp, if possible, although your husband may feel this is not necessary. His criticism of you as "extravagant" may have been meant as an accusation of thoughtlessness. This may be a good time for you to talk over your misunderstandings or grievances about family finances.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: There doesn't seem to be much question about Freddie and me being in love. Every moment apart is torture. But when we're not making love, we're fighting. I don't like his politics, his life style, his family or his opinion about most things. He feels the same about me. Sexually we have an ideal thing going and we are considering marriage. But, I don't think I could take the fighting. I know opposites are supposed to attract, but this seems a bit much. What's the matter with us? — O.S.

Dear O.S.: Maybe you don't like each other. It's quite possible to be sexually attracted to someone whom you wouldn't even have for a friend if it weren't for the immediate attraction. I can't imagine a woman being happily married to someone she couldn't be friendly with. You can't be "in love" all the time. You're going to have to spend a lot of time just talking to each other. Right now, marriage to each other would seem to be the worst thing you can do. I strongly recommend you carefully consider before you step into marriage.

Corona-Lovett vows repeated

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bert Corona have established a home in Pomona following their marriage at Mt. Baldy Village Church.

MRS. DANIEL CORONA

The former Miss Lynn Lovett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Eugene Lovett of Chino. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.N. Corona of Chino.

Honor attendent was Miss Sandy Cambis of Pomona. Best man was Glenn Corona of Santa Monica, brother of the groom.

Other attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Butch Giggy of Bakersfield, sister and brother-in-law of the couple.

The couple honeymooned at Las Vegas, Nev.

Film charted in Claremont

Preparing Expectant Parents, Inc., will show a film, "Becoming," at Claremont Library meeting room at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday. The group sponsors eight-week class sessions in the Lamaze techniques.

Information may be obtained by calling 621-2668 or 985-9985.

Referral service available

Troubled families and marriages experiencing crisis are finding assistance by calling S.A.F. (pronounced "safe"). Save-A-Family, (623-9769) is a hot line telephone referral service in the Pomona Valley.

The telephones are answered 24 hours each day and provide easy access to a qualified individual who knows how to listen, when to talk and where to refer for more help. Under the direction of the Staff of Pomona Counseling Service, the telephones are answered by licensed counselors who are members of American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors or of California Association of Marriage and Family Counselors and trained paraprofessionals. A caller will not be referred to Pomona Counseling Service.

The function of S.A.F. is to help people who are experiencing distress with marriage and family problems. If a person just needs to have someone listen, then S.A.F. is there for that.

Classes set in Covina

A new series of classes in prepared childbirth will begin at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday at Inter-Community Hospital at Covina.

Conducting the series of classes will be Chris Wied. Information may be obtained by calling her at 213-447-3159.

Panel to review plans for 97-unit Claremont tract

Review of the architectural and site plans for a 97-unit residential development by John D. Lusk and Son south of Mirmar Avenue between Forbes and Bonnie Brae avenues will come before the Claremont Architectural Commission Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Baseline Recreation Center.

The applicant has submitted a detailed exterior elevation finish schedule with material and color schemes keyed to models, elevations and lot numbers.

The city staff indicated that the variety and nature of the elevations and floor plans is appropriate for that particular area.

The commission also will discuss:

— A proposed change in a permanent sign for Howard Johnson's. The applicant is proposing a double-faced sign directly below the existing feeway sign, partially hidden by eucalyptus trees for westbound traffic. The staff has recommended approval.

— A landscaping plan on the types of ground cover and shurbs for the large plaza area directly in front of the three-story office building for Griswold's east of Colby Circle and north of Foothill Boulevard.

— A back-up wall treatment along Mills Avenue and Base Line Road. The city in its subdivision review has been requiring a backup wall along the west side of Mills Avenue north of Base Line Road. Since five or six developers are involved, the staff is concerned that there be some uniformity without monotony.

— Subdivision standards and development of a rural ordinance for most of the 2.3 square miles in Annexation 52-A north of Base Line Road.

— Remodeling of a commercial structure at 102-108 Harvard Ave. by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davidson.

On campus

An intensive three-day course on government contracting and small business will be conducted at Kellogg West, CAL POLY POMONA on Aug. 4, 5 and 6.

The course will be presented by the community relations committee for the business management department at the School of Business at Cal Poly, the American Graduate University and Procurement Associates, Inc.

Serving as faculty for the seminars are Paul F. Weisend, professor of business management at Cal Poly; Paul R. McDonald Jr., vice president of Procurement Associates; Milton I. Drucker, president of the Drucker Group, consultants to management; and Allen A. Kaufman,, consultant and owner of RK Industries.

Additional information and registration may be obtained by contacting American Graduate University, 733 N. Dodsworth Ave., Covina.

CITRUS COLLEGE will conduct its second summer session from Aug. 2 to 27. Registrations will be held in the Admissions Office from 9 a.m. to noon on July 31.

Subjects offered cover a wide range of interests and include consumer education, business law, bicycling, intermediate tennis, introduction to theater arts and Latin American history.

A complete list of courses and additional information may be obtained from the Evening Division Office, located in the Administration Building, or by calling 599-5773.

Chino board gives school chief high marks on work

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino Schools Supt. Royce Lapp, often the center of controversy in the past, received a good grade from the school board Monday night on his accomplishments during 1975-76.

The board reviewed his report on attempts to meet goals he had set for himself over the past year, and commented favorably. They also seemed pleased with Lapp's future goals for the 1976-77 school year.

"I personally found the goals and objectives as helpful to me," said board President Al McCombs. "It revealed progress by the administration."

Trustee Pete Vander Poel, who agreed with McCombs, noted however, that some material was "superficial. People want to know what is being used to arrive at this and what is to be accomplished."

Vander Poel suggested that each goal be looked at closely at various board meetings. "And bring each person involved in this into the discussion."

The board made it clear that it was difficult to review all of Lapp's goals and accomplishments at one meeting, and do an adequate job.

Accomplishments over 1975-76 listed by Lapp included development of a management team concept, changes to meet the growing student population, decentralized management, involving the public in decisions, affirmative action policy improvements. Also, student achievement, in testing and other areas, and staff development were listed as accomplishments.

Trustee Augustine Tapia said that while progress was evident among the Spanish-surnamed in the affirmative action program, "we ought to get other minorities in the district involved. Women, Vietnamese, veternas, and the handicapped should also be in the program," he said.

Lapp said there has actually been "no progress" on the status of women in the district, although the goal was listed.

As to student testing, Tapia said, "We have tests without knowing what goals they are measuring."

Students involvement at board meetings was discussed briefly, with the conclusion reached that pupils cannot be expected to participate in dialogue with the board at every meeting. It is desirable to have them attend the meetings, the board agreed.

Lapp's goals for 1976-77 include continuing many of the same programs, and increasing parent and staff involvement.

In other action, board members finally reached a decision on what to do with Buena Vista Continuation High School. They approved the proposed purchase of a new 5-acre site for the school on Ramona Avenue between Schaeffer and Chino avenues. It would be moved from its present location on the Magnolia School site.

School secret out in open in Walnut: flat pay increases

By PEGGY GONZALES
PB Staff Writer

Guarded as if they were gold, two Walnut board responses to salary and benefit proposals containing flat dollar pay increases of $375 annually for teachers and $21 monthly for non-teaching employes were made public Monday night.

The documents were distributed simultaneously to employes and the press.

The flat dollar pay increase proposals contrasted with traditional percentage raises.

Each response contained a flat dollar pay increase proposal rather than the traditional percentage raise.

For teachers the annual increase offered was $375. Classified employes were offered a $21 monthly increase.

The document for teachers didn't contain an ounce of glitter for Charles Sismondo, president of the Walnut Valley Educators Association.

"It's totally unacceptable to the teachers," he said, adding that it benefits people at the bottom of the scale.

His comments were made after the meeting, before he and other teachers went into a huddle to try to determine the total significance of the board's proposal.

Thirty-six pages long, it contained such headings as employe freedom, association rights and employe hours, days and duty obligations.

Teachers previously had submitted a salary schedule proposal constituting approximately a 12 per cent pay raise. Classified (nonteaching) employes had asked for a 12.2 per cent increase.

Both will have a chance to respond to the board's response at the next board meeting.

If classified employes were present they were silent.

Asked by the press for a translation of the trustees' salary schedule in percentage terms, Ray W. Mc-Mullen, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel and staff development, said doing so would take a lot of explanation and more time than was available before press deadline.

Examination of the salary schedule proposed by teachers showed that a teacher entering his third year with a bachelor's degree plus 45 semester units or his master's degree would receive a raise of $1,409.

Board members opened their brief public meeting by approving a policy statement on their role in the employer-employe relations process under the state Rodda Act.

David L. Brown, superintendent, called particular attention to a statement within the policy that the public school program would give "first and most concern to the interests of the students and their efforts to gain the best education possible to fit them for a productive life in our society."

Richard Vind, board member, complained that two-thirds of the 44-page document presented to the board by the teachers dealt with identification of teacher responsibilities.

"What about educating the kids?" he asked.

Donn C. Morris, Walnut High School teacher, countered, "I resent your implication that we are not interested in teaching. It's something we chose to do and love to do."

Vind said Morris had read something not meant into the board's statement. After the meeting the two got together and agreed their only differences in the matter were in terminology.

Legislators hear female inmate pleas for education, training

California Institution for Women inmates Monday suggested to a state Assembly committee that qualified teachers from the inmate ranks be hired as regular instructors for academic and vocational classes.

During the special hearing of the Assembly Select Committee on Corrections at the Chino women's institution, the inmates also suggested that legislation be passed which would permit more courses in vocations.

These would help inmates reentering society earn "enough to support their families," and community correctional centers should be established to provide the necessary training, inmates said.

Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, chairman of the Select Committee, said the purpose of the hearing "was to continue receiving testimony from individuals relative to the educational program with California state prisoners.

"I would like to make special mention of the fact that far too long this institution (CIW) has been a stepchild in the CDC (California Department of Corrections) system. This fact has led to a policy of neglect and general apathy toward CIW. I, for one, believe the problems of women who are imprisoned are equal to those of men, and in some respects, even more critical."

The committee members at CIW, including Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., Alatorre, and Floyd Mori, said they would take the suggestions of the inmates under advisement.

The inmates told the committee that most of the women would prefer more vocational training than is currently being offered, saying at least 20 updated vocations should be available.

Montclair girl dies in traffic crash

Funeral services are pending for a 14-year-old Montclair girl who was fatally injured in an auto accident near Kingman, Ariz., late Sunday.

Linda S. Mattock of 9580 Poulsen Ave., riding in an eastbound car driven by her mother Ruth, was killed when the auto collided with a westbound vehicle on U.S. 66 Sunday at 10:30 p.m., the highway patrol said.

Mrs. Mattock was reported in satisfactory condition today at Mojave General Hospital in Kingman after suffering chest and arm injuries. Her daughter was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

Driver of the other car, Stanley R. Clarno, 43, of Kenwick, Wash., was not injured, Patrolmen said. His passenger, Peter Martel, 25, of Silver City, N.M., also escaped injury.

Stabbed youth still critical

James Harzman, the 17-year-old Azusa youth found beaten and stabbed 33 times July 13 in San Gabriel Canyon, remains in critical condition in County-USC Medical Center.

Harzman, who went unidentified for several days after being found, has been conscious but unable to speak. Sheriff's deputies lack a motive for the attack and report no new developments in the case.

Undercover agent on job at fairgrounds—Hollywood style

Actor James Franciscus was an undercover man on the trail of villain gamblers as movie cameras ground away Monday at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

Franciscus, hero in many television series, is the star of a $1.2 million G-rated comedy "The Amazing Dobermans" being made by producer David Chudnow and his director son Byron Chudnow.

It is the third movie by the pair involving Dobermans. The first in the series, "The Doberman Gang," cost under $200,000, and grossed $4 million.

The second movie, "The Return of the Dobermans," was sequel, and did as well.

The latest production has no tie-in with the other two.

The film being made by Rosamond Productions deals with Franciscus as "Lucky," and undercover man seeking to nail some bigtime gamblers, played by Jim Almanzar and Charles Brill.

Franciscus goes to work in the circus and his cover is that of a trainer of a Doberman act.

Fred Astaire plays the part of a wise, old con man who becomes Franciscus' partner by lending him his Dobermans.

Barbara Eden adds the romantic thrust to the movie by playing a bareback rider and falling in love with "Lucky."

The movie is being produced on the lines of a Walt Disney film. The fact that violence is only implied will help its G-rating.

A scene was shot in the grandstand Monday morning, with another scene filmed in the stable area in the afternoon when "Lucky" phones the bad guys for a loan so he can have closer contact with them.

Several members of the Mt. San Antonio College drama club gained some valuable experience as extras during the shooting.

Other scenes will be shot in Simi Valley.

The movie is scheduled for release in November.

Capitol pig sty

Although the reconstruction work on the State Capitol, which went into full swing following the summer recessing of the Legislature, will not substantially affect the modern East Wing Annex, the Governor's Office within it is in shambles.

Built as a showcase for the State's Chief Executive, it has become, under Governor Jerry Brown, a focal point for demonstrators.

So far the intruders have only succeeded in making a mess of the reception room and the conference room immediately adjacent. The governor's formal and private offices as well as those of his staff are behind locked doors which have not been penetrated as yet.

Visitors to the office with business to conduct have been appalled at the degredation of the office. For most of the month of July the rooms have been pre-empted by a lie-in of mental patients protesting treatment at the state hospitals. They have converted the office into a pig sty as unwashed, they eat and sleep in the quarters. Some apparently lack control of their body functions as the smell of urine permeates. Their hand lettered signs of complaints adorn the walls where once hung picturesque oil scenes of California's glories.

The mental patients are but just one of numerous groups which have been tolerated by the governor's permissive policies towards various sit-ins and other types of demonstrations.

It all started soon after Brown took office. He ordered the two huge entrance doors swung wide presumably as symbolic of an "openness in government". Thereafter he permitted the offices to be turned into exhibition halls as different ethnic groups displayed purported evidences of their cultures.

Soon the exhibitions turned into demonstrations and escalated into lie-ins. Not only has no action been taken to stop this usurpation of the state's principal business office, it has been encouraged as top state visit and jolly with the demonstrators.

The attitude towards it all is a far cry from the day when the Legislature enacted a measure aimed at one picketer, the 95 year old ex-minister Robert Simpson, who plagued the halls with his Anglo-Saxon definitions of the governor and other state officials. Despite the law Simpson persisted in marching through the halls and was arrested more than 100 times. The courts refused to jail him and eventually the law was repealed.

The "Simpson" law was obviously not the right answer. People do have the right to petition their government and it should not be abridged. But that right does not include a license to disrupt the normal operations of government.

Many others, besides the demonstrators, have legitimate business to conduct in the State Capitol and the governor's offices. It would seem the governor and the Legislature have a duty to see to it that they are not interfered with by activists.

The current situation suggests the need for restricting the demonstrators to the Capitol steps. If people feel so strongly on an issue that they want to stage sit-ins, there is adequate space in the Capitol Park for them to camp.

As liberal as the legislators may be, they have acted to curtail what they deemed a conversion of the state Motor Vehicle Department into a cultural and welfare operation by eliminating funds for murals and child care centers. The solons should take an equally tough stand with respect to the Capitol. Certainly they should explain to the governor that his offices are not public campgrounds.

'Watch' our comeback

Striking proof (no pun intended) that the United States still sets the pace in advanced product technology is found in the phenomenal growth of the digital watch industry.

Digital watches are those little electronic jobs using light-emitting diodes (LEDs), which at the touch of a button show the time in hours and minutes and in some cases seconds, as well as the month and day.

For decades the American watch industry saw its share of the market declining in the face of competition from other nations, especially the Swiss. But now the Swiss and Japanese and other foreign watchmakers have found themselves left high and dry by the surge of American companies, backed by modern electronics technology, in the new field of digital watches. The result, as Business Week recently reported, has been to bring watchmaking leadership back to the United States.

"We sold over 300,000 digital watches last year and we expect to do even better this year," says Eugene Gluck, president of E. Gluck Corp., the nation's No. 3 watch company in terms of unit sales.

As additional proof of the continuing vitality of the American free enterprise system, it is interesting to note that Gluck came to the United States in the 1940s as a wartime refugee from Europe and started his company from scratch. It now sells nearly three million watches of all types a year.

Parking is big business

Dear Editor:

As a graduating senior at Cal Poly University, I can sympathize with the letter (July 21) that criticized the Cal Poly parking system.

Each quarter (10 weeks) every student and instructor is required to pay a $10 parking fee. That means that a total of approximately 12,500 people pay a total of $125,000 each quarter or $500,000 a year. WHERE DOES ALL THIS MONEY GO? Probably to perpetuate the problem of paying the salaries of the petulant parking patrol!

I am not suggesting that Cal Poly should have no parking patrol. But why not charge a nominal fee ($1) and reduce the number of officers, leaving only enough to ticket those who illegally park? Mt. Sac does not charge a parking fee and Mt. Sac's enrollment is larger than Cal Poly's.

It would simply be good public relations for Cal Poly to provide a free parking lot for the community to use during evening hours and weekends.

It's time for Cal Poly to change its parking system. People are more important than unnecessary bureaucratic rules.

Financial disclosure

Dear Editor,

Most of us have assumed that after Watergate the necessary legislative measures were taken to avoid similar problems throughout government. This is not totally true. Congress has failed to clean up its own house. Although the Senate has acted responsibly on both Lobby Disclosure, S 2477 (passed 6/15) and Financial Disclosure, S 495 (expected to pass soon) the House of Representatives has allowed both of their reform bills to stall for 17 months in the Judiciary Committee chaired by Peter Rodino! Both of the House bills have substantial co-sponsorship: 165 for Lobby Disclosure and 168 for Financial Disclosure. These bills cope effectively with the major sources of corruption among politicians.

The House has had 2 years to act on these bills but is stalling with less than 50 working days remaining of the 94th Congress.

Although Representative Lloyd co-sponsored the Financial Disclosure bill it is now critical that he take a leadership role in urging Chairman Rodino to act to bring both bills to the floor.

Furthermore, voters who want to avoid political corruption should take time out to write a strong word to their Representatives to see that the House acts on these bills. Chairman Rodino should also hear from us. He did such a superb job during the Watergate hearings that one finds it hard to understand his delay in bringing these bills to the floor. The Senate has acted 3 times in the past 4 years with good financial disclosure legislation, only to have it die for the House's failure to take similar action. Let's let the House of Representatives know we haven't forgotten Watergate!

The real Pat Moynihan

WASHINGTON — The quixotic Daniel Patrick Moynihan, despite his cherubic cheeks and angelic blue eyes, still has the roguish look of an oversized Irish leprechaun.

There is mischief behind the blissful eyes, pugnaciousness behind the professional manner. He came out of the sweltering New York City slum known as Hell's Kitchen, graduated cum laude from Tufts and taught at Harvard. There is a vestiage of both environments in Moynihan today.

He made a national name for himself in the White House as Richard Nixon's resident Democrat. Now Moynihan is in full pursuit of a seat in the Senate.

He was in constant hot water while he served Nixon. Moynihan's statement that blacks should be treated with "benign neglect," for example, raised a howl from Harlem to Watts. But if his lack of tact aggravated the grim Nixon crowd, he shrugged off their criticisms with a fast quip and a bit o'blarney.

President Ford appointed Moynihan to be his United Nations ambassador. The irrepressible Irishman lasted only eight months. His trigger-tongue remarks, accusing just about the entire Third World of anti-Semitism, created an uproar around the world.

Moynihan's plunge into elective politics hasn't softened his abrasive nature nor silenced his blunt tongue. We intercepted him at the Democratic convention to ask whether he expected Jimmy Carter to campaign for him. "Presidents do not campaign for senators," Moynihan said, "senators campaign for Presidents."

He was even more testy with a young interviewer from the New York Public Interest Research Group. We have a tape of the unpublished interview, which reveals Moynihan in full flamboyance.

He looked over the prepared questions with an imperious eye and characterized them as "something you would get in a freshman course in comparative government in a not very good community college."

Asked what U.S. foreign policy should be toward the white regimes of Rhodesia and South Africa, he grumped: "that's not a good question . . . It's just not a good question." Then he added crisply: "What do you mean, 'What should be our foreign policy?' . . . You're talking to a man who has been an ambassador three times. Do you want a five-word answer?"

Which energy source, he was asked later, should be given first priority. "Don't be ridiculous. Don't be ridiculous," he snapped. "You're talking about the nature of the 20th-century economy."

Then he turned on the interviewer, Chris Aidun, a college senior. "What are you studying?" demanded Moynihan.

"Economics," said Aidun.

"Economics," mimicked the Irishman. "You are not yet an economist. Please don't ask ridiculous questions."

Moments later, he recommended that the interviewer read a book entitled "On Equality of Educational Opportunity," which Moynihan happened to coauthor. "It's the definitive work on the subject," he said immodestly.

Which programs would he support, asked Aidun, to improve the conditions of the elderly?

"Of the elderly? To improve their condition?" echoed Moynihan. "In what respect, make them younger?"

He added impatiently: "I don't understand how we can improve the condition of the elderly. That's a meaningless sentence. If you can't ask a meaningful question, don't ask at all."

There was another question about his "greatest weakness," as he saw it. Probably, he said, "an indisposition to answer such questions."

Footnote: In fairness to the feisty Moynihan, he is not really cavalier about the issues. He has taken staunch stands in favor of human rights, full employment, national health insurance and family assistance to the impoverished.

Moynihan explained to us that he had been abrupt with the interviewer because he seemed to want simple answers to complex questions.

Paul Harvey

. So you're an 'only child'...

Because young Paul is an "only child" the Harveys are more than casually interested in the problems and prospects for "onlies." After all, we have all our eggs in one basket, so to speak. And from generations past the only-child stereotype was expected to be spoiled, maladjusted.

The Encyclopedia of Child Care and Guidance published in 1954 referred to "the lonely onlies." The Newton Kugelmass book on Child Care published in 1959 referred to the only child as "self-centered, overprotected, immature." And then, as recently as 1976, researchers thought to leaf through "Who's Who" and, among those persons who have most distinguished themselves — guess what? For an only child to use that as an excuse for anything is a cop-out. Each human, born under whatever cirumstances, ultimately has problems, shortcomings, and each must try to place the blame elsewhere.

The child of a black family, or a big family or a broken family or a rich family or a poor family — at some time will try to excuse his own inadequacy by blaming that blackness, that bigness, that brokenness, that richness or that poorness.

And the only child, also. But starting today he's going to have to find some other excuse for his own inadequacy. Because Franklin Delano Roosevelt was an only child. So was author Robert Louis Stevenson and Supreme Court Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

Other onlies who became giants include India's president, Indira Gandhi, and symphony conductor Antonia Brico and many of our astronauts. And Lena Horne and Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr.

Studies of the student body at Wake Forest show onlies well within the normal range of American college students on two scales of personality adjustment, extraversion, introversion and neuroticism.

"Onlies are no more neurotic nor lonely than anyone else." In leadership effectiveness and verbal IQ, the onlies scored higher than average. The new research — and I am drawing from three separate sources — is not designed to make onlies feel less sorry for themselves but it should have that effect.

What are the odds for the only child to find happiness in marriage? For a woman-only the chances of a lasting marriage are good. For a man, there is a higher rate of separation and divorce — and this is especially true where two onlies marry. The only male child tends to marry later than other men.

About one in 20 Americans is an only child. They are not disadvantaged. And parents contemplating a family, based on the best present knowledge, can now forget the old wives' tales and can evaluate the options in accordance with their own desire.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

In the eternal battle of the sexes there is such a thing as damning a woman with faint praise. It takes a really courageous male chauvinist to do it but some forthright individuals, given the proper opportunity, are equal to the task. Like that doctor, for instance, who at a recent conference of the American Medical Association told his audience: "The female's greater proportion of body fat provides greater endurance."

Ray Cromley

Lobby groups offer wares

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — National political conventions are giant trade fairs.

John Gardner was at the recent Democratic national meeting from Common Cause. Not to boost Jimmy Carter — Gardner is a Republican. But, with a bevy of assistants numbering between 15 and 25, he was there to buttonhole the estimated 400 to 500 Common Cause members at the Convention from all over the nation, whip them into a concerted 50-state campaign to get through two measures Gardner is pushing now — bills that would require detailed reports by lobbying organizations and thorough financial disclosures by congressmen.

The Gardner campaign was as organized as Carter's. Each Common Cause member was to make it personally clear to his congressman that he was expected to work to get these bills out of committee unscathed and vote for them on the floor. Each senator was to be pressured on the financial disclosure bill, the lobbying measure having passed that chamber.

Congressmen up for election were to be told that if they did not cooperate, their lack of effort, or their negative vote would be used against them publicly in the campaigns this fall.

Gardner and his group have a powerful lever in that several hundred of the delegates and alternates, many politically prominent at home, and numbers of the candidates and their wives, are Common Cause members, including Mrs. Jimmy Carter and her husband.

Whether or not the Gardner-Common Cause effort will succeed is another matter. Members of Congress have been notoriously coy about revealing their financial holdings, their business connections, their stock and commodity trading, their legal clients and incomes in detail — and it is likely in the minds of most observers I've talked to that the financial disclosure bills will remain stalled in committee or emasculated before they reach the House and Senate floors.

The same fate may be in store for the publicity-for-lobbyists bill in the House, though there's a little more hope here in that the measure did get through the Senate.

But Common Cause was not the only group offering wares at the convention. Also pressing their special interests were the Labor Coalition, National Amnesty Council, Black Leaders Democratic Caucus, Italian American Committee, Right to Life, Gay Rights Caucus, New Democratic Coalition, National Organization for Women, Americans for Democratic Action, the Ralph Nader organizations, National Abortion Rights Action League, Energy Action Caucus, United Farm Workers, Machinists, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, Longshoremen, Electrical Workers, National Education Association and the Friends of Animals, Inc. (advocating a boycott of tuna).

A hookers group was on the fringe.

Though the Democratic presidential nomination had been sewn up well before the convention, a bevy of men and women were there establishing a base of future years.

Jerry Brown of California was campaigning for Brown, building contacts and setting alliances virtually until the last delegates headed for home — more than a day after Carter had received the formal votes, the nomination and the Brown oath of allegiance.

Mo Udall's withdrawal, his releasing of delegates pledged to him and his personal pledge to become a Carter worker were as much a plea for Udall votes at the convention as a concession of defeat.

But Brown and Udall were not alone. The lobbies of the convention hotels were filled with candidates for almost every conceivable office, future candidates and those desiring to move up in the party structure, each seeking to make his name known to those in power and to others who might be useful in the future.

In short, it was a typical convention.

Feeding rabbit with eyedropper

DEAR DR. MILLER: Bottle-feeding very young puppies is a cinch. Very young kittens are a lot harder. With them, I do better with an eyedropper. Baby rabbits are harder still. Is there any secret to getting food down them with an eyedropper? — S.N.

DEAR S.N.: The formula (it must be high in fat and protein for rabbits) is best fed if you squeeze out one drop so it hangs from the tip of the dropper, and then let the baby lick it off. Repeat with another drop dangling from the dropper and allow the baby to lick again. Baby rabbits may seek and swallow food offered this way when they would fight and refuse the dropper if inserted in the mouth.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Big Red's a boneheaded Irish setter who never gets enough exercise. I'm getting a 15-speed bike that I think's going to solve that problem. I realize there are some hazards. How can I avoid them? — T.K.

DEAR T.K.: Even if Big Red weren't a bonehead, he'd have trouble handling that bike. Shifting the gears, for example, could be a bit complicated for him. Should you decide to take over the bike, his hazards aren't markedly decreased. Even if he's trained to run behind the bike, there are insurmountable traffic problems in most places. Bikeways away from automobile traffic, aren't all that safe, either, for he could still be battered by other bicycles, or vice versa. Should you somehow find an ideal remote spot to exercise him safely, be sure it's done in the cool of the morning or evening. A canine's air-conditioning system is progressively less efficient as the temperature and humidity rise, and the need for body cooling rises proportionately with the amount of exercise. Consequently, hard exercise which undoubtedly is beneficial to Big Red in cool weather becomes dangerous or downright deadly when it's hot.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We had a cat, an incurable clawer, who kept tearing up our furniture no matter what we tried. We ended up putting it to sleep rather than declawing it. Our daughter has been pleading for another cat, and we finally agreed. Would it be better to just go ahead and have it declawed when we get one, rather than doing something later? — D.F.

DEAR D.F.: On the basis of recent history, "doing something later" sounds ominous. Declawing can qualify as cruel and unusual punishment, particularly during the post-operative and prolonged convalescent period. Still, cats themselves, given the choice between surgery and survival versus immediate extinction, would invariably opt for surgery. Even so, I'd discourage such surgery on the young cat. At least allow its body (feet in particular) to develop completely first. There's also the vital consideration that most cats don't require declawing. Cats can be trained to a varying degree — using positive reinforcement — and when provided suitable options and encouragement, very rarely resort to destructive clawing.

For Wednesday, July 28, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Long shots are not likely to pay off today, but hard work will. Bank on the muscles in your arm, not the spots on the dice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be tempted today to embellish the facts a bit rather than to tell it like it is. No one will believe your tall tales.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll wind up disappointed today if you expect too much from friends. Don't put them on the spot by being overly demanding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your impulsive generosity could cause you remorse later on. Keep within limits you can afford, not what you think is expected.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you're aware of details. Today, you'll see only the big picture. Re-check all facts and figures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today is not as gainful as it could have been, because you'll use faulty business judgment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be watchful today that you're not careless or wasteful with things that belong to others. It could cost you a friendship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually you're a fairly lucky person, but today you'd better rely more on your abilities. Dame Fortune's a fickle lady!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In an attempt to impress others today, you may take on projects beyond your capabilities. You have nothing to gain but embarrassment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you take a flyer today, do it on your own rather than on the advice of casual acquaintances. A wrong move could cost you some bucks.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be fair with others today, but don't short yourself for individuals who don't really deserve it. They wouldn't do it for you.

Your Birthday July 28, 1976

More than the usual share of opportunities will be available to you this Year. However, you have a tendency to coast. You may not make of them what you should.

Ann Landers

Parents tried their best

Dear Ann Landers: What wisom, consulation or advice can you give parents in their 50s who have worked hard to achieve the American dream, loved their kids and tried to give them the best world ever? We are also the unhappiest.

Many of our children are on drugs, unemployed drop-outs, migrants, drifters, angry with the world, hostile toward us and out-of-joint with society.

How much and for how long should parents pay, in terms of self-recrimination, worry, disappointment and financial support? How can we enjoy the years that are left to us now that we have more money, fewer business pressures and are still in fairly good health?

It's heart-breaking to see our kids maladjusted, disoriented and unable to cope. We can't help but feel we are to blame. After all, they are our sons and daughters. We raised them. Where is the cutoff line? Do you have any answers? — Meant Well Parents

Dear Meant Well: To you and the thousands of other parents who are miserable because of "what you have done" to your children, I say this: Stop beating yourselves. You did the best you could with the tools at hand — inexperience, clay feet, the works. No one knows why some children turn out to be champions in spite of parents who provided precious little emotional nourishment, while other kids — loved, wanted, tenderly nurtured, with all the so-called advantages — turn out perverse, estranged, and unable to cope.

I have come to believe in the genetic factor which has been ignored by many behavioral "experts." We all inherit our nervous systems and if the nervous system is fragile, it places severe limitations on what a person can tolerate. Certain individuals are born survivors. They can withstand life's harshest blows and emerge the stronger for it. Others crumble in the face of minor adversity. The same fire that melts butter can make steel strong.

And let us not overlook personal responsibility. I am sick of hearing children blame their parents for their messed-up lives. People with all sorts of handicaps can and DO make it in this demanding and competitive world.

For those who are hooked on dope, there are drug abuse centers with trained personnel, eager and waiting to help. For individuals who need professional counseling, there are mental health clinics. The self-help groups do a remarkable job — and they are free. Alcoholics Anonymous, Gamblers Anonymous, Recovery, Inc. The list is endless.

Enough of this "You damaged me, now take care of me" nonsense. It's a cop-out. Parental guilt laid on by our kids is so thick you can cut it with a knife. It serves no purpose except to perpetuate financial and emotional dependence and create a climate of hostility, punishment and ultimate failure.

CONFIDENTIAL to The Best Is Yet To Come?: Well, maybe it came and you were out. Success is that point in life at which opportunity and preparation meet. The reason some people don't recognize opportunity is because it often comes disguised as hard work.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Something about tennis

So many people have been asking me if I am playing better tennis this year.

Mainly, they have been the people who played me last year.

I am happy to report that, although my form is much the same, I have picked up a few tricks of the court that I have seen professionals use, which is bound to improve my game.

I have finally mastered what to do with the second tennis ball. Having small hands, I was becoming terribly self-conscious about keeping it in a can in the car, while I served the first one. I noted some women tucked the second ball just inside the elastic leg of their tennis panties. I tried, but found the space already occupied by a leg. Now I simply drop the second ball down my cleavage, giving me a chest that often stuns my opponent throughout ane ntire set.

Next, I have learned how to stall, thus throwing my entire opponent's game off. It's called the old tie-the-shoe-trick. When your opponent is ready to serve, simply drop to your knees, untie your shoes, rearrange its tongue, and tie it again. Baseball players use the old stall all the time. (Cincinnati Reds pitcher Pat Zachry recently swallowed his chewing tobacco and threw up against a dugout wall. I haven't mastered at what hour I can throw up. Sometimes, it is during a return.)

Another play is the rearrange-the-strings number. Never take the rap for a bad return or no return. Whenever you hit a ball into the net or miss it entirely, bring the game to a grinding halt by checking the strings of your racket, spending sometimes as much as five minutes separating them and testing their strength. This absolves you of any of the responsiblity for a bad shot.

Forget all you have been told about concentration. It is overrated. Often, when there is time during one of my lobs, I yell across the net, "Your zipper is open," and have not only been ignored, but soundly punished for my good deed.

Probably my greatest accomplishment this year has been my skill at learning to play the game called, "Run Around the Backhand."

Early in my tennis career, I used to think when a ball landed to the left of me I had to use my backhand to return it. I have since learned that anything is better, including straddling a 15-foot cyclone fence.

No doubt about it — every day in every way, my game grows stronger. I saw one enthusiast the other day playing with his racket out of the press. I'll have to try that.

Dr. Lamb

Two kinds of hepatitis

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter has infectious hepatitis. Her doctor says there is no cure for it and she probably got the virus from food served at a restaurant. Will you comment on the disease? If you have a Health Letter telling more about it I would appreciate getting it.

DEAR READER — There are two kinds of viral hepatitis, one comes from food and the other from needles or blood and plasma transfusions. The type one gets from food usually strikes within six weeks after exposure and the other type between six weeks and six months after exposure.

The food type results from contamination of food or water sources with the virus, usually from sewage or fecal contamination. Contaminated oyster reefs are one source but certainly not the only one or even the main one.

I am sending you The Health Letter you asked for, number 7-8, Living with Your Liver. Others who want this issue on how the liver functions and its main diseases can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

Viral hepatitis from food or water contamination is more common than many realize. It is almost epidemic in some parts of the world. In its severe form it can cause jaundice and severe liver disfunction. In milder forms it may not cause any jaundice at all and may appear as a mild case of gastroenteritis. In most cases the person recovers without any significant residual damage at all.

It is obvious from what I have said that the many mild cases require no treatment. Most people don't even know they have had it. Even people with jaundice with infectious hepatitis usually recover without residual liver damage. In some cases a smoldering case of hepatitis persists.

You can prevent infectious hepatitis from food and water contamination for about six months by taking one shot of pooled gamma globulin. You may even prevent it if you have already been exposed. For example, if several people ate at a restaurant and some of the people then developed hepatitis it is presumed the others have been exposed too. These people can all be given pooled gamma globulin and the attack prevented or its severity greatly diminished. Anyone getting to an area of the world where food and water sanitation are poor is wise to have a shot of pooled gamma globulin in advance to protect them from infectious hepatitis.

DEAR DR. LAMB — On reading the book, "Lou Gehrig" I find the Mayo Clinic diagnosed his disease as amytrophic lateral sclerosis. This illness involves the motor pathway and cells of the central nervous system. Mr. Gehrig died in 1941. Since that time what has been the medical progress on treatment and-or cure of this disease if any?

DEAR READER — Essentially none. The ability to cure many of the diseases of the central nervous system continues to elude medical science. In many instances the basic cause of many of the illnesses remains obscure or unknown.

There has been some improvement in providing symptomatic support but that is certainly not a cure. And I would remind you that there are wide differences in cases. The disease is a bad one, but there are atypical cases that appear to have periods of arrest of symptoms that may last for years before the disease progresses. Only the doctor in charge of an individual case, familiar with all the findings and the speed of changes, can really say what to expect in an individual case.

Jacoby's bridge

Old-fashioned logic works

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand is typical of the hands shown in the auction bridge columns and books of 50 or 60 years ago. South bid one notrump and everyone would pass since in auction you got credit for all over tricks below the line.

West would open the three of spades and the defense would gather in four spade tricks. East would signal with the 10 of diamonds on the fourth spade and West would lead a diamond.

South would take his ace of diamonds and cash four club tricks. West would discard three diamonds.

Now South would cash his ace and queen of hearts and finesse for West's jack in order to score nine tricks and win the rubber.

The author would explain that the finesse was a sure thing. If West had held a five-card diamond suit he would have opened it. In auction you led your longest suit against notrump. Woe betide any iconoclast who violated that rule. Hence, when West shoed out on the second club lead he was marked with 4-4-4-1 distribution.

A contract declarer would probably make the same play, but it would not be a sure thing. Contract players don't always lead their longest suit.

Lab tests reveal data on kissing

Nineteen out of every 20 kisses are harmless, transmitting only germs of an innocuous sort. But that one in every 20 is really a pip. In its 278 colonies of bacteria, it can send along colds, flu, pneumonia, even mono, tuberculosis, strep throat. The longer the kiss, the germier, sure enough. Young men and women at City College in Baltimore proved the foregoing in extensive laboratory experiments wherein they sat around for many days unimaginatively kissing glass slides.

What people say

"It is a matter of the greatest importance and greatest urgency that the 55-mile-per-hour limit not be abandoned. I cannot believe that this nation wants to condemn thousands of its citizens to death in order to drive a few miles per hour faster."

—Vincent Tofany, president of the National Safety Council, saying that public pressure is causing some states to relax enforcement of the speed limit.

The familiar black pepper we season our food with comes from the crushed, dried berries of the pepper plant which grows in such faraway places as Indonesia and other hot countries.

The pepper plant bears clusters of small green berries about the size of peas, which turn red as they ripen.

For black pepper the berries are gathered when they begin to turn red and are still unripe. This is the period when they have the most peppery flavor.

The berries are then spread out in the sun to dry. As they dry, the berries shrivel and harden into black peppercorns. It is a simple matter to grind them to obtain the black pepper we sprinkle on our food.

White pepper is made from the ripe berries of the same pepper plant. To make white pepper the outer coat, or skin, is removed from the white seed of the peppercorn before grinding.

White pepper has a finer flavor, but is not so strong as black pepper.

U.S. cagers go for gold medal tonight

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States, which now appears to have very little chance of leading the Olympics in either gold or total medals, looks to its basketball team for the restoration of misplaced prestige tonight.

"We came here to play for the gold medal, and that's what we're doing," said All-American Scott May of Indiana. "It doesn't matter who we're playing. We didn't come here to play Russia. We came to win the gold."

The Russians, controversial winners over the United States in the 1972 Olympic final— which Americans regarded as an enormous blow to prestige— will be missing this time. They lost to tough Yugoslavia 89-84 last night shortly before the Americans advanced with a convincing 95-77 decision over Canada in the other semifinal.

"The psychological edge is with Yugoslavia," said American Coach Dean Smith, who observed that several of their players "belong in the NBA."

"They're up high off two emotional victories," a one-point decision over Italy and the biggest upset of the Games over Russia. "I think if we were playing Russia, the advantage would be with us. But we're not.

"I think our players were looking forward to playing Russia, but I told them not to talk about that. I just hope we can play as well against Yugoslavia as we did tonight."

It may have been the Americans' best game. They blew out to a early 22-8 lead and cruised in. They never trailed and led by 17 or more most of the time. May led the balanced American attack with 22 points.

The American women, meanwhile, gained the silver medal with a 83-67 victory over Czechoslovakia while gold-medal winner Russia beat Japan 98-75 in the final games of the round-robin tournament.

The Americans were shut out of victories yesterday, at least partly on Dave Roberts' raindrenched, unsuccessful gamble in the pole valt that turned gold to bronze. The Yanks now appear destined for a placing behind Russia and possibly East Germany in both gold and total medals.

With the Games more than half over, the United States now holds 21 gold, 23 silver and 17 bronze. Russia has a 27-26-20 count and East Germany has solidified its position as a world athletic power with a 27-17-14 total.

The Americans could make up a little ground—maybe just a little—in today's light schedule.

In addition to their favored basketball team, the Americans have a gold medal possibility in Greg Louganis, a 16-year-old phenom from El Cajon, Calif., who qualified first in men's platform diving.

The United States could gain a medal from its equestrian team in Grand Prix jumping but seemed unlikely to finish higher than second in any of the five yachting classes that are due to end today. The Russians are well-placed in a couple of those events. Russia also figures to gain ground in team saber fencing, superheavyweight weightlifting and lightheavyweight judo. Americans are not expected to score in any of those events.

Track and field athletes have an idle day.

It is in that sport, along with its boxers, that America's slim hopes rest. The boxers have nine men alive with the competition moving into the quarter-finals, but Cuba and Russia also are strong. The prospects in track and field aren't overwhelming.

With 11 men's events completed, the Americans have won only two.

They had a shot at gold in the seven-hour pole vault competition Monday, but Roberts' strategy backfired and the world record-holder at 18 feet, 8¼ inches had to settle for the bronze medal.

"I have no complaints," said Roberts, a medical student from Gainsville, Fla. "I don't think it was a tactical mistake. I vaulted just the way I wanted to."

The results, however, weren't all that he might have wished for.

Roberts trailed two men on misses when he chose to pass at 18-2½, figuring he could clear the next height, 18-4½, easily. The five men who vaulted at 18-2½ missed all three tries. As they finished, the drizzing rain became a steady shower. And Roberts missed all three times at 18-4½.

So it went back to the last height cleared, 18-0½. Tadeusz Slusarski of Poland won on fewer misses at that height, with Antti Kalliomaki of Finland second and Roberts third.

The only other American medals gained in track and field were a silver by 20-year-old Millard Hampton, San Jose, Calif., and a bronze by Phoenix, Ariz., schoolboy sprinter Dwayne Evans, who finished 1-2 behind Jamaica's Don Quarrie, the 200 meter winner in 20.23.

Miklos Nemeth of Hungary set a world record at 310-4 in winning the javelin and Russia's Tatiana Kazankina set another standard with a 1:55.0 time in the women's 800 meters.

Lasse Viren of Finland, winner of the 5,000 and 10,000 meter runs in 1972, made a rare repeat in the 10,000 and now has a chance to become the first man ever to win both the distance races in consecutive Olympics.

Siegrun Siegl led a East German sweep in the women's pentathlon. She and teammate Christine Laser each finished the two-day competition with 4,745 points, and Miss Siegl was declared the winner on the basis of better performances in head-to-head competition.

Al Coage, a bouncer in a bar at Plainfield, N.J., provided the United States with a suprise bronze in the heavyweight judo competition. Sergei Novikov of Russia won the gold.

In the only other medal events, Bernt Johansson of Sweden won cycling's individual road race and Valentin Khristov of Bulgaria took the heavyweight weightlifting with a total hoist of 880 pounds.

Sutton fans 2,000th batter

ATLANTA (AP) — Don Sutton cooled the heat, ended the pressure and beat the Atlanta Braves, despite a slow start Monday night.

He recorded his 2,000th career strikeout in the Los Angeles' 6-2 victory.

"It's a big thrill. I don't really know exactly how big," he said. "I'll have to kind of look back and decide later. But to know only 27 other guys have done it, well, it's kind of a shot in the arm."

Sutton scattered five hits and struck out nine, as he got his 11th victory of the season. He admitted thoughts of that 2,000th strikeout had been with him some time.

"I've been thinking about it since last year. Now I'm relaxed and that hasn't been the case all year," he said.

Dodger Manager Walt Alson said his pitcher "was fighting control early in the game. He was running the count full in the first inning or two and it was a hot night to be doing that."

"But he straightened out and pitched a heck of a game," Alston said.

During Sutton's shaky start, the Braves got to him for their runs, on a walk to Rod Gilbreath, Jim Wynn's triple and Willie Montanez' single, all in the first. But Carl Morton couldn't hold the lead as he allowed 10 hits in four innings and took his eighth loss in nine outings.

Steve Garvey led the Dodgers' 13-hit attack with four hits and a pair of runs batted in.

Garvey singled in the second, moved up on a walk, then scored on Sutton's bad-hop single over short.

The Dodgers took the lead in the third. Reggie Smith was safe on a fielder's choice. Ron Cey, Garvey and Bill Russell all singled to score a pair of runs.

Braves shortstop Jerry Royster, a former Dodger, went hitless against Sutton.

"When I was with the Dodgers, I hardly saw him any way except good," he said. "But tonight he didn't have a good fast ball, so he made you try to go for a high fast ball and get you out with that breaking ball. Tonight he was mostly curves, and when his breaking ball is good, it makes no difference. He's going to win."

Phil Niekro, 10-6, goes against the Dodgers' Rick Rhoden, 9-0, tonight.

Sherry suffers first defeat

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — Just when it looked like the relaxed Angels would win all of their games under new skipper Norm Sherry, the first-place Kansas City Royals came to town to send the Halos back to reality.

Righthander Al Fitzmorris (12-6) struggled all the way but he managed to blank the Halos, 4-0, on six singles Monday night to keep the Royals eight games ahead of the Oakland A's in the American League West standings.

The Angels had runners on base on seven of the nine innings but couldn't manage a timely hit against Fitzmorris. The six singles were scattered throughout different innings.

Nolan Ryan (7-13) pitched a strong game for the Angels in allowing only four hits with seven strikeouts.

But walks wrecked Ryan's chances of snapping a personal four-game losing streak. Ryan walked six Royals and three of them scored.

Obviously, Ryan got no support from the Angel hitters and poor defense also hurt his cause.

After Ryan walked George Brett and John Mayberry in the first inning, Amos Otis brought both of them in with a double which centerfielder Dave Collins couldn't handle. Mayberry's broken-bat single scored Brett in the third and K.C. added the fourth run in the eighth , thanks to a walk, stolen base and catcher Terry Humphrey's throwing error.

"Nolan threw all right, but things didn't go right for him," Sherry said after suffering first loss as the Angels' manager after three victories since taking over for Dick Williams Saturday. "The hits that beat him were playable."

Sherry wasn't concerned about his first defeat.

"I don't think it will slow us down," he said. "Fitzmorris just pitched a good game against us. We won't have our heads changing. Heck, you're not going to win every game."

Kansas City needed the win to maintain its advantage over the defending West champion Oakland A's.

"We're out in front but we're certainly no shoo-ins," said Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog. "Oakland is playing well and we're not too stable right now as a result of injuries."

ANGEL ANGLES — Frank Tanana (11-7) will pitch against Paul Splittorff (11-6) tonight with Don Kirkwood (4-7) slated to face Marty Pattin (3-9) Wednesday night.

The Anaheim Stadium message board was inoperative Monday night and there is some question whether it will be in use at all during the rest of the season.

Because of a rock concert and a circus, the outfield grass is in terrible shape and there are more concerts scheduled before the end of the season.

Pomona's Doug Bird will be checking with Dr. Robert Kerlan today about his ailing right shoulder. The righthander from Pomona High was forced out of Sunday's game in Oakland in the first inning. Bird is 9-4 with the Royals with a 3.36 ERA.

Kansas City has already lost Steve Busby for the season. Busby is considered the ace of the Royals' staff but he required surgery for his right shoulder.

L.A. keeps Vin Scully

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vin Scully, for 27 years a member of the Los Angeles Dodgers broadcast team, said Monday he will continue his association with the club.

The announcement ended speculation that he might give up his play-by-play broadcasts of Los Angeles games to concentrate on network television sports.

Dodgers President Peter O'Malley said, "Our new arrangement with Vin will enable him to continue his association with CBS sports. He will broadcast all Dodger home games and telecasts, except when he is fulfilling his network sports commitments.

Another announcer will be added to the Dodgers broadcast team to work with Scully and Jerry Doggett, O'Malley said.

U.S. tracksters still frustrated

MONTREAL (AP) — Don Quarrie became the first track and field double medal winner at the 1976 Olympics, Lasse Viren earned his third gold medal in two Olympics and a 24-year-old Soviet lass smashed a world record to frustrate U.S. athletes once again.

There were only a couple of true disappointments for Americans Monday, but when the exhausting 10-hour session finally ended at 8 p.m. EDT, a fifth world record had fallen, a 10th Olympic mark had been set and it was obvious that America's former dominance in track and field had been placed in limbo.

Jamaican Quarrie, second in the 100-meter dash Sunday, returned to win the 200 in 20.23 seconds as expected. Consolation for U.S. fans came when young Millard Hampton of San Jose, Calif., captured the silver medal and even younger Dwayne Evans of Phoenix, Ariz., took the bronze.

Viren, the bearded cop from Myrskyla, Finland, was as heavily favored in the 10,000 meters as was Quarrie in the 200. The 130-pound Viren didn't disappoint his followers. His winning time for the 6¼-mile run was 27:40.30, just off his own Olympic mark of 27:38.4.

Viren won the 5,000 and 10,000 in the 1972 Olympics. Monday he handily beat pacesetting Carlos Lopes, Portugal's world cross country champion. Third was Great Britain's Brendan Foster, who was unable to maintain contact with Lopes' fast pace. America's Garry Bjorklund finished 13th in the 16-man field.

Tatiana Kazankina of the Soviet Union blazed to a world record of 1:54.9 in a women's 800 which resembled the Eastern European championships. Second was Bulgaria's Nikolina Chtereva in 1:55.4 and third was East Germany's Elfi Zinn, whose time equalled the former world mark set by Russian Valentina Gerasimova.

In the final event of the day, which finished in a downpour, Tadeusz Slusiarski of Poland won the pole vault at 18 feet, one-half inch. Antti Kalliomaki of Finland was second and favored Dave Roberts third after a tactical move was foiled by the downpour.

Earlier in the day, Miklos Nemeth of Hungary came out of the shadows to astonish his foes by setting a world mark in winning the javelin.

The 29-year-old Nemeth, never higher than third in a major competiton in the past four years, threw the spear 310-4 to better the world mark of 308-8 set by Klaus Wolfermann of West Germany in 1973.

Nemeth's father, Imre, won the Olympic hammer title when his son was only one, so Nemeth's stunning victory over Hannu Siitonen of Finland and Gheorghe Megelea of Romania produced Olympic track's first father-son winners.

Roberts, world vault record holder at 18-8¼, trailed when he chose to pass 18-2½, figuring he could clear the next height, 18-4½, anyway.

Green Bay signs Shaw

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers added reserve quarterback Dennis Shaw, a seven-year National Football League veteran, to their roster Monday and dropped five players.

Shaw, 29, replaces rookie Steve Lainhart, who injured his left knee in an intrasquad game Thursday.

Shaw, whose parents reside in Claremont, is a product of Pomona Catholic High (now Damien) and Mt. San Antonio College.

The 6-foot-2, 210-pound Shaw, from San Diego State, was the 1970 Rookie of the Year when he completed 178 passes in 321 attempts for 2,507 yards and 10 touchdowns with Buffalo.

He was traded to St. Louis by the Bills in 1974 and was released by the Cards this summer. His career record is 489 completions in 924 attempts for 6,347 yards and 35 touchdowns.

Released by the Packers were third-year defensive back Hurles Scales; defensive back Brad Bowman, a 13th-round draft choice from Southern Mississippi; offensive tackle Phil Brazeau, a free agent from Washington State; wide receiver Steve Haggerty, a second-year player from the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, and tight end Dan Brunner from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater.

Hollypark has exciting finish

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Matters settled down to an offseason calm at Hollywood Park today following a closing afternoon that included a stickup of a $10 window cashier, a chase for the alleged robber and semi-panic when someone shouted "bomb."

Not incidentally, Caucasus won the finale feature of the meeting, the $137,600 Sunset Handicap, and Panamanian jockey Laffitt Pincay Jr. captured the 1976 riding championship.

Just before the seventh race, observers saw a mad scramble at about the eighth pole. Hundreds of fans scurried in all directions, even onto and across the track to the infield. It seemed to be rollicking confusion as people yelled, laughed and even cheered. But 60-odd spectators were treated for minor injuries including broken bones incurred in the hectic rushing around.

It developed that an unarmed robber had stuck up the cashier for $4,700. He was caught after a chase by security guards. There was no bomb. Then came the featured eighth, the Sunset.

Jockey Fernando Toro, scoring his 40th win on the lakeside turf course this summer, guided Caucasus under the wire a nose in front, as the formidable Charles Whittingham-trained entry finished one-two-three as the season concluded Monday.

The team of Caucasus, King Pellinore and Riot in Paris finished one-two-three, and a fourth member of the entry, Dahlia, trailed seventh after making a bid for top honors.

The dramatic riding duel between Pincay and Sandy Hawley ended with Pincay the winner with 125 victories, Hawley 122.

The score was 129-119 entering the final day. Hawley narrowed it in winning the first race. Pincay got it back in the second race. Pincay clinched the title when he won the fourth race on Nickel the Pickle. That put him five ahead and each rider had only four mounts remaining.

After three weeks of the meeting that opened in April, Hawley had built up a lead of 27. Pincay evened the count momentarily on July 5, only to lose it as the little Canadian champion registered a triple later that day.

The 4-year-old Caucasus, whose only stakes win at the meeting was in May in the South Bay Handicap, was held off the pace until Toro gunned him through the stretch.

Track stewards disallowed a claim of foul by Pincay against Toro for interference in the run for the wire.

"I thought the other horse (Caucasus) was leaning all the way through the last sixteenth of a mile. My horse ran his race for sure," Pincay said later.

Trainer Whittingham was philosophical. "After looking at the rerun, it looked like a 50-50 deal. King Pellinore came out first and then Caucasus came in. I guess," said Whittingham, "I'm the only one it didn't matter to either way."

Caucasus, earning $81,350, is owned by Fred Sahadi's Cardiff Stock Farm of Solvang, Calif.

The Rokeby Stable's Eastern challenger, One on the Aisle, at one stage a threat, was taken off the track in a van after finishing last. "He seemed to be nodding, like he was a little sore," said rider Hawley, "so I decided not to jog him back."

Total betting handle for the 79-day meeting was $302,772,669. Daily average was $3,832,564, up 4.1 per cent from last year. Total attendance was 2,295,746, an average of 29,960, down 3.8 per cent from 1975.

Bullfights move to sea

TIJUANA — The Tijuana bullfights move to the beach next Sunday and bring with them a show new to the area.

While a regular corrida is scheduled, the afternoon also will feature two exhibitions by a group of Portuguese stuntmen known as Los Forcados, wrestling a bull to a standstill.

U.S. women bounce back

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States, embarrassed by Russia's "punitive expedition" three nights earlier, captured the silver medal in the first women's Olympic basketball tournament ever held.

Sue Rojcewicz, a 5-foot-7 speedster with an uncanny knack for sparking rallies, was the heroine again Monday, triggering a 15-0 American outburst midway through the second half that carried the United States to an 83-67 triumph over Czechoslovakia.

"I was scared," said Miss Rojcewicz, who missed Sunday's final American practice because of illness. "Coming over here on the bus this morning everyone was quiet."

"I guess that was the team's way of getting ready. I know everyone was embarrassed by the belting we took from Russia."

Russia, which clinched the gold medal with that 112-77 crushing of the Americans, completed its five-game round robin schedule with a perfect record Monday night, beating Japan 98-75 behind 7-foot Iuliyaka Semonova's 20 points, all in the first half.

That left the third-place bronze for Bulgaria, which matched the United States record of 3-2 by closing with a victory over Canada Sunday. America claimed the higher award by virtue of its victory over Bulgaria.

"Realistically, although we hoped for the gold, we knew that Russia's program was years ahead of ours" said Billie Jean Moore of California State-Fullerton, the U.S. coach. "There's no question we are very elated. We would have been very disappointed if we had not won a medal.

"Twenty years from now, nobody can take this away from us. We are the first U.S. women's basketball team to win an Olympic medal."

Miss Moore again predicted the Americans would be the team to beat in the 1980 Olympics.

Asked what the gap was between the USA and the USSR, Miss Moore quickly replied, "About 10 inches."

That was a reference to Semenova, the huge Soviet center who destroyed the Americans with a 32-point performance in their showdown.

Coach Ivan Galabov of Bulgaria had predicted before last Friday's game that the Russians "will conduct a punitive expedition" against the Americans because they had insisted frequently they could handle the awesome Soviets.

In the silver medal victory, the Czechs were leading 53-52 with 10:40 left, but 6-foot-3 Marta Pechova had fouled out with a team-leading 14 points.

Miss Rojcewicz then pushed in a rebound that put the Americans in front to stay, added two free throws, a couple of rebounds and two assists.

Lucy Harris, an All-American from Delta State, led the scoring with 17 points, Nancy Dunkle added 14 and Miss Rojcewicz, Julie Simpson and Pat Roberts all contributed 10.

Dunkle said the victory was like a dream. "It was like we were on a cloud. It was floating higher...and higher...and higher."

District 23 loses in 7th

District 23 Big League All-Stars lost their first post-season playoff game Monday night to District 43 despite six innings of perfect pitching by District 23 hurler Mark White.

White retired the first 18 men he faced, but District 23 was unable to score. In the top of the seventh, District 43 scored three times on two bases on balls, an error and two RBI singles.

Ray Ortiz hit a double for District 23.

Citrus grid clinic set to go Friday

The ninth annual Citrus College All-Star Football Coaching Clinic will be held Friday beginning at 8 a.m. in the Student Center.

A number of top high school, junior college and college coaches will discuss various aspects of football. Heading the list of speakers will be former UC Riverside head coach and now USC assistant Bob Toledo and Stanford assistant coach Dave Currey.

Also scheduled for the clinic, which is held in conjunction with the San Gabriel Valley High School All-Star Football Game that evening in the Citrus Stadium, are Cal State LA head coach Ron Hull, Golden West JC coach Ray Shackleford and the three head coaches for the All-Star Game, Burch Drake of Azusa High, Gary Rawls of Rowland High and Jim Rawls of Chino High.

The clinic will give one unit of college upper division credit through Cal Lutheran College for those who register for it.

While the clinic is designed primarily for high school and college coaches, it is open to the public with college students or youth league coaches welcome to attend.

The cost for the clinic, two tickets to the All-Star Game and one unit of credit is $30. Without the college credit, the cost is $10.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. at the Student Center with no pre-registration necessary.

For more information on the clinic, contact Director John Strycula at (213) 335-0521.

Sports briefs

SEATTLE (AP) — Lucian Moore, one of the nation's top prep high jumpers from Tacoma's Franklin Pierce High, is one of four track athletes who announced this week they will attend the University of Washington in the fall.

The other three athletes include Peter Favell of Point Grey High in Vancouver, Canada; Kurt Spangler of Sammamish High; and Bill Tolbert of Grossmont College in El Cajon, Calif.

Tolbert, a long and triple jumper, will enter the UW as a junior. He has best marks of 24-7 in the long jump and 48-8 12 in the triple jump.

BUENA PARK (AP) — Teenager Chuck White of Los Alamitos parred the fifth extra hole of a playoff Monday at Los Coyotes Country Club to win the seventh tournament in the Western Amateur Golf Association summer tour.

White and Bill Viele of Hemet tied during the regulation 18 holes with scores of one under par 71 on the 6,806-yard course.

At even par 72 were Jim Williams, Los Angeles; Claye Atcheson, Claremont; Bill Wendt, Torrance; and Bradd Friel, La Habra. Friel shot 70 but was assessed a two-stroke penalty for arriving late.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Left-hander Doug Rau of the Los Angeles Dodgers was named the National League's Player of the Week Monday, becoming only the third pitcher to win the baseball award this season.

Rau had three starts during the past week, won all three and allowed only 16 hits and three earned runs.

KANSAS CITY — Owners of the defunct Kansas City Scouts voted to sell their National Hockey League franchise to a group of Denver investors headed by sportscaster Bud Palmer.

WASHINGTON — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors won the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Tournament with a 6-2, 6-4 triumph over No. 5 seed Raul Ramirez of Mexico.

LOUISVILLE — Unseeded Ricardo Cano of Argentina scored an upset 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over No. 2 seed Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach in the first round of the $125,000 Louisville International Classic tennis tournament.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — George Souders, winner of the 1927 Indianapolis 500 auto race, died of natural causes at the age of 75.

Upland linkster just misses title

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Golf Writer

Riviera's Tony Sills shot a one under par 288 to win the 77th Southern California Amateur Sunday at California CC, but 19-year-old Gerry Simoni just missed winning the championship.

The former Upland High star finished third, two strokes off the pace, but appeared to be headed for the title as late as the 63rd hole.

Tied with Sills at 215 at the beginning of Sunday's play, Simoni took a 3-stroke lead on the field when he birdied the 517-yard first and the 463-yard fourth hole. In the meantime, Sills, 20, missed a 5 footer on the third hole, settling for a bogey.

Sills caught Simoni at nine with a birdie putt, but Gerry completd the nine in 34, two under par as did Sills.

Hitting the ball long and accurate throughout the tournament, Simoni ran into driver trouble on the 457-yard 13th after he had missed a two-foot par putt on 12.

Simoni took a double bogey 6 on the 13th, and his driver again left him far to the right and behind a row of trees on the 340-yard 14th.

Electing to go through the trees, Simoni found himself in deeper and deeper trouble, and wound up with a triple bogey 7. The San Diego State freshman rallied, finishing the round with two pars and a birdie, but Sills held firm, shooting with a 72, while Simoni carded at 74.

Simoni of Canyon Crest CC reached the final day after fashioning some of the finest golf of his career. He started the tourney with a 74, followed with a 72, then shot a spectacular 69, three under par on the challenging 6,843-yard course.

Lynn Stone of Chino was in at 307.

Billy Smith of San Dimas fired an 83-87 to win the Secretary's flight of the 77th Amateur.

Emblem Club wins opener

Emblem Club opened the City Little League Majors playoffs with a 2-0 win over Westmont Al's Monday at the Pomona American Little League field.

Duane Price fired a three-hitter for Emblem Club, striking out 11 while walking only three.

Price began his team's only rally in the bottom of the fourth when he reached on a fielder's choice. Anthony Dynes followed with a single and, when Eddie Valazon singled to centerfield, Price scored from second and Dynes came all the way around to score from first base.

Antonio's will meet Clark Brothers today at 5:30 p.m., with the winner of that game facing Emblem Club on Thursday, August 5.

Pomona American's field is located at San Antonio and grand Ave.

Exhibition fight set

LONG BEACH — A Fiesta Brava Bullfight Exhibition has been set for Sept. 24, 25 and 26 at the Long Beach Arena according to Five Star Mexico International Enterprises, producers of the event.

Famous matadors from Mexico will be featured, including the very popular 22-year-old Curro Rivera, Jose Ramon Tirado, Mauro Liceaga, Cesar Faraco, and Ernesto San Roman known as El Queretano. Completing the list of outstanding matadors will be the up and coming El Charro (Jose Garcia).

Tickets for the event will go on sale August 1 at the Long Beach Arena Box Office and all ticket agencies.

Jaworski plans to start

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Talk is somewhat scarce around the Rams' camp about the James Harris-Ron Jaworski battle for the starting quarterback job. Los Angeles Coach Chuck Knox says only that Harris is still No. 1. Harris says nothing.

Jaworski, on the other hand, says plenty.

"I want to lead this team," remarked the supremely confident 25-year-old, "and I will."

Jaworski, a suprise second-round draft choice by the Rams out of Youngstown State in 1973, is somewhat shorter on experience than he is on confidence, however.

Nicknamed "The Polish Rifle," he spent his first season with Los Angeles on the taxi squad. In 1974, he played little, completing 10 of 24 passes for 144 yards.

Last season, though, the 6-foot-2, 185-pounder got his chance when Harris was sidelined by a shoulder injury.

Jaworski took over and led the Rams to victories over Green Bay and Pittsburgh, then completed 12 of 23 for 203 yards — and a 66-yard touchdown — plus running for a touchdown in Los Angeles' 35-23 playoff-opening triumph over St. Louis.

That obviously bolstered the confidence of the young man from Lackwanna, N.Y.

Jaworski, in fact, does not even consider his rivalry with Harris suspenseful, saying he already knows who the Ram quarterback will be.

"It's going to be me," he said with authority.

"I can just feel it. I know this is going to be my year. I have the talent. I have the arm. I have the experience now. And I know I have enough confidence."

Jaworski said he and Harris, in contrast a quiet and introspective type, have roomed together and are good friends. But he said that has nothing to do with who'll be the Rams' quarterback this season.

"We've talked this whole thing over several times," Jaworski commented. "I know he wants the job as badly as I do. But I'm not going to go behind his back and say this or that."

Harris comes into the quarterback battle with impressive statistics — a 17-4 regular season record as Rams' starter and a 52.7 career completion percentage — but Jaworski is undaunted.

"If I'm given a legitimate chance to win the job I'll win it," he said. "I was disappointed that I didn't get a better chance to play last season. I felt I was being had.

"It's a shame I only got a chance after James got hurt. I didn't want it to come that way," he continued.

"But I still showed what I could do."

Pomona American opens Section play

Pomona American will open its quest for the Section 7 Senior Division title tonight at Highlander Park in Hacienda Heights.

American, the District 20 champions, will be meeting a Senior squad from the Keenan Little League in Industry. The Keenan All-Stars won the District 60 crown last week.

Gametime is set for 5:30 p.m. at the Highlander L.L. Senior field. To get to Highlander Park, take the Pomona Freeway to Azusa Ave. Go south on Azusa to Colima and west on Colima to Stitzel. Go north on Stitzel and the field is located on that street in Hacienda Heights.

The double-elimination sectional tourney will run through Saturday. If American wins tonight, they will play the winner of the District 23 (Ontario North)-District 19 game on Wednesday, again at 5:30 p.m. If American drops tonight's opener, it would play the District 23-District 19 loser Thursday night at 5:30 p.m.

Finals will go at 10 a.m. Saturday morning, with a second game, if necessary, to follow at 2 p.m.

American manager Jim O'Toole will go with Fred Marcias on the hill vs. Keenan. Macias won America's final two games in the District playoffs.

"We have been playing good defense, our pitching has been sharp and we've gotten the timely hits," noted O'Toole in explaining his team's success so far. "We haven't been hitting the long ball, but we have made our hits count.

"It's been a total team effort so far, my only regret is that I can't play all 15 of our guys all the time."

O'Toole indicated that he would stay with the same starting lineup as he used in the District playoffs. He also said that Ray Andrzejewski would start on the mound in American's second game Wednesday or Thursday.

The District title was the second for Pomona American in three years. The La Verne Little League seniors won the title last year.

Nutrition program for kids, too

Yoga classes underway in Upland

The Upland Recreation Department is conducting yoga classes every Wednesday and Thursday under the direction of Mrs. Belle Tuckerman.

The class will be held every Wednesday morning from 9 to 10 at the Magnolia Recreation Center, 651 W. 15th St. Upland, and on Thursdays from 8 to 9 p.m. at the Cellar, 123 E. D St., Upland.

Cost of the program is $8 per month and is payable at the Recreation Department, 404 N. Second Ave.

The Recreation Department is cooperating with the San Bernardino County 4-H organization to operate a nutrition day camp for youths from 9 through 19.

The two-week camping session will be from Aug. 2 through Aug. 13 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Upland Memorial Park. The camp will be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

Camping activities include cookouts, crafts, singing, games and trips. There is no charge. Registrations are due by Wednesday at the Recreation Department office.

John Santiago is instructor of the department's karate classes which meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Four students were recently awarded karate's highest belt rank. Black belts were awarded to Benjimen Lara Jr., Joanne Mahoney, Jean Irwin and Linda Morrison.

Additional information on all programs may be obtained by calling 985-0994.

Roller skating highlights R.H. recreation events

The Rowland Recreation Department will sponsor a roller skating party for teenagers at Skateland in Whittier Wednesday. Cost will be $1.50.

Registrations for swim lessons at Nogales High School pool will be accepted at 9 a.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday. Lessons will begin Aug. 2 and end Aug. 13.

Boys and girls 6 through 11 are invited to go to Lion Country Safari Aug. 3 on a department - sponsored trip. Cost is $3.50 per child. Those who wish to go should contact the recreation office and sign up.

A day of games and contests for elementary school children will be held Aug. 5, starting at 2 p.m. at Northam School. Children may sign up at their local playgrounds.

The Rowland recreation office is at 1830 S. Nogales St., Rowland Heights.

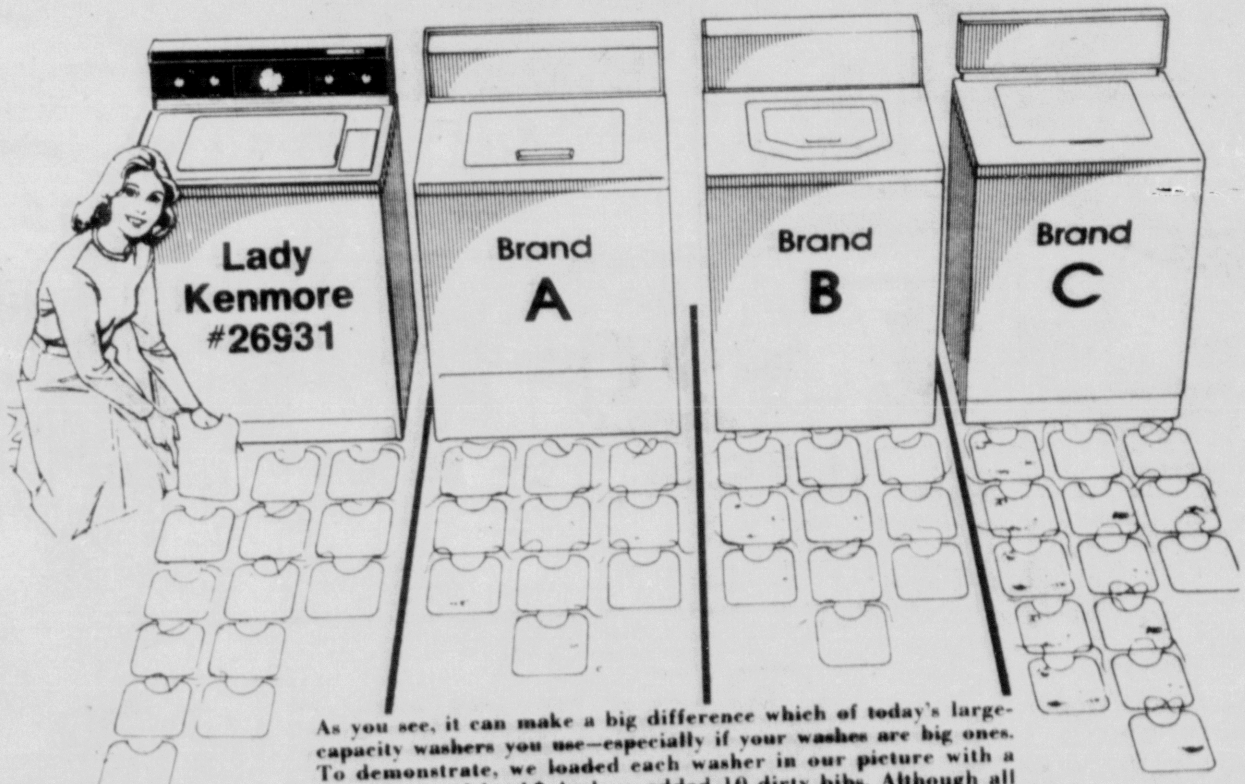
This Lady Kenmore® washer gets big loads cleaner than the next best-selling brands. And we mean cleaner.

This Ad Effective thru Sat., July 31



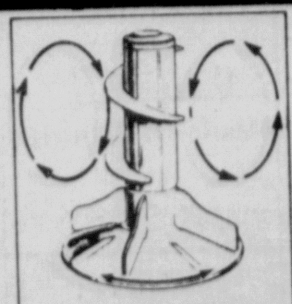
As you see, it can make a big difference which of today's large-capacity washers you use—especially if your washes are big ones. To demonstrate, we loaded each washer in our picture with a big, 15-pound load.* And we added 10 dirty bibs. Although all of the washers got some of the bibs clean, only the Lady Kenmore washer got them all clean. Why? Because only the Lady Kenmore washer has the Dual Action™ agitator!

Major Appliances Also Available at Sears Santa Ana and All Appliance and Catalog Stores

LIMITED TIME ONLY

$100 OFF

Regular Price of DUAL ACTION LADY KENMORE PAIR



Dual Action Agitator

. . . standard on Lady Kenmore washer. Available for large-capacity Kenmore washers from 1974.

How the Dual Action agitator works

This remarkable agitator has a top and bottom that move separately—the top pulls the clothes down into the wash, and the bottom whirls them side-to-side. Results? Testing proved that, compared to a conventional agitator, clothes get cleaner.

*Tests were conducted using a standard 15-pound A.H.A.M. load. Load contained: 3 sheets, 2 tablecloths, 4 shirts, 6 bath towels, 4 "T" shirts, 4 pillow cases, 6 shorts, 6 wash cloths, 5 handkerchiefs. Test results available on written request.
